Wisconsin Decides McCarthy Future; Big Vote Forecast

Senatorial Nomination Is Sought by Five in Statewide Race; Other Primaries

Milwaukee, Sept. 9 (AP)—Wisconsin voters perhaps 1,000,000 strong will decide today the political future of GOP Senator Joseph R. McCarthy.

The prospect of warm weather was expected to boost the normal vote total by about 400,000 in this primary election which has generated bitterness and controversy across the nation.

The state's 3,224 polling places were open from about 8 a. m., EST, to as late as 9 p. m.

The issue at stake was in the methods used by McCarthy in his announced drive to root Communists from the Democratic administration. Some people saw this campaign as the highest type of "Americanism." But there were others who looked on the McCarthy tactics as a "smear" campaign recklessly tainting the characters of innocent people.

His Chief Opponent

McCarthy's chief opponent was Leonard Schmitt, an upstate attorney who relied on marathon radio talks to carry his anti-McCarthy message to the people of Wisconsin. There were four others in the race for the GOP senatorial nomination but none was expected to be any real factor.

McCarthy was favored to win his second senatorial nomination. The known factor in the race was this:

How many Democrats had switched their vote to support the anti-McCarthy Republicans?

Wisconsin election laws permit such cross-voting because voters are not required to register by party affiliation.

A trend in the voting might not develop until after midnight due to a slow count resulting from long lists of candidates seeking local offices. In Milwaukee county alone there are 76 candidates running for the office of sheriff.

Tries for Big Majority

McCarthy was trying to get a big majority as a "vote of confidence" in his charges that subversive influences are at work in the Democratic administration. He charged Schmitt and others had used "Communist type" smear tactics against him.

In a radio broadcast last night, McCarthy said: "They are trying to prove they can make a scarred political corpse of anyone who dares to expose Communists in government."

Schmitt countered with a statement saying:

"I believe I have brought the issue of McCarthy's deplorable record to the people of Wisconsin. x x x I believe with all my heart that McCarthy represents a great political evil to Wisconsin and to

Inspection Angle Will Be Argued

A motion for inspection of the grand jury minutes in the Samuel Schifano first degree murder case, will be argued before Judge John M. Cashin in county court Friday. Counsel for the defendant, Senator Harry Gittelson, of New York, and Charles Gaffney, have made an application on behalf of defendant to inspect the grand jury minutes and Judge Cashin announced Monday afternoon that the matter would be heard Friday.

Until the motion for inspection of the grand jury minutes has been heard and decided, the trial of the case wil be delayed.

Death Occurred in June

Schifano is charged with having murdered Mrs. Emelia Nusca, 52, in her apartment in June. She died of wounds at St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie, on June 23. Schifano was also found wounded in the apartment but recovered from the wounds and stands charged by the grand jury with murder, first degree. Schifano, former Brooklyn resident, and Mrs. Nusca were found in the apartment badly wounded and nearby was a knife and hatchet. There had been mysterious telephone calls to state police during the day but the police were unable to locate the source of the calls immediately. When the troopers finally located the place, they found both victims in serious condition from the wounds and both were taken to the Poughkeepsie hospital. Mrs. Nusca's condition was so serious that it was impossible to secure a statement from her.

Physician Declares He Resigned Only With Greatest Reluctance

Dr. Joseph Jacobson, who recently resigned as director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, appeared before the board of supervisors Monday evening to clarify a rumor that he had resigned because of "political interference" with the administration of the hospital affairs.

Dr. Jacobson said this was not true, that he had resigned reluctantly to resume other duties for which he was trained and which he believed would be of greater service to the people of the county than continuing to devote his time to the hospital work.

Says Cooperation Splendid

He said there had been such splendid cooperation from the board of supervisors and from the board of health and Supervisor Jesse McHugh, who is the supervisors' representative on the board of health, that he was "tempted to stay" and his ultimate decision to resign had "nothing to do with any action" the board of supervisors had taken.

Dr. Jacobson said he had heard from various sources a rumor that the board of supervisors and the board of health handled professional health so badly that it was difficult to keep help.

'More Than Undestanding'

"There is nothing further from the truth, no medical director has been given more cooperation and understanding than I received from this board," said Dr. Jacobson and he said the board and McHugh had been "more than understanding" with all that he had tried to do as director of the tuberculosis hospital.

His decision to resign had come when he finally made up his mind that to continue as director at the tuberculosis hospital would mean he would have to "junk 25 or 30 years of work for which I was trained" in order to continue at the hospital. He said the board of health had acquired a very competent man to succeed him, a man, who has been highly trained in the work.

'Certainly Not True'

"Those remarks I heard about you people were certainly not true," concluded Dr. Jacobson. He said he had always had the fullest cooperation of the board at all times and cautioned that there was a difference between "political interference" and "political interest" and he urged the board of supervisors to "show more political interest in the tuberculosis hospital" which he said was a modern plant with an investment of close to a million dollars.

Dr. Jacobson was extended the floor prior to the taking up of routine business by the board.

Communications Read

Six communications were read from organizations and individuals asking that steps be taken to preserve Perrine's bridge, said to be the oldest covered bridge in New York state. The town of Esopus Chamber of Commerce, Kingston Chamber of Commerce, Lloyd R. LeFever, Captain Andrew S. Hickey, the Publicity Committee of Rosendale and David Terry wrote.

Back in June 1940 Supervisor Raymond Howe of the town of Esopus presented a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, authorizing the preservation and maintenance of the bridge as a landmark and example of the old historic covered bridge type. That resolution authorized expenditures from the Bridge Fund to keep the bridge in repair, and, maintain it, "for other than vehicular traffic."

Rumor Unfounded

Shortly after that County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran caused the bridge to be put into shape, a new roof was placed over the structure and other repairs were made toward preserving it. Recently there has been an unfounded rumor that the bridge, built about 1815, was to be demolished for the New York State Thruway. From that stemmed the campaign to have work done toward preserving the bridge. Letters to the board of supervisors followed.

It was stated by Supervisor Edward Eckert of the town of Esopus that Mr. Loughran had plans to repair the bridge again as soon as carpenters were available.

Chairman of the Board Roy F. Denniston stated that this work would be undertaken as soon as

Battle Continues

Ground Fight Enters Fourth Day at Hill on Central Front

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 9 (AP)—The U. S. Fifth Air Force said allied jet pilots today destroyed seven Russian-built MIG 15s and damaged 12 in blocking 150 Red fighters from an allied air raid on a North Korean military academy near the Manchurian border.

All but one of the kills were confirmed.

It was the sixth straight day of jet battles over northwest Korea and raised the September bag of MIGs to 29 destroyed, one probably destroyed and 29 damaged. The record for a month is 44 Red jets destroyed last April.

The air force said the military academy—hit hard in a fourth of July raid—was pounded by high explosives from U. S. Thunderjets. Eighty sorties (individual flights) were flown in the strike. The air force said the academy, about 35 miles from the big Communist airfield at Antung in Manchuria, was being repaired.

Furious Battle Waged

South Korean and Chinese infantrymen battled furiously into the fourth day for control of Capitol Hill on the central front.

Troops of the crack Republic of Korea Capitol Division pulled back off the slopes of the shell scarred height to give UN artillery a wide open shot at the Chinese.

An allied officer said "as of this morning nobody owns the hill."

Gritty ROK infantrymen counterattacked the Chinese five times in the face of the heaviest Red artillery barrage of the war—48,000 rounds. They reachel the hill crest Monday but were thrown back.

The U. S. Eighth Army said the Reds in the 24-hour period ended at 6 p. m. Monday night raked the Capitol Hill sector with 15,000 rounds of artillery and mortar fire.

At Close Range

Much of the fighting has been at close range—with hand grenades, fists, clubs and daggers. At least 11 U.N. planes hit Chinese positions Monday afternoon.

The Eighth Army estimated Chinese casualties at 954 killed and wounded in the first 14 hours of fighting.

Chinese in the west early this morning threw a probing attack against U. S. marines on Bunker Hill on the western front. Sharpshooting leathernecks drove the 25 man group off after a brief exchange of fire.

The Fifth Air Force said B-26 Bombers last night attacked 54 Red vehicles hauling supplies near the front.

B-29 Superforts from Okinawa dropped 200 tons of bombs on Yangdok, a rail center midway between the North Korean capital of Pyongyang in the west and the shell-wrecked east coast port of Wonsan. The air force said Yangdok recently had been built up as a supply base for Red troops.

Recreation Fund Totals $13,605 for Area Distribution

Represents State Spending of $32,340 to Aid Programs in County

Ulster county towns and communities including the city of Kingston will receive $13,605.90 from the state as reimbursement for recreation projects carried out this year, it was announced today by the State Youth Commission.

The amount of state aid approved represents a total expenditure for recreation in the county of more than $32,340.80.

The city of Kingston alone will receive $2,158 from the state in the form of assistance for youth serving activities under the commission's program of recreation projects, youth service projects and youth bureaus, according to Lee C. Dowling, executive director of the Youth Commission.

The remainder of the state aid will go to 10 townships and four villages that made application for the recreation project state aid.

In the city, state grants for recreation are based on an allowance of 75 cents for each resident under 21 years of age. Townships may receive up to $1,000 a year, but must agree to match the state funds with at least a like amount of their own money.

The recreation projects eligible for state aid include summer playground programs, community sport and athletic activities, youth social hobby centers and organized programs in such fields as hiking, camping, acquatics, arts, and hobbies. The program was inaugurated in 1945 to assist municipalities in providing worthwhile leisure activities for youth, and since its inception the Youth Commission has provided funds in excess of $6,000,000 to municipalities in the state.

In Kingston, a diversified recreational year-round program is being carried out. The agency responsible for the conduct of the program is the Department of Recreation and Board of Public Works, of which Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk is chairman. Director of recreation is Andrew J. Murphy, 3rd.

Texas Democrats to Rule On Backing Eisenhower

Amarillo, Sept. 9 (AP)—Texas Democrats, for the first time in their stormy history, faced a showdown today on whether to run a Republican as their presidential nominee.

It was a clear-cut issue between Adlai Stevenson and Dwight D. Eisenhower. At stake were Texas' normally Democratic electoral votes.

A militant never-say-die bloc of states righters came into the convention ready for a last-ditch fight on a resolution naming Eisenhower as the nominee of the Democratic party in Texas.

Never before has such a resolution been prepared for a Texas Democratic convention.

Bucking them was Gov. Allan Shivers, who reluctantly advised Texas Democrats their only legal and ethical course was to make Stevenson their candidate and bind their electors to him. Shivers, at the same time, emphasized his distaste for the national convention's nominee.

Shivers broke with Stevenson when Illionis' governor said he could not back Texas claim to its tidelands. Shivers said that he cannot cast his own vote for Stevenson because the tidelands is just one of the several irreconcilable issues where they differ, including the FEPC.

Aligned with Shivers were the loyal Democrats, a minority bloc that has been battling to keep Texas Democrats solidly in line for the national convention's nominee, no matter whom he might be.

It was an alliance considered unpleasant both by Shivers and his former foes, who have been trading hard words for months.

On the eve of the convention, Shivers friends are believed to have a substantial working majority of about 900 votes of the session's 1,200-plus. The States Righters challenged this saying their ranks were growing hourly as they buttonholed delegates who might be wavering.

It was the most complicated situation the Democratic party has ever found itself in Texas.

Its leadership was asking approval of a presidential candidate and platform alien to the expressed beliefs of many. Numerous delegations were here from county conventions that had instructed them specifically to vote against Stevenson.

Their leaders said a Democratic ballot headed by Stevenson would deprive them of their votes as Democrats.

The loyalists delegations were specifically instructed to stand firm for the National party's nominees. Their leaders said a decision to head the Democratic ticket with a Republican would deprive them of their votes as Democrats.

Taft Backers Will Go All Out for General

Big Decision Faces Ike in Taft's Role

Has Alternative

By JACK BELL

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower faces a major strategy decision when he sits down within the next few days to discuss with Sen. Robert A. Taft the Ohioan's role in the presidential campaign.

The Republican nominee then must resolve conflicting opinion in his own camp as to whether an attempt to enlist Taft's all-out help to try to mend the Taft-Eisenhower split in the party will be worth the cost he will be called upon to pay.

The cost will come in Democratic charges that Eisenhower has allowed himself to become a captive of the Taft wing on policies which the general's backers denounced before he was nominated.

The alternative would be to relegate Taft to a provincial role in the campaign and take the chance that the Ohio senator's followers will fall in line for the ticket by November.

Taft's Impression

This reporter comes away from talks with Taft with the impression the Ohio senator (1) is determined not to permit himself to be used to promote a "me-too" candidate and (2) that he wants Eisenhower's personal assurances that he will not install a "New Deal" administration if he is elected.

Taft, too, has an alternative. He can speak for individual Republican colleagues running for re-election to the Senate and mention the national ticket only in passing. It would not be difficult for his followers to catch any lack of enthusiasm he might display.

At this point, Taft can be said to be willing to make any reasonable effort to get Eisenhower elected, if he is satisfied with the over-all nature of Eisenhower's views.

But Taft said yesterday this will not include "whistle stop" tours. And he left unanswered, until after his conference with Eisenhower, the question of whether he will make a nationwide radio broadcast.

He said in a statement that he had had "a very friendly discussion" with GOP National Chairman Arthur Summerfield and Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, one of Eisenhower's chief advisers, about "the issues of the campaign, the conduct of the campaign and the part that I play in it." Taft added:

"I am naturally interested in General Eisenhower's views on various issues and the policies he intends to adopt when elected."

Taft said in response to a reporter's questions that he isn't "sore" about his defeat at the Chicago Convention, which was brought about at least in part by charges of Eisenhower backers that the Taft camp tried to "steal" southern delegates.

"I'm never sore—I'm of a forgiving nature," Taft remarked.

Government Will Attempt To Deport Frank Costello

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—Three of the biggest figures in America's underworld—Frank Costello, Joe Adonis and Anthony J. Accardo—today felt the weight of a new government crackdown on crime.

In swift action yesterday:

1. The justice department announced it will try to strip American citizenship from Costello, Italian-born rackett czar who came to this country at the age of four. Loss of citizenship could lead to deportation proceedings.

2. A federal grand jury indicated Adonis and Accardo for contempt of Congress, a charge stemming from their refusal to answer questions before the Kefauver crime investigating committee last year. Conviction would entail both fines and jail terms.

Atty.-Gen. McGranery said the attempt to cancel Coteslio's citizenship will be based on a charge that the dapper gambling operator who grew up in New York's tough Hell's Kitchen section neglected to disclose a criminal record when he applied for naturalization papers in 1925.

McGranery said Costello served a 10 months sentence in 1915 for carrying a pistol. His police record since then is voluminous, but he has avoided going to jail until last month, when he started an 18 months term for contempt of congress.

Costello's contempt conviction also grew out of the Kefauver crime hearings. Twice he defiantly walked out on Senate investigators, and consistently refused to answer questions about his finances and his association with such figures as William O'Dwyer,

Larger Hospital Plans Begin With Demolition Work

Stevenson Believes Campaign Success; Hits for Big Prize

Democratic Nominee Says Gains Are Steady; Will Speak in San Francisco

Seattle, Sept. 9 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson headed south today, hunting political gold in the hills of California, with the confident assertion his campaign is "going beautifully."

The Democratic presidential candidate is on a fast, wide-ranging tour of the western states.

Apparently heartened by the size of the crowds and the reception they have been giving him all along the line, Stevenson, for the first time, commented on the progress of his drive. He told a Democratic picnic audience in Portland, Ore.:

"I think I can say with confidence the campaign is going beautifully. I have seen the signs all the way from New York to the Pacific coast."

Sees Steady Gain

Earlier he said: "I figure we are gaining steadily."

His trip has taken him into Minnesota, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. In a gruelling round of speeches and appearances, the governor laid down the main ground work of his campaign, ridiculed and rebutted a long list of Republican campaign claims, and discussed regional issues in the various states.

But California, with 32 electoral votes, represents the biggest and most glittering prize of this tour.

Although it went Democratic in 1948 by a narrow margin, most western political analysts consider it a doubtful state this year. Democratic party registration for the June primary election was nearly 2,900,000, and the Republicans had some 2,100,000 on their rolls. Nearly a quarter-million voters declined to state a preference.

War to Have Effect

A California National Guard division, the 40th, has been fighting in Korea for months. Hence the war, the Far Eastern policy of the administration and American foreign policy as a whole are considered one of the big issues in this presidential election.

Stevenson's schedule plainly indicates the importance he places on this next leg of his tour.

He plans to spend two and a half days in the state, whereas some of his stops have lasted only as long as it took him to make a speech and return to his airplane.

His lieutenants indicated that his speech in San Francisco tonight—which will be delivered over a national radio and television hookup—will deal extensively with foreign policy. In previous speeches, he has strongly defended the actions of the Truman administration in the Orient and Europe.

Six Stops Slated

On Wednesday, he takes his first

Simpson Starts to Dismantle Foxhall Ave. Garage

Demolition work has begun on Foxhall avenue near Broadway to clear land for new hospital construction, it was learned today.

Harvey E. Simpson, who operates Simpson's Garage at 15 Foxhall avenue, one of "three key properties" to which Kingston Hospital took title during the past year, began removing the roof of the garage Saturday.

According to his agreement with the hospital, Simpson said today, he is permitted to remove the steel I-beams from the garage. He explained that this necessitates the removal of the roof.

Purchased by Hospital

All three properties purchased by the hospital, in anticipation of long-range expansion, are located on the west side of Foxhall avenue near Broadway.

The hospital took title to the garage and a brick structure, belonging to Mrs. Harvey Simpson, in October of last year. A second parcel of property was purchased from the Bruce family a little later.

Another small piece of property, now housing the two ambulances operated by the hospital, was purchased from the Rondout Savings Bank. The ambulances will ultimately be housed in the new construction, it is reported.

In Formative Period

Plans for new construction are still in the formative period, John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., president of the board of trustees, said today. Harry Halverson, Kingston architect, is preparing plans which will be submitted to the board in the near future.

Federal funds in the amount of $250,000 has been made available to the hospital under the Hill-Burton Act, supplementing approximately $600,000 raised in a fund drive held in 1950.

Administrator William Sheldon said today that final payment for pledges to the hospital was due August 15.

There will be an important meeting of the board at 7:30 p. m. Monday, Sept. 15, in the City Lab, it has been announced.

British Warship To Arrive Sept. 11

Naval Vessel Will Pay Visit in Honor of 300th Anniversary

Her Majesty's frigate, HMS Burghead Bay, will arrive Thursday for a four-day visit in celebration of Kingston's 300th anniversary.

The vessel, dispatched to Kingston as a gesture of British friendship, will tie up at the A. R. Newcombe Oil Company dock at Kingston Point. It will carry a complement of 155 men and 10 officers of the British Navy.

The Burghead Bay will play host to the people of Kingston from 2 to 5 p. m. Sunday, it was announced today by Kingston's 300th Anniversary, Inc. At that time the vessel, which displaces 2,400 tons and draws 13 feet of water, will be opened for public inspection.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, members of the Common Council and a few additional guests have been invited by Captain J. A. Ievers, OBE, the frigate's commanding officer, to attend an informal reception aboard the vessel Saturday evening.

Campaign Is Bolstered By Pledges

Eisenhower Aides Make No Attempt to Hide Elation at Warm Way Ohio Receives Him

Senator Is Waiting

Defeated Candidate Not Active Yet Until He Learns More

Cleveland, Sept. 9 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's bid for the presidency was bolstered today by word from key backers of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio that they were going all out to help elect him.

They declared they contemplated no "sit-down strike" against his candidacy even though they ardently supported Taft for the Republican presidential nomination that the general won.

That was the situation as the general took off by plane about 8:20 a. m. (EST) today for Indiana.

Eisenhower's aides made no attempt to conceal elation at the warm reception accorded him in Taft's home state.

Taft Is Waiting

Taft himself had not joined in the chorus. He said in Washington he wanted to learn more of the general's views before deciding how much of a role to play in the campaign.

But sources close to the senator said they had little doubt he would help the general's efforts to end the 20-year Democratic regime in Washington.

"Sen. Taft is a Republican," was the way one of them, Roger W. Tracy, Ohio state treasurer and a member of the Taft camp, summed it up to newsmen.

Certain of Support

"I am certain he will give his active support to General Eisenhower.

"There was a normal disappointment among all the people who worked for Sen. Taft that he was not nominated for the presidency. But he knows that this is no time for a sit-down strike. It would jeopardize not only the national ticket and the principles we stand for but would injure the Republican state ticket."

Meeting Planned

Eisenhower told a press conference he and Taft intended to meet soon, possibly within a week, although the time and place had not been set.

The General said the Senator, who has been vacationing, had informed him by telegram that any day after today he "will meet me gladly and I certainly will welcome him. That is the score."

Eisenhower could count these strides toward healing the Republican national convention rift between his and Taft's forces.

As he rode into Cleveland from the airport, after a flight from Minneapolis, he was flanked in an open car by Sen. John W. Bricker, a long-time Taft ally, and Taft's brother, Charles P., GOP candidate for governor of Ohio.

Fruitful Meeting

Bricker called upon a meeting of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland Republican leaders to back Eisenhower's candidacy wholeheartedly.

Charles Taft, wearing an "I like Ike" button, welcomed Eisenhower both at the airport and before a crowd gathered outside Cleveland's Carter Hotel.

He presented a new broom to the General and told him to use it in making a clean sweep of the Democratic administration.

Rep. Thomas Jenkins, dean of the Ohio Congressional delegation, announced that all Ohio Republican candidates for Congress had met and adopted a resolution pledging "active and enthusiastic support" for Eisenhower.

Rep. Frances P. Bolton, who seconded Taft's nomination at the Chicago convention, and Rep. William H. Ayres, of Akron, who campaigned in every part of his district for Sen. Taft prior to the convention, joined in the accoladies to the General.

Impresses Many

A number of Republicans attending the three-state meeting said they were impressed by the General's forceful comments and a tribute he gave to Sen. Taft.

Eisenhower lashed out at the

Senatorial Nomination Is Sought by Five in Statewide Race; Other Primaries

Milwaukee, Sept. 9 (AP) — Wisconsin voters perhaps 1,000,000 strong will decide today the political future of GOP Senator Joseph R. McCarthy.

The prospect of warm weather was expected to boost the normal vote total by about 400,000 in this primary election which has generated bitterness and controversy across the nation.

The state's 3,224 polling places were open from about 8 a. m., EST, to as late as 9 p. m.

The issue at stake was in the methods used by McCarthy in his announced drive to root Communists from the Democratic administration. Some people saw this campaign as the highest type of "Americanism." But there were others who looked on the McCarthy tactics as a "smear" campaign recklessly tainting the characters of innocent people.

His Chief Opponent

McCarthy's chief opponent was Leonard Schmitt, an upstate attorney who relied on marathon radio talks to carry his anti-McCarthy message to the people of Wisconsin. There were four others in the race for the GOP senatorial nomination but none was expected to be any real factor.

McCarthy was favored to win his second senatorial nomination. The known factor in the race was this:

How many Democrats had switched their vote to support the anti-McCarthy Republicans?

Wisconsin election laws permit such cross-voting because voters are not required to register by party affiliation.

A trend in the voting might not develop until after midnight due to a slow count resulting from long lists of candidates seeking local offices. In Milwaukee county alone there are 76 candidates running for the office of sheriff.

Tries for Big Majority

McCarthy was trying to get a big majority as a "vote of confidence" in his charges that subversive influences are at work in the Democratic administration. He charged Schmitt and others had used "Communist type" smear tactics against him.

In a radio broadcast last night, McCarthy said: "They are trying to prove they can make a scarred political corpse of anyone who dares to expose Communists in government."

Schmitt countered with a statement saying:

"I believe I have brought the issue of McCarthy's deplorable record to the people of Wisconsin. x x x I believe with all my heart that McCarthy represents a great political evil to Wisconsin and to

Inspection Angle Will Be Argued

A motion for inspection of the grand jury minutes in the Samuel Schifano first degree murder case, will be argued before Judge John M. Cashin in county court Friday. Counsel for the defendant, Senator Harry Gittelson, of New York, and Charles Gaffney, have made an application on behalf of defendant to inspect the grand jury minutes and Judge Cashin announced Monday afternoon that the matter would be heard Friday.

Until the motion for inspection of the grand jury minutes has been heard and decided, the trial of the case wil be delayed.

Death Occurred in June

Schifano is charged with having murdered Mrs. Emelia Nusca, 52, in her apartment in June. She died of wounds at St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie, on June 23. Schifano was also found wounded in the apartment but recovered from the wounds and stands charged by the grand jury with murder, first degree. Schifano, former Brooklyn resident, and Mrs. Nusca were found in the apartment badly wounded and nearby was a knife and hatchet. There had been mysterious telephone calls to state police during the day but the police were unable to locate the source of the calls immediately. When the troopers finally located the place, they found both victims in serious condition from the wounds and both were taken to the Poughkeepsie hospital. Mrs. Nusca's condition was so serious that it was impossible to secure a statement from her.

Seven MIGs Destroyed By Air Force

Battle Continues

Ground Fight Enters Fourth Day at Hill on Central Front

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 9 (AP)—The U. S. Fifth Air Force said allied jet pilots today destroyed seven Russian-built MIG 15s and damaged 12 in blocking 150 Red fighters from an allied air raid on a North Korean military academy near the Manchurian border.

All but one of the kills were confirmed.

It was the sixth straight day of jet battles over northwest Korea and raised the September bag of MIGs to 29 destroyed, one probably destroyed and 29 damaged. The record for a month is 44 Red jets destroyed last April.

The air force said the military academy—hit hard in a fourth of July raid—was pounded by high explosives from U. S. Thunderjets. Eighty sorties (individual flights) were flown in the strike. The air force said the academy, about 35 miles from the big Communist airfield at Antung in Manchuria, was being repaired.

Furious Battle Waged

South Korean and Chinese infantrymen battled furiously into the fourth day for control of Capitol Hill on the central front.

Troops of the crack Republic of Korea Capitol Division pulled back off the slopes of the shell scarred height to give UN artillery a wide open shot at the Chinese.

An allied officer said "as of this morning nobody owns the hill."

Gritty ROK infantrymen counterattacked the Chinese five times in the face of the heaviest Red artillery barrage of the war—48,000 rounds. They reachel the hill crest Monday but were thrown back.

The U. S. Eighth Army said the Reds in the 24-hour period ended at 6 p. m. Monday night raked the Capitol Hill sector with 15,000 rounds of artillery and mortar fire.

At Close Range

Much of the fighting has been at close range—with hand grenades, fists, clubs and daggers. At least 11 U.N. planes hit Chinese positions Monday afternoon.

The Eighth Army estimated Chinese casualties at 954 killed and wounded in the first 14 hours of fighting.

Chinese in the west early this morning threw a probing attack against U. S. marines on Bunker Hill on the western front. Sharpshooting leathernecks drove the 25 man group off after a brief exchange of fire.

The Fifth Air Force said B-26 Bombers last night attacked 54 Red vehicles hauling supplies near the front.

B-29 Superforts from Okinawa dropped 200 tons of bombs on Yangdok, a rail center midway between the North Korean capital of Pyongyang in the west and the shell-wrecked east coast port of Wonsan. The air force said Yangdok recently had been built up as a supply base for Red troops.

Recreation Fund Totals $13,605 for Area Distribution

Represents State Spending of $32,340 to Aid Programs in County

Ulster county towns and communities including the city of Kingston will receive $13,605.90 from the state as reimbursement for recreation projects carried out this year, it was announced today by the State Youth Commission.

The amount of state aid approved represents a total expenditure for recreation in the county of more than $32,340.80.

The city of Kingston alone will receive $2,158 from the state in the form of assistance for youth serving activities under the commission's program of recreation projects, youth service projects and youth bureaus, according to Lee C. Dowling, executive director of the Youth Commission.

The remainder of the state aid will go to 10 townships and four villages that made application for the recreation project state aid.

In the city, state grants for recreation are based on an allowance of 75 cents for each resident under 21 years of age. Townships may receive up to $1,000 a year, but must agree to match the state funds with at least a like amount of their own money.

The recreation projects eligible for state aid include summer playground programs, community sport and athletic activities, youth social hobby centers and organized programs in such fields as hiking, camping, acquatics, arts, and hobbies. The program was inaugurated in 1945 to assist municipalities in providing worthwhile leisure activities for youth, and since its inception the Youth Commission has provided funds in excess of $6,000,000 to municipalities in the state.

In Kingston, a diversified recreational year-round program is being carried out. The agency responsible for the conduct of the program is the Department of Recreation and Board of Public Works, of which Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk is chairman. Director of recreation is Andrew J. Murphy, 3rd.

Texas Democrats to Rule On Backing Eisenhower

Amarillo, Sept. 9 (AP)—Texas Democrats, for the first time in their stormy history, faced a showdown today on whether to run a Republican as their presidential nominee.

It was a clear-cut issue between Adlai Stevenson and Dwight D. Eisenhower. At stake were Texas' normally Democratic electoral votes.

A militant never-say-die bloc of states righters came into the convention ready for a last-ditch fight on a resolution naming Eisenhower as the nominee of the Democratic party in Texas.

Never before has such a resolution been prepared for a Texas Democratic convention.

Bucking them was Gov. Allan Shivers, who reluctantly advised Texas Democrats their only legal and ethical course was to make Stevenson their candidate and bind their electors to him. Shivers, at the same time, emphasized his distaste for the national convention's nominee.

Shivers broke with Stevenson when Illionis' governor said he could not back Texas claim to its tidelands. Shivers said that he cannot cast his own vote for Stevenson because the tidelands is just one of the several irreconcilable issues where they differ, including the FEPC.

Aligned with Shivers were the loyal Democrats, a minority bloc that has been battling to keep Texas Democrats solidly in line for the national convention's nominee, no matter whom he might be.

It was an alliance considered unpleasant both by Shivers and his former foes, who have been trading hard words for months.

On the eve of the convention, Shivers friends are believed to have a substantial working majority of about 900 votes of the session's 1,200-plus. The States Righters challenged this saying their ranks were growing hourly as they buttonholed delegates who might be wavering.

It was the most complicated situation the Democratic party has ever found itself in Texas.

Its leadership was asking approval of a presidential candidate and platform alien to the expressed beliefs of many. Numerous delegations were here from county conventions that had instructed them specifically to vote against Stevenson.

Their leaders said a Democratic ballot headed by Stevenson would deprive them of their votes as Democrats.

The loyalists delegations were specifically instructed to stand firm for the National party's nominees. Their leaders said a decision to head the Democratic ticket with a Republican would deprive them of their votes as Democrats.

Taft Backers Will Go All Out for General

Has Alternative

By JACK BELL

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower faces a major strategy decision when he sits down within the next few days to discuss with Sen. Robert A. Taft the Ohioan's role in the presidential campaign.

The Republican nominee then must resolve conflicting opinion in his own camp as to whether an attempt to enlist Taft's all-out help to try to mend the Taft-Eisenhower split in the party will be worth the cost he will be called upon to pay.

The cost will come in Democratic charges that Eisenhower has allowed himself to become a captive of the Taft wing on policies which the general's backers denounced before he was nominated.

The alternative would be to relegate Taft to a provincial role in the campaign and take the chance that the Ohio senator's followers will fall in line for the ticket by November.

Taft's Impression

This reporter comes away from talks with Taft with the impression the Ohio senator (1) is determined not to permit himself to be used to promote a "me-too" candidate and (2) that he wants Eisenhower's personal assurances that he will not install a "New Deal" administration if he is elected.

Taft, too, has an alternative. He can speak for individual Republican colleagues running for re-election to the Senate and mention the national ticket only in passing. It would not be difficult for his followers to catch any lack of enthusiasm he might display.

At this point, Taft can be said to be willing to make any reasonable effort to get Eisenhower elected, if he is satisfied with the over-all nature of Eisenhower's views.

But Taft said yesterday this will not include "whistle stop" tours. And he left unanswered, until after his conference with Eisenhower, the question of whether he will make a nationwide radio broadcast.

He said in a statement that he had had "a very friendly discussion" with GOP National Chairman Arthur Summerfield and Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, one of Eisenhower's chief advisers, about "the issues of the campaign, the conduct of the campaign and the part that I play in it." Taft added:

"I am naturally interested in General Eisenhower's views on various issues and the policies he intends to adopt when elected."

Taft said in response to a reporter's questions that he isn't "sore" about his defeat at the Chicago Convention, which was brought about at least in part by charges of Eisenhower backers that the Taft camp tried to "steal" southern delegates.

"I'm never sore—I'm of a forgiving nature," Taft remarked.

Larger Hospital Plans Begin With Demolition Work

Stevenson Believes Campaign Success; Hits for Big Prize

Democratic Nominee Says Gains Are Steady; Will Speak in San Francisco

Seattle, Sept. 9 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson headed south today, hunting political gold in the hills of California, with the confident assertion his campaign is "going beautifully."

The Democratic presidential candidate is on a fast, wide-ranging tour of the western states.

Apparently heartened by the size of the crowds and the reception they have been giving him all along the line, Stevenson, for the first time, commented on the progress of his drive. He told a Democratic picnic audience in Portland, Ore.:

"I think I can say with confidence the campaign is going beautifully. I have seen the signs all the way from New York to the Pacific coast."

Sees Steady Gain

Earlier he said: "I figure we are gaining steadily."

His trip has taken him into Minnesota, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. In a gruelling round of speeches and appearances, the governor laid down the main ground work of his campaign, ridiculed and rebutted a long list of Republican campaign claims, and discussed regional issues in the various states.

But California, with 32 electoral votes, represents the biggest and most glittering prize of this tour.

Although it went Democratic in 1948 by a narrow margin, most western political analysts consider it a doubtful state this year. Democratic party registration for the June primary election was nearly 2,900,000, and the Republicans had some 2,100,000 on their rolls. Nearly a quarter-million voters declined to state a preference.

War to Have Effect

A California National Guard division, the 40th, has been fighting in Korea for months. Hence the war, the Far Eastern policy of the administration and American foreign policy as a whole are considered one of the big issues in this presidential election.

Stevenson's schedule plainly indicates the importance he places on this next leg of his tour.

He plans to spend two and a half days in the state, whereas some of his stops have lasted only as long as it took him to make a speech and return to his airplane.

His lieutenants indicated that his speech in San Francisco tonight—which will be delivered over a national radio and television hookup—will deal extensively with foreign policy. In previous speeches, he has strongly defended the actions of the Truman administration in the Orient and Europe.

Six Stops Slated

Simpson Starts to Dismantle Foxhall Ave. Garage

Demolition work has begun on Foxhall avenue near Broadway to clear land for new hospital construction, it was learned today.

Harvey E. Simpson, who operates Simpson's Garage at 15 Foxhall avenue, one of "three key properties" to which Kingston Hospital took title during the past year, began removing the roof of the garage Saturday.

According to his agreement with the hospital, Simpson said today, he is permitted to remove the steel I-beams from the garage. He explained that this necessitates the removal of the roof.

Purchased by Hospital

All three properties purchased by the hospital, in anticipation of long-range expansion, are located on the west side of Foxhall avenue near Broadway.

The hospital took title to the garage and a brick structure, belonging to Mrs. Harvey Simpson, in October of last year. A second parcel of property was purchased from the Bruce family a little later.

Another small piece of property, now housing the two ambulances operated by the hospital, was purchased from the Rondout Savings Bank. The ambulances will ultimately be housed in the new construction, it is reported.

In Formative Period

Plans for new construction are still in the formative period, John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., president of the board of trustees, said today. Harry Halverson, Kingston architect, is preparing plans which will be submitted to the board in the near future.

Federal funds in the amount of $250,000 has been made available to the hospital under the Hill-Burton Act, supplementing approximately $600,000 raised in a fund drive held in 1950.

Administrator William Sheldon said today that final payment for pledges to the hospital was due August 15.

There will be an important meeting of the board at 7:30 p. m. Monday, Sept. 15, in the City Lab, it has been announced.

British Warship To Arrive Sept. 11

Naval Vessel Will Pay Visit in Honor of 300th Anniversary

Her Majesty's frigate, HMS Burghead Bay, will arrive Thursday for a four-day visit in celebration of Kingston's 300th anniversary.

The vessel, dispatched to Kingston as a gesture of British friendship, will tie up at the A. R. Newcombe Oil Company dock at Kingston Point. It will carry a complement of 155 men and 10 officers of the British Navy.

The Burghead Bay will play host to the people of Kingston from 2 to 5 p. m. Sunday, it was announced today by Kingston's 300th Anniversary, Inc. At that time the vessel, which displaces 2,400 tons and draws 13 feet of water, will be opened for public inspection.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, members of the Common Council and a few additional guests have been invited by Captain J. A. Ievers, OBE, the frigate's commanding officer, to attend an informal reception aboard the vessel Saturday evening.

Campaign Is Bolstered By Pledges

Eisenhower Aides Make No Attempt to Hide Elation at Warm Way Ohio Receives Him

Defeated Candidate Not Active Yet Until He Learns More

Cleveland, Sept. 9 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's bid for the presidency was bolstered today by word from key backers of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio that they were going all out to help elect him.

They declared they contemplated no "sit-down strike" against his candidacy even though they ardently supported Taft for the Republican presidential nomination that the general won.

That was the situation as the general took off by plane about 8:20 a. m. (EST) today for Indiana.

Eisenhower's aides made no attempt to conceal elation at the warm reception accorded him in Taft's home state.

Taft Is Waiting

Taft himself had not joined in the chorus. He said in Washington he wanted to learn more of the general's views before deciding how much of a role to play in the campaign.

But sources close to the senator said they had little doubt he would help the general's efforts to end the 20-year Democratic regime in Washington.

"Sen. Taft is a Republican," was the way one of them, Roger W. Tracy, Ohio state treasurer and a member of the Taft camp, summed it up to newsmen.

Certain of Support

"I am certain he will give his active support to General Eisenhower.

"There was a normal disappointment among all the people who worked for Sen. Taft that he was not nominated for the presidency. But he knows that this is no time for a sit-down strike. It would jeopardize not only the national ticket and the principles we stand for but would injure the Republican state ticket."

Meeting Planned

Eisenhower told a press conference he and Taft intended to meet soon, possibly within a week, although the time and place had not been set.

The General said the Senator, who has been vacationing, had informed him by telegram that any day after today he "will meet me gladly and I certainly will welcome him. That is the score."

Eisenhower could count these strides toward healing the Republican national convention rift between his and Taft's forces.

As he rode into Cleveland from the airport, after a flight from Minneapolis, he was flanked in an open car by Sen. John W. Bricker, a long-time Taft ally, and Taft's brother, Charles P., GOP candidate for governor of Ohio.

Fruitful Meeting

Bricker called upon a meeting of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland Republican leaders to back Eisenhower's candidacy wholeheartedly.

Charles Taft, wearing an "I like Ike" button, welcomed Eisenhower both at the airport and before a crowd gathered outside Cleveland's Carter Hotel.

He presented a new broom to the General and told him to use it in making a clean sweep of the Democratic administration.

Rep. Thomas Jenkins, dean of the Ohio Congressional delegation, announced that all Ohio Republican candidates for Congress had met and adopted a resolution pledging "active and enthusiastic support" for Eisenhower.

Rep. Frances P. Bolton, who seconded Taft's nomination at the Chicago convention, and Rep. William H. Ayres, of Akron, who campaigned in every part of his district for Sen. Taft prior to the convention, joined in the accoladies to the General.

Impresses Many

A number of Republicans attending the three-state meeting said they were impressed by the General's forceful comments and a tribute he gave to Sen. Taft.

Eisenhower lashed out at the Government Will Attempt To Deport Frank Costello

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—Three of the biggest figures in America's underworld—Frank Costello, Joe Adonis and Anthony J. Accardo—today felt the weight of a new government crackdown on crime.

In swift action yesterday:

1. The justice department announced it will try to strip American citizenship from Costello, Italian-born rackett czar who came to this country at the age of four. Loss of citizenship could lead to deportation proceedings.

2. A federal grand jury indicated Adonis and Accardo for contempt of Congress, a charge stemming from their refusal to answer questions before the Kefauver crime investigating committee last year. Conviction would entail both fines and jail terms.

Atty.-Gen. McGranery said the attempt to cancel Coteslio's citizenship will be based on a charge that the dapper gambling operator who grew up in New York's tough Hell's Kitchen section neglected to disclose a criminal record when he applied for naturalization papers in 1925.

McGranery said Costello served a 10 months sentence in 1915 for carrying a pistol. His police record since then is voluminous, but he has avoided going to jail until last month, when he started an 18 months term for contempt of congress.

Costello's contempt conviction also grew out of the Kefauver crime hearings. Twice he defiantly walked out on Senate investigators, and consistently refused to answer questions about his finances and his association with such figures as William O'Dwyer,

Huben Will Give Talk on Catskills At Yale Institute

Speaking before the Area Development Institute at Yale University Wednesday, Edward M. Huben, regional promotional director for the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, will tell the group the story of the development and growth of the Ulster-Greene Counties Vacationland organization and how it has brought to the area wide publicity and many benefits for resort owners.

Huben, who has spoken many times before travel agencies and resort owners in various parts of the country on the resort business, will be one of the speakers at the Institute forum which is being held at Yale University Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Representatives of utility companies throughout the north-eastern section of the United States, as well as many civic minded citizens and resort owners will attend the three-day session.

Will Cite Benefits

The story of the development of the Ulster-Greene Counties Vacationland organization over the past 10 years and the benefits which have come from cooperation of the resort owners of the area will be told by Huben to the group.

Those attending the Institute form an entirely new group and represent a new cross section of the country which will hear the story of the Catskill Mountain region and the land of Rip Van Winkle. Those attending the Institute come from the northeastern section of the United States and among the speakers at the Institute will be officials of public utility companies from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, and from the New England states.

Paul V. Hayden, director of public relations for the Connecticut Light and Power Company, is Institute chairman, and the welcome to the institute will be given by J. F. Gaskill, sales manager of Philadelphia Electric Company and chairman of the area development committee of Edison Electric Institute.

Tuesday's sessions will be devoted to registration and discussions on responsibilities of electric companies and the necessity for area development. A "civic development" panel will discuss that problem in the afternoon with Prof. Flavell Shurtleff of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as moderator.

Talks at Travel Panel

James L. Bossemeyer, executive vice president of the National Association of Travel Organizations, will be moderator at the Wednesday session which will be in the form of a recreation and travel panel. Huben will speak at 10 a. m. and will be followed by a report of the recreation business in New England.

Wednesday afternoon there will be a conservation and agriculture panel discussion with Dr. Paul Sears, head of the Department of Conservation, Yale University, as moderator. Edward R. Cotton, executive director of the Interstate Commerce on the Potomac River Basin, will participate. Thursday will be devoted to Industrial Development discussions.

Huben plans to tell the group of the success of the Ulster-Greene Counties Vacationland organization through interest of its members, co-operation among resort owners and the benefits of folders published by individual resort owners and by townships and associations within towns. He will include many ideas which have been presented to the resort owners and proprietors of summer resorts in the area at their annual sessions held locally over the past several years and share those successes with other resort operators of the east.

Local Vet Reaches West Coast City

Two Ulster county men, including one from Kingston, arrived in San Francisco, Calif., Friday aboard the Navy Transport General Nelson M. Walker after a trip from the Far East.

The Kingston veteran aboard was Cpl. Robert R. Brown, 10 Meadow street. The other county veteran was Sergeant First Class James V. Larsen, RFD 1, Wallkill.

Other area veterans returning include Cpl. Clarence M. Breen, Woodcliff avenue, Monticello; Cpl. Benjamin Van Keuren, 45 Fairview avenue, Poughkeepsie; and Sgt. Vincent R. Wyant, 32 Church street, Poughkeepsie.

The 3,480 army men were from Japan and Korea.

Child Health Conference To Be Held at Woodstock

A Child Health Conference conducted by the Ulster County Health Department will be held at the health center in Woodstock September 17 from 2 to 4 p. m.

These clinics are limited to infant and preschool children for the purpose of improving child health through early recognition of defects, advice regarding nutrition, instruction of parents in understanding of growth and development, handling of minor behavior difficulties and the administering of immunizations for smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough.

These are well child clinics for the maintenance of health and prevention of disease, not for the care of the sick child. Children under the regular health supervision of their own physician are not admitted unless the physician desires this service to be taken over by the child health conference. In this manner, duplication of service is avoided, facilitating the work of the private physician.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 9, 1952

ONLY EIGHTEEN STATES

Many of our politicians are loud in their praises of the gallant men and women in the armed forces. When it comes to doing something for them, that's another story. Despite the efforts of the administration and a few congressmen of both parties, almost nothing has been done to enable them to vote this fall. Congress failed to pass the federal voting law urged upon it, and most of the states have not been interested in doing their part. A survey made by the New York Times shows that only 18 states meet all the needed requirements for soldier voting.

These requirements are an absentee voting law, acceptance of a federal post card form of application for a ballot, waiving personal registration requirements, and sending out ballots at least 45 days before election. The last is the chief barrier. Despite their own experience with delays in military mail to sons abroad, few state legislators have drawn the necessary inference for mailing out ballots.

Because of this legislative lack of interest it has been estimated that at least 1,000,000 out of the 2,500,000 uniformed men and women will not be able to vote. Some politicians prefer it this way. It makes their own maneuvering easier.

Olympic athletes from Communist countries did fairly well at this year's games. After the games nine Hungarians even won a race away from slavery.

LIVING LONGER

The late Mark Sullivan said that the most important event in the twentieth century for the United States may not have been her participation in World War I but the increased expectancy of life that has been brought about over the years.

Sullivan, New York newspaper columnist and author of "Our Times," a striking account of American social life from 1900 to 1925, made that statement in the year 1926. Had he been writing today he would doubtless have put it even more strongly, for the health of the individual has been greatly advanced since that time.

This is made clear in a new book issued by the Brookings Institution of Washington, entitled "Health Resources of the United States." In 1901, we are told, an infant's chances of reaching the age of 25 were 75 per cent. In 1940 they were 90. In 1901 only 39 per cent of the adults of 50 reached 75. Now the figure is 46 per cent. The death rate for infants under one year has dropped between 1901 and 1940 from 162.4 for every 1,000 births to 31.3.

This high development of public health is a national asset which it would be difficult to match elsewhere.

With all the fancy new weed killers on the market, you'd think the pesky garden varmints would give up in disgust. But they'll most likely be around another season.

SCHUMAN'S NEW PLAN

Robert Schuman is at it again. The French Foreign Minister who gave his name to the Schuman Plan for pooling the coal and steel of Western Europe, which is now going into operation, is trying to settle another international problem. This is the disposition of the Saar Valley, which for iron and steel resembles the Pittsburgh area and which is coveted by Germany, which owned it from 1814 to the end of the war, and by France, which has controlled its destinies since then. Schuman is tackling this problem on his own, as is his way when difficult negotiations are to be undertaken.

A Franco-German partnership is his present aim. For a time he played with the idea of annexing the Sarr to France, to reduce Germany's ability to manufacture munitions. Now he is working along the lines which characterize the Schuman plan, cooperation rather than one-power ownership.

It is amazing how Schuman has overcome his handicap of having lived as a German subject for the first 33 years of his life. He is a Lorrainer, and has been a French citizen only since France regained his lost province in the Treaty of Versailles. The French are normally suspicious of statesmen who have a foreign origin or close foreign associations, and particularly of those who come to France from her hereditary enemy, Germany.

If Schuman can work out a settlement for the vexing Saar problem, he will deserve well of his adopted country and the world.

AGE AND VOTERS

It used to be, in this country, that people were born, voted at the age of 21, and in due course died without anyone worrying too much about the politics of it. Nowadays, however, this process affects the tax rate, both national and local, and is therefore very political.

Years ago, my friend, Ben Affleck, now deceased, who manufactured cement, argued lengthily on the relationship of cement to births. He was regarded as a fanatic on the subject. He watched birth statistics in all the areas where he sold cement and had charts to show how many children would enter school on their sixth year and how many would reach high school. By these figures, he could calculate whether new schools would be required and whether parents would be seeking larger homes.

Affleck's law of the relation of cement to schools and taxes applies now to all our age groups. Involved is conscription which takes out of the population a sizable group of boys and even girls who would be about to get their first jobs. The competitive factor of youth in the job-hunting areas is therefore delayed a year or two.

A factor, often disregarded in most discussions of this problem, is that the United States from 1929 to 1940, for a decade, suffered an unemployment problem which, at times, reached 10,000,000. The New Deal subsidized unemployment by various devices, all based on increased taxes and the redistribution of wealth. World War II did put an end to unemployment.

The worker, whose memory is longer than the politician's, remembers this period and has persistently demanded a guaranteed job or an annual wage, or a subsidy. More or less, he now has all three, assured by the government in the form of government purchases and old age pensions as well as state paid unemployment compensation, some form of union shop forbidding dismissal except under specific stipulations supervised by the National Labor Relations Board, State Labor Relations Boards, FEPC, etc.

The calculable result of all this is that taxes rise, the currency depreciates, and the most productive age group, that is from 20 to 64, carries too heavy a burden to enjoy the advantages of their parents to equality of opportunity.

And to have full employment, the politicians have hit upon war and the preparation for war as the easiest means. That requires a huge military budget, higher taxes, increased national debt and further depreciation of currency.

There are now 13,000,000 of those between the ages of 65 and death and their number is increasing as the antibiotics and other inventions of science prolong life. It used to be that a man saved for his old age and proudly rejected charity, except from his loving children. Religion and ethics taught children to respect, honor and support their parents as they had been nurtured by them. Today, with taxes what they are and the high cost of living going higher constantly, it becomes increasingly difficult to save. Actually, the figures for 1950 show an average indebtedness of $400 per capita. This belies other figures which show savings from which must be deducted obligations assumed by time-purchases.

Also the young people are hard pressed by the delayed opportunities for advancement and by the high cost of setting up a home and maintaining a family. The aged papa and mamma become a severe drain. Therefore the constant demand for increasing pensions.

As industry too often insists upon a stupid policy of avoiding the employment of workers over 50 and the compulsory retirement of management at 65, the pensioners of both government and private funds will inevitably increase. These retirement policies are stupid because they are arbitrary and unrelated to ability, stamina, experience, knowledge and skill, and current longevity tables.

The voting population of the United States could amount to nearly 100,000,000 persons. Of this number about 45,000,000 are between the ages of 45 and death; and of that number, 13,000,000 are over 65. It is obvious from these figures that, by age groups, the center of political power is among those between 50 and 70, that is the pensioners. In 1948, 48,000,000 Americans voted for President. With an increased population, and assuming a similar response to political importunities, maybe 50,000,000 will vote in 1952. On that basis, the pensioners can become the dominant political factor. The politicians who put their accent on youth have their tongues in their cheeks.

EFFECTIVE TREATMENT IN PRURITIS

One of the distressing and embarrassing ailments of both men and women is itching (prurtitis) of the genital organs and outer opening of lower end of large bowel. While mild cases of pruritis of these parts can be relieved by simple treatment, such as applying calamine lotion, severe pruritis often requires an ointment containing cocaine to give relief, and then for only short periods of time.

It is not surprising to learn that adrenocorticone hormone (ACTH) has been tried in anogenital pruritis. In the Journal of Investigative Dermatology, Drs. J. L. Fromer and F. E. Cormica report that the first of the four patients on whom ACTH was tried had had anogenital pruritis for twenty years. Various treatments, including the use of local remedies applied directly to the itching parts, antihistamine drugs and X-rays, proved ineffective. Treatment with corticotropin (ACTH) was begun with a dose of 100 mg. daily for three days and, after that, 50 mg. daily for three days, and after that a maintenance or holding dose of 10 mg. daily.

The pruritis showed improvement within 24 hours after the treatment started and disappeared entirely after three days. There has been no return of the itching during the four months that have elapsed since then. In the three other patients, the immediate effect of corticotropin (ACTH) was equally favorable, but one of these patients had a relapse after two months.

Drs. Fromer and Cormia are unable to explain the mode of action of corticotropin in anogenital pruritis.

While four patients is a small number, it must be remembered that these four patients had tried all the known treatments, including the latest treatment by antihistamine drugs and also by the use of X-ray treatments. It is only fair to say that X-ray treatment of skin ailments has been the most popular and the most successful method of treating practically all varieties of skin diseases.

The fact, then, that these four patients had undergone all known forms of treatment without success, including X-rays, and obtained no relief from their distressing symptoms until ACTH was used, shows the effectiveness of this rightly named miracle drug.

"Isn't It Getting Sorta Frazzled, Buster?"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Today, at long, last the armed services will start doing what they promised to do six years ago—pool their buying of supplies instead of competing against each other.

Only after hearings by Congressman Eddie Hebert of Louisiana, backed by Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia and Congressman Jack Anderson of California, plus a lot of badgering by this columnist, have the army, navy and air force finally consented to do the common sense thing—buy in cooperation with each other, not as if the other branches were parts of the Red army.

This was one of the big arguments put forward when the brass hats begged for unification. Millions of dollars, they argued, would be saved.

Instead, as revealed by this column last February, the army bought six different types of carpenters' squares—one for the signal corps, ordnance, transportation, chemical warfare, engineers, and quartermaster, at prices ranging from 65 cents to $2.19.

Boots and Nails

The air force paid 12 cents a pound for 10-penny nails while the navy paid six cents for exactly the same nails . . . The marines buy a combat boot for $16.80; the navy buys exactly the same boot for $24.65 . . . The air force dress shoe costs $7.19; the navy dress shoe costs $6.08. They are almost identical except for some stitching on the heel. The air force bought 1,700,000 dress shoes, thus could have saved $1,700,000 if it had bought the navy shoe . . . The medical services paid $21.75 each for blankets; the air force $14.15; the navy $19.57.

The armed services also overorder, thus waste money on warehouse space. The navy now has enough anchors to last 50 years, the army enough of certain jeep parts to last 104 years . . . The army, navy and marine corps insist on having their own rival coffee-roasting plants . . . The army and navy operate separate medical supply systems, frequently buying the same scarce items in competition with each other. The army has a medical supply base in Atlanta, Ga. Yet when the navy base at Pensacola, Fla., nearby, wants medical supplies, it gets them not from Atlanta, but from a navy depot at Edgewater, N. J. . . . Likewise, when the army at Fort Dix, N. J., wants medical supplies, it gets them not from the navy at Edgewater, N. J., but from Schenectady, N. Y.

Amazing fact is that after the armed forces put across unification, they privately forgot all about one of their main arguments for unification. And the civilian head of the Defense Department did little to make the brass hats cooperate. Even when this column published an expose of overlapping buying last winter, it brought a series of Pentagon denials.

Inescapable facts is that the biggest expenditures in government are by the military. In contrast, civilian expenditures are almost infinitesimal. But today, the military has finally admitted its mistake and will begin at least one saving by adopting a unified purchase plan.

Time for a Change

Certain significant elections around the country already make it look as if U. S. voters really have decided it's "time for a change." Though the changes sometimes have gone against the Republicans, nevertheless the present temper of the American people is to end the political life of certain political phonies and hate-mongers. Here are some they have already kicked out:

Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine—After a quarter of a century of dominating the Republican party in Maine, Brewster was ousted by Progressive Gov. Fred Payne. The people of Maine had got wise to the manner in which Brewster was working for Dictator Franco of Spain, Pan American Airways, and others.

Congressman John Rankin of Mississippi — This rootin'-tootin' hate disseminator was considered unbeatable in his district. He has spewed more intolerance than any other congressman since Bilbo, was the man who first whispered that Eisenhower was a Jew because of a kidding reference in the West Point Year Book to Ike as "Swedish Jew." Last month, the people of Mississippi finally outsted Rankin.

The Republican Machine in Philadelphia — Almost continually since the Civil War, the so-called city of brotherly love was ruled by a Republican machine. It was considered unbeatable. Last year, however, GOP corruption got so bad that the Democrats kicked the Republicans out. Philadelphia is now run by a new Democratic administration.

Sen. Kenneth McKellar—Down in Tennessee, doddering Senator McKellar, long considered unbeatable, had served in Congress for close to half a century. But despite the backing of the Crump machine, Tennessee voters have just kicked him out.

Senator McCarran's Nevada Machine — For years McCarran has dominated the State of Nevada. But last week, a 31-year-old ex-newsman, Tom Mechling, relatively unknown in Nevade, defeated McCarran's law partner plus the full weight of the McCarran machine. This was purely a Democrat fight, but it was indicative of the American public's desire for a change.

In Wisconsin today, there's another battle to end another false political god. State Senator Len Schmitt, a hard-fighting Republican is challenging Senator McCarthy, who has the backing of the powerful Coleman machine, plus his old critic, Governor Kohler, who has now strangely made peace with McCarthy.

Under these circumstances it seems impossible for Schmitt to win. However, a big vote rolled up in this primary also many indicate that the people of Wisconsin likewise are ready for a change.

Texas Merry-Go-Round

Speaker Sam Rayburn is giving the cold shoulder to the Democratic convention in Amarillo today. . . . Several Texas congressmen have already declared for Eisenhower, including John E. Lyle of Corpus Christi and Lloyd Bentsen of McAllen. . . . Congressman Olin E. Teague, returning from Los Angeles, seems sympathetic to Ike, but remarked that the scant 12,000 who heard him at the Coliseum didn't make his chances appear too bright. . . . Since then, Ikeites have been careful about his crowds. When they first proposed that Ike speak in Philadelphia one day before the Labor Day weekend, Pennsylvania's Governor Fine warned that few people would be around to hear him near a weekend. That was why Ike's Philadelphia speech was shifted to September 4—three days after Labor Day. . . . In San Antonio, Sheriff Owen Kilday, boss of that city, indicates he may support Eisenhower, but says he'll consult his two brothers first. One brother is the congressman from San Antonio, the other is an assistant in the Justice Department, which Eisenhower is attacking as corruption-ridden.

The "Lightning" Locomotive

The locomotive "Lightning", built by the American Locomotive Co. at Schenectady, N. Y, in 1849 for the Utica and Schenectady Railroad. This engine weighed 15 tons, had a single pair of 84-inch drive wheels and once hauled eight coaches 16 miles in 13 minutes. Ahead of her time, she was retired to keep her from pounding the tracks to pieces.

Stevenson Should Know More About Newspaper Score Than He Pretends

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 9—Governor Stevenson is supposed to have gotten around in his time and to have learned the "score"—especially as it relates to the attitude of many of the editorial writers of the country toward the Democratic party in recent years.

Yet the Illinois governor now says he doesn't know why most of the newspapers editorially have been "against Democrats."

In the first place, this statement is not true. The press has never been against "Democrats" as such but against candidates and officeholders who call themselves Democrats but who are in reality faithless to their party history and to the original creed of Thomas Jefferson.

The governor said that the treatment being accorded him in the news columns is fair and impartial. He might have added that in the last 20 years the treatment in the news columns accorded to both Presidents Roosevelt and Truman has been so abundant on the quantitative basis that presidential elections have been won largely because of this advantage in publicity which the incumbent administration has enjoyed.

No other administration in history has had the benefit of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money for press agents, radio experts, information specialists and press-relations officers. Day by day and week after week, they have poured forth a stream of publicity in the guise of "official" news which has given many a person a lopsided view of controversial subjects. There is no such thing as an opposition publicity bureau by the Republicans or anybody else between presidential campaigns. As between "front-page news" and editorial pages, the scientifically conducted readership surveys taken from time to time show that whoever has the front pages regularly gets far more reading than whoever is supported on the editorial pages.

Governor Stevenson may not know it, but the trend of editorial expression opposed to the "New Deal" and the "Fair Deal" has not been due to any feeling of dislike for the Democratic party as such but is really a protest against the propaganda of the scheming individuals who have taken over the Democratic party. Many persons who oppose the "New Deal" and "Fair Deal" type of administration have no liking for the Republican party at all, and this year it is unquestionably true that General Eisenhower is far more popular than the Republican party itself—and largely because he himself has never been an active political leader. If the Republican party gets in and goes wrong, it, too, will earn the opposition of the press. This is proved in dozens of state and local elections during the last 20 years where Republican newspapers have fought Republican machines and their candidates.

Though the editorial writers of the nation and the editors generally are quite capable of speaking for themselves in explaining why they have been against the "New Deal" and the "Fair Deal" and have given their viewpoint extensively to their readers from day to day, Governor Stevenson might possibly suspect the real reason if he has been reading the news of what the administration has been doing for the last 20 years.

For the American press is not in favor of state socialism or communism or "left wingism." Radicalism today all boils down to one objectionable formula, no matter whether it takes the label "New Deal" or "Fair Deal." That formula means the eventual confiscation of private property in America and the destruction of the savings of the individual. That formula also means favoritism for the party's henchmen and a renunciation of the Jeffersonian principle—"equal rights for all, special privilege for none."

In the last 20 years the purchasing power of the American dollar has been confiscated, the earnings of private property and individual incomes have been taxed more heavily in peacetime than in wartime, government has entered into competition with its citizens and furnished funds to carry on that competition, government has imposed "thought control" by allowing workers to be compelled to join a union whether or not they believe in trade unionism, and there has been an effort to coerce the states into subservience to the will of the federal government in matters of education and the regulation of employment.

The drift of the "New Deal" and "Fair Deal" has been toward the "left." The American press traditionally has defended the liberty of the individual and his right to save his earnings. That's why it has lined up again and again in opposition to the confiscationists, whether they seek to destroy liberty by "packing" the Supreme Court of the United States or by spending the savings of the country with the excuse that they are benefiting social welfare.

The Democratic presidential nominee said in his Oregon speech that many newspapers had jumped to the support of General Eisenhower even before they knew what the Democratic platform or who the candidate would be. That's right, because 'most everybody knew in advance that the Democratic nominee would have to stand on the Truman record and most of the newspapers, after more than three years of observation, had already made up their minds that a vote for the Democratic nominee, no matter how good he himself might be, was merely a vote to approve and vindicate one of the most irresponsible administrations in American history.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The police of Yonkers, N. Y., say they are trying to find and make a case against the murderer of John Acropolis, the boss of elements of the Teamsters' Union, who was found shot dead in his apartment. I am not confident that they will succeed. It is a poor police force, with loose discipline and low standards and some of the cops conceivably could have reasons to maul the case around, as happened in the Hall-Mills job in New Brunswick years ago, destroy evidence and tip off witnesses.

However, for any light that it may throw on the character and affairs of Johnny Acropolis, I present a letter which he wrote me in Aug. 1943. He led off with the statement that he shared my low opinion of Joe Fay, the extortioner and thug who was vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers until he finally went to prison for ten years.

"My experiences with Fay bear out all you say," Acropolis wrote. "I would like to underscore every epithet you have applied to him and add a few of my own. I was representing drivers, members of Westchester Local 456 of the Teamsters working in the N. Y. trap rock quarries at Verplancks, N. Y. I tried to attend a meeting of working men of various trades in those quarries and their respective business representatives. I was forced by two of Fay's muggs, of whom you have written, Wallace and Pete Weber, to get out the hall without even stating what provisions we were going to ask for."

These are very tough goons as they had to be to push Acropolis around for he was a stand-up fellow and a star athlete with 'varsity experience at Colgate.

"The men were told that they would all be given a 10c per hour increase and would have to take it.

"I took my case to Mike Cashall, our international vice president, a friend of Fay's, who blandly suggested that Fay handle the negotiations for our teamsters. Now District Attorney Hogan reveals that N. Y. Trap Rock admits paying Fay $12,000. This leads me to the point that I want to bring to your attention. Will you not write plainly on the conspiracy between the labor organizations and the courts to prevent the rank and file from carrying their grievances to the courts like other ordinary citizens?

"You wrote on June 17th that Dan Tobin (president of the teamsters and member of the executive council of the AF of L) 'has been known to repudiate the public courts and the American system of justice and forbid his subjects to resort to them.' That is true. Do you know that when the rank and file rebels and disobeys Tobin's orders and takes its case to the courts, they are referred back to the international whose callous disregard for the workers' rights drove the men to the courts in the first place?

"That is exactly what happened to Local 456. We fought Patrick Pearce, a bosom friend of William McGeory and Martin Parkinson, both now under indictment for extortion on that same Delaware aqueduct job. However, our appeal to the courts was thrown out and registered letters to the international were refused ac-

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 9, 1952

ONLY EIGHTEEN STATES

Many of our politicians are loud in their praises of the gallant men and women in the armed forces. When it comes to doing something for them, that's another story. Despite the efforts of the administration and a few congressmen of both parties, almost nothing has been done to enable them to vote this fall. Congress failed to pass the federal voting law urged upon it, and most of the states have not been interested in doing their part. A survey made by the New York Times shows that only 18 states meet all the needed requirements for soldier voting.

These requirements are an absentee voting law, acceptance of a federal post card form of application for a ballot, waiving personal registration requirements, and sending out ballots at least 45 days before election. The last is the chief barrier. Despite their own experience with delays in military mail to sons abroad, few state legislators have drawn the necessary inference for mailing out ballots.

Because of this legislative lack of interest it has been estimated that at least 1,000,000 out of the 2,500,000 uniformed men and women will not be able to vote. Some politicians prefer it this way. It makes their own maneuvering easier.

Olympic athletes from Communist countries did fairly well at this year's games. After the games nine Hungarians even won a race away from slavery.

LIVING LONGER

The late Mark Sullivan said that the most important event in the twentieth century for the United States may not have been her participation in World War I but the increased expectancy of life that has been brought about over the years.

Sullivan, New York newspaper columnist and author of "Our Times," a striking account of American social life from 1900 to 1925, made that statement in the year 1926. Had he been writing today he would doubtless have put it even more strongly, for the health of the individual has been greatly advanced since that time.

This is made clear in a new book issued by the Brookings Institution of Washington, entitled "Health Resources of the United States." In 1901, we are told, an infant's chances of reaching the age of 25 were 75 per cent. In 1940 they were 90. In 1901 only 39 per cent of the adults of 50 reached 75. Now the figure is 46 per cent. The death rate for infants under one year has dropped between 1901 and 1940 from 162.4 for every 1,000 births to 31.3.

This high development of public health is a national asset which it would be difficult to match elsewhere.

With all the fancy new weed killers on the market, you'd think the pesky garden varmints would give up in disgust. But they'll most likely be around another season.

SCHUMAN'S NEW PLAN

Robert Schuman is at it again. The French Foreign Minister who gave his name to the Schuman Plan for pooling the coal and steel of Western Europe, which is now going into operation, is trying to settle another international problem. This is the disposition of the Saar Valley, which for iron and steel resembles the Pittsburgh area and which is coveted by Germany, which owned it from 1814 to the end of the war, and by France, which has controlled its destinies since then. Schuman is tackling this problem on his own, as is his way when difficult negotiations are to be undertaken.

A Franco-German partnership is his present aim. For a time he played with the idea of annexing the Sarr to France, to reduce Germany's ability to manufacture munitions. Now he is working along the lines which characterize the Schuman plan, cooperation rather than one-power ownership.

It is amazing how Schuman has overcome his handicap of having lived as a German subject for the first 33 years of his life. He is a Lorrainer, and has been a French citizen only since France regained his lost province in the Treaty of Versailles. The French are normally suspicious of statesmen who have a foreign origin or close foreign associations, and particularly of those who come to France from her hereditary enemy, Germany.

If Schuman can work out a settlement for the vexing Saar problem, he will deserve well of his adopted country and the world.

AGE AND VOTERS

It used to be, in this country, that people were born, voted at the age of 21, and in due course died without anyone worrying too much about the politics of it. Nowadays, however, this process affects the tax rate, both national and local, and is therefore very political.

Years ago, my friend, Ben Affleck, now deceased, who manufactured cement, argued lengthily on the relationship of cement to births. He was regarded as a fanatic on the subject. He watched birth statistics in all the areas where he sold cement and had charts to show how many children would enter school on their sixth year and how many would reach high school. By these figures, he could calculate whether new schools would be required and whether parents would be seeking larger homes.

Affleck's law of the relation of cement to schools and taxes applies now to all our age groups. Involved is conscription which takes out of the population a sizable group of boys and even girls who would be about to get their first jobs. The competitive factor of youth in the job-hunting areas is therefore delayed a year or two.

A factor, often disregarded in most discussions of this problem, is that the United States from 1929 to 1940, for a decade, suffered an unemployment problem which, at times, reached 10,000,000. The New Deal subsidized unemployment by various devices, all based on increased taxes and the redistribution of wealth. World War II did put an end to unemployment.

The worker, whose memory is longer than the politician's, remembers this period and has persistently demanded a guaranteed job or an annual wage, or a subsidy. More or less, he now has all three, assured by the government in the form of government purchases and old age pensions as well as state paid unemployment compensation, some form of union shop forbidding dismissal except under specific stipulations supervised by the National Labor Relations Board, State Labor Relations Boards, FEPC, etc.

The calculable result of all this is that taxes rise, the currency depreciates, and the most productive age group, that is from 20 to 64, carries too heavy a burden to enjoy the advantages of their parents to equality of opportunity.

And to have full employment, the politicians have hit upon war and the preparation for war as the easiest means. That requires a huge military budget, higher taxes, increased national debt and further depreciation of currency.

There are now 13,000,000 of those between the ages of 65 and death and their number is increasing as the antibiotics and other inventions of science prolong life. It used to be that a man saved for his old age and proudly rejected charity, except from his loving children. Religion and ethics taught children to respect, honor and support their parents as they had been nurtured by them. Today, with taxes what they are and the high cost of living going higher constantly, it becomes increasingly difficult to save. Actually, the figures for 1950 show an average indebtedness of $400 per capita. This belies other figures which show savings from which must be deducted obligations assumed by time-purchases.

Also the young people are hard pressed by the delayed opportunities for advancement and by the high cost of setting up a home and maintaining a family. The aged papa and mamma become a severe drain. Therefore the constant demand for increasing pensions.

As industry too often insists upon a stupid policy of avoiding the employment of workers over 50 and the compulsory retirement of management at 65, the pensioners of both government and private funds will inevitably increase. These retirement policies are stupid because they are arbitrary and unrelated to ability, stamina, experience, knowledge and skill, and current longevity tables.

The voting population of the United States could amount to nearly 100,000,000 persons. Of this number about 45,000,000 are between the ages of 45 and death; and of that number, 13,000,000 are over 65. It is obvious from these figures that, by age groups, the center of political power is among those between 50 and 70, that is the pensioners. In 1948, 48,000,000 Americans voted for President. With an increased population, and assuming a similar response to political importunities, maybe 50,000,000 will vote in 1952. On that basis, the pensioners can become the dominant political factor. The politicians who put their accent on youth have their tongues in their cheeks.

EFFECTIVE TREATMENT IN PRURITIS

One of the distressing and embarrassing ailments of both men and women is itching (prurtitis) of the genital organs and outer opening of lower end of large bowel. While mild cases of pruritis of these parts can be relieved by simple treatment, such as applying calamine lotion, severe pruritis often requires an ointment containing cocaine to give relief, and then for only short periods of time.

It is not surprising to learn that adrenocorticone hormone (ACTH) has been tried in anogenital pruritis. In the Journal of Investigative Dermatology, Drs. J. L. Fromer and F. E. Cormica report that the first of the four patients on whom ACTH was tried had had anogenital pruritis for twenty years. Various treatments, including the use of local remedies applied directly to the itching parts, antihistamine drugs and X-rays, proved ineffective. Treatment with corticotropin (ACTH) was begun with a dose of 100 mg. daily for three days and, after that, 50 mg. daily for three days, and after that a maintenance or holding dose of 10 mg. daily.

The pruritis showed improvement within 24 hours after the treatment started and disappeared entirely after three days. There has been no return of the itching during the four months that have elapsed since then. In the three other patients, the immediate effect of corticotropin (ACTH) was equally favorable, but one of these patients had a relapse after two months.

Drs. Fromer and Cormia are unable to explain the mode of action of corticotropin in anogenital pruritis.

While four patients is a small number, it must be remembered that these four patients had tried all the known treatments, including the latest treatment by antihistamine drugs and also by the use of X-ray treatments. It is only fair to say that X-ray treatment of skin ailments has been the most popular and the most successful method of treating practically all varieties of skin diseases.

The fact, then, that these four patients had undergone all known forms of treatment without success, including X-rays, and obtained no relief from their distressing symptoms until ACTH was used, shows the effectiveness of this rightly named miracle drug.

"Isn't It Getting Sorta Frazzled, Buster?"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Today, at long, last the armed services will start doing what they promised to do six years ago—pool their buying of supplies instead of competing against each other.

Only after hearings by Congressman Eddie Hebert of Louisiana, backed by Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia and Congressman Jack Anderson of California, plus a lot of badgering by this columnist, have the army, navy and air force finally consented to do the common sense thing—buy in cooperation with each other, not as if the other branches were parts of the Red army.

This was one of the big arguments put forward when the brass hats begged for unification. Millions of dollars, they argued, would be saved.

Instead, as revealed by this column last February, the army bought six different types of carpenters' squares—one for the signal corps, ordnance, transportation, chemical warfare, engineers, and quartermaster, at prices ranging from 65 cents to $2.19.

Boots and Nails

The air force paid 12 cents a pound for 10-penny nails while the navy paid six cents for exactly the same nails . . . The marines buy a combat boot for $16.80; the navy buys exactly the same boot for $24.65 . . . The air force dress shoe costs $7.19; the navy dress shoe costs $6.08. They are almost identical except for some stitching on the heel. The air force bought 1,700,000 dress shoes, thus could have saved $1,700,000 if it had bought the navy shoe . . . The medical services paid $21.75 each for blankets; the air force $14.15; the navy $19.57.

The armed services also overorder, thus waste money on warehouse space. The navy now has enough anchors to last 50 years, the army enough of certain jeep parts to last 104 years . . . The army, navy and marine corps insist on having their own rival coffee-roasting plants . . . The army and navy operate separate medical supply systems, frequently buying the same scarce items in competition with each other. The army has a medical supply base in Atlanta, Ga. Yet when the navy base at Pensacola, Fla., nearby, wants medical supplies, it gets them not from Atlanta, but from a navy depot at Edgewater, N. J. . . . Likewise, when the army at Fort Dix, N. J., wants medical supplies, it gets them not from the navy at Edgewater, N. J., but from Schenectady, N. Y.

Amazing fact is that after the armed forces put across unification, they privately forgot all about one of their main arguments for unification. And the civilian head of the Defense Department did little to make the brass hats cooperate. Even when this column published an expose of overlapping buying last winter, it brought a series of Pentagon denials.

Inescapable facts is that the biggest expenditures in government are by the military. In contrast, civilian expenditures are almost infinitesimal. But today, the military has finally admitted its mistake and will begin at least one saving by adopting a unified purchase plan.

Time for a Change

Certain significant elections around the country already make it look as if U. S. voters really have decided it's "time for a change." Though the changes sometimes have gone against the Republicans, nevertheless the present temper of the American people is to end the political life of certain political phonies and hate-mongers. Here are some they have already kicked out:

Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine—After a quarter of a century of dominating the Republican party in Maine, Brewster was ousted by Progressive Gov. Fred Payne. The people of Maine had got wise to the manner in which Brewster was working for Dictator Franco of Spain, Pan American Airways, and others.

Congressman John Rankin of Mississippi — This rootin'-tootin' hate disseminator was considered unbeatable in his district. He has spewed more intolerance than any other congressman since Bilbo, was the man who first whispered that Eisenhower was a Jew because of a kidding reference in the West Point Year Book to Ike as "Swedish Jew." Last month, the people of Mississippi finally outsted Rankin.

The Republican Machine in Philadelphia — Almost continually since the Civil War, the so-called city of brotherly love was ruled by a Republican machine. It was considered unbeatable. Last year, however, GOP corruption got so bad that the Democrats kicked the Republicans out. Philadelphia is now run by a new Democratic administration.

Sen. Kenneth McKellar—Down in Tennessee, doddering Senator McKellar, long considered unbeatable, had served in Congress for close to half a century. But despite the backing of the Crump machine, Tennessee voters have just kicked him out.

Senator McCarran's Nevada Machine — For years McCarran has dominated the State of Nevada. But last week, a 31-year-old ex-newsman, Tom Mechling, relatively unknown in Nevade, defeated McCarran's law partner plus the full weight of the McCarran machine. This was purely a Democrat fight, but it was indicative of the American public's desire for a change.

In Wisconsin today, there's another battle to end another false political god. State Senator Len Schmitt, a hard-fighting Republican is challenging Senator McCarthy, who has the backing of the powerful Coleman machine, plus his old critic, Governor Kohler, who has now strangely made peace with McCarthy.

Under these circumstances it seems impossible for Schmitt to win. However, a big vote rolled up in this primary also many indicate that the people of Wisconsin likewise are ready for a change.

Texas Merry-Go-Round

Speaker Sam Rayburn is giving the cold shoulder to the Democratic convention in Amarillo today. . . . Several Texas congressmen have already declared for Eisenhower, including John E. Lyle of Corpus Christi and Lloyd Bentsen of McAllen. . . . Congressman Olin E. Teague, returning from Los Angeles, seems sympathetic to Ike, but remarked that the scant 12,000 who heard him at the Coliseum didn't make his chances appear too bright. . . . Since then, Ikeites have been careful about his crowds. When they first proposed that Ike speak in Philadelphia one day before the Labor Day weekend, Pennsylvania's Governor Fine warned that few people would be around to hear him near a weekend. That was why Ike's Philadelphia speech was shifted to September 4—three days after Labor Day. . . . In San Antonio, Sheriff Owen Kilday, boss of that city, indicates he may support Eisenhower, but says he'll consult his two brothers first. One brother is the congressman from San Antonio, the other is an assistant in the Justice Department, which Eisenhower is attacking as corruption-ridden.

Stevenson Should Know More About Newspaper Score Than He Pretends

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 9—Governor Stevenson is supposed to have gotten around in his time and to have learned the "score"—especially as it relates to the attitude of many of the editorial writers of the country toward the Democratic party in recent years.

Yet the Illinois governor now says he doesn't know why most of the newspapers editorially have been "against Democrats."

In the first place, this statement is not true. The press has never been against "Democrats" as such but against candidates and officeholders who call themselves Democrats but who are in reality faithless to their party history and to the original creed of Thomas Jefferson.

The governor said that the treatment being accorded him in the news columns is fair and impartial. He might have added that in the last 20 years the treatment in the news columns accorded to both Presidents Roosevelt and Truman has been so abundant on the quantitative basis that presidential elections have been won largely because of this advantage in publicity which the incumbent administration has enjoyed.

No other administration in history has had the benefit of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money for press agents, radio experts, information specialists and press-relations officers. Day by day and week after week, they have poured forth a stream of publicity in the guise of "official" news which has given many a person a lopsided view of controversial subjects. There is no such thing as an opposition publicity bureau by the Republicans or anybody else between presidential campaigns. As between "front-page news" and editorial pages, the scientifically conducted readership surveys taken from time to time show that whoever has the front pages regularly gets far more reading than whoever is supported on the editorial pages.

Governor Stevenson may not know it, but the trend of editorial expression opposed to the "New Deal" and the "Fair Deal" has not been due to any feeling of dislike for the Democratic party as such but is really a protest against the propaganda of the scheming individuals who have taken over the Democratic party. Many persons who oppose the "New Deal" and "Fair Deal" type of administration have no liking for the Republican party at all, and this year it is unquestionably true that General Eisenhower is far more popular than the Republican party itself—and largely because he himself has never been an active political leader. If the Republican party gets in and goes wrong, it, too, will earn the opposition of the press. This is proved in dozens of state and local elections during the last 20 years where Republican newspapers have fought Republican machines and their candidates.

Though the editorial writers of the nation and the editors generally are quite capable of speaking for themselves in explaining why they have been against the "New Deal" and the "Fair Deal" and have given their viewpoint extensively to their readers from day to day, Governor Stevenson might possibly suspect the real reason if he has been reading the news of what the administration has been doing for the last 20 years.

For the American press is not in favor of state socialism or communism or "left wingism." Radicalism today all boils down to one objectionable formula, no matter whether it takes the label "New Deal" or "Fair Deal." That formula means the eventual confiscation of private property in America and the destruction of the savings of the individual. That formula also means favoritism for the party's henchmen and a renunciation of the Jeffersonian principle—"equal rights for all, special privilege for none."

In the last 20 years the purchasing power of the American dollar has been confiscated, the earnings of private property and individual incomes have been taxed more heavily in peacetime than in wartime, government has entered into competition with its citizens and furnished funds to carry on that competition, government has imposed "thought control" by allowing workers to be compelled to join a union whether or not they believe in trade unionism, and there has been an effort to coerce the states into subservience to the will of the federal government in matters of education and the regulation of employment.

The drift of the "New Deal" and "Fair Deal" has been toward the "left." The American press traditionally has defended the liberty of the individual and his right to save his earnings. That's why it has lined up again and again in opposition to the confiscationists, whether they seek to destroy liberty by "packing" the Supreme Court of the United States or by spending the savings of the country with the excuse that they are benefiting social welfare.

The Democratic presidential nominee said in his Oregon speech that many newspapers had jumped to the support of General Eisenhower even before they knew what the Democratic platform or who the candidate would be. That's right, because 'most everybody knew in advance that the Democratic nominee would have to stand on the Truman record and most of the newspapers, after more than three years of observation, had already made up their minds that a vote for the Democratic nominee, no matter how good he himself might be, was merely a vote to approve and vindicate one of the most irresponsible administrations in American history.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The police of Yonkers, N. Y., say they are trying to find and make a case against the murderer of John Acropolis, the boss of elements of the Teamsters' Union, who was found shot dead in his apartment. I am not confident that they will succeed. It is a poor police force, with loose discipline and low standards and some of the cops conceivably could have reasons to maul the case around, as happened in the Hall-Mills job in New Brunswick years ago, destroy evidence and tip off witnesses.

However, for any light that it may throw on the character and affairs of Johnny Acropolis, I present a letter which he wrote me in Aug. 1943. He led off with the statement that he shared my low opinion of Joe Fay, the extortioner and thug who was vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers until he finally went to prison for ten years.

"My experiences with Fay bear out all you say," Acropolis wrote. "I would like to underscore every epithet you have applied to him and add a few of my own. I was representing drivers, members of Westchester Local 456 of the Teamsters working in the N. Y. trap rock quarries at Verplancks, N. Y. I tried to attend a meeting of working men of various trades in those quarries and their respective business representatives. I was forced by two of Fay's muggs, of whom you have written, Wallace and Pete Weber, to get out the hall without even stating what provisions we were going to ask for."

These are very tough goons as they had to be to push Acropolis around for he was a stand-up fellow and a star athlete with 'varsity experience at Colgate.

"The men were told that they would all be given a 10c per hour increase and would have to take it.

"I took my case to Mike Cashall, our international vice president, a friend of Fay's, who blandly suggested that Fay handle the negotiations for our teamsters. Now District Attorney Hogan reveals that N. Y. Trap Rock admits paying Fay $12,000. This leads me to the point that I want to bring to your attention. Will you not write plainly on the conspiracy between the labor organizations and the courts to prevent the rank and file from carrying their grievances to the courts like other ordinary citizens?

"You wrote on June 17th that Dan Tobin (president of the teamsters and member of the executive council of the AF of L) 'has been known to repudiate the public courts and the American system of justice and forbid his subjects to resort to them.' That is true. Do you know that when the rank and file rebels and disobeys Tobin's orders and takes its case to the courts, they are referred back to the international whose callous disregard for the workers' rights drove the men to the courts in the first place?

"That is exactly what happened to Local 456. We fought Patrick Pearce, a bosom friend of William McGeory and Martin Parkinson, both now under indictment for extortion on that same Delaware aqueduct job. However, our appeal to the courts was thrown out and registered letters to the international were refused ac-

PLANK ROAD

Stamler to Drive For Indictments in Bergen; Jubilant

Hackensack, N. J., Sept. 9 (AP)—Deputy Attorney General Nelson F. Stamler plans a new drive for indictments in Bergen county, now that gambler Frank Erickson has pleaded no defense to a charge of conspiracy to make book in New Jersey.

Erickson, onetime boss of a multi-million dollar New York bookmaking empire, threw himself on the mercy of the court yesterday and is scheduled to be sentenced next month.

Stamler, who headed a state probe of Bergen rackets, was jubilant over Erickson's plea, which he said was "the answer as to whether there was widespread gambling in the county and whether anything was done about stopping it during the four years it flourished."

"We are planning to move into Cliffside Park and Lodi again in a new drive for indictments," the racket buster said, adding, "certain county officials were responsible for the Erickson operation and they will be brought in."

Arraigned Last October

Erickson, who recently served 16 months of a two-year term in Rikers Island Penitentiary for operating the New York bookie setup, was arraigned here on the New Jersey charges last Oct. 26, the day of his release.

His plea yesterday puts the 55-year-old Erickson in line for a possible maximum sentence of one-to-three years in jail and/or a $1,000 fine. Sentencing date was set as Oct. 6 by Superior Court Judge J. Wallace Leyden.

Another no defense plea was entered by Erickson's co-defendant, Alexander Levy, 55, of the Bronx, N. Y., accused of being the gambler's number one aide in this state. Levy also comes up for sentencing Oct. 6. Judge Leyden continued both men in $10,000 bail each until that date.

Stamler had a subpoena served on Levy after his plea. Levy must appear before the county grand jury Sept. 18.

Erickson showed no outward sign of emotion as his attorneys entered the no defense plea for him, which eliminated the need for a trial, scheduled to start yesterday.

The indictment against Erickson charged him with basing his widespread bookmaking network in Cliffside Park between March 1, 1949, and April, 1950, and operating several telephone bookie spots in Lodi.

WCTU Meets With County President

Mrs. Lillie Shultis, president of the Ulster County WCTU, called county officers and county directors and local presidents to her home, 279 Washington avenue, Kingston, for an executive session of the county organization. All the local unions except Plattekill were represented. The county treasurer, Mrs. Emma Carpenter of Plattekill was absent. Her grandson, Ronald Carpenter, was being taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh.

Plans for the county convention were discussed. The Methodist Church of Port Ewen will receive that convention on October 3. Much attention was given to methods of expediting the process of electing officers at this convention. Many of the unions had made gains in membership, and that means that Ulster County gains the distinction of being hailed as one of the Fruitful Unions at the state convention in Corning October 9 to 13. Several at this executive will be delegates to the state convention, so a portion of the time was devoted to the study of routes of travel from Ulster county to Steuben county.

Health for All

TB—Arrested or Cured?

Let's suppose you have tuberculosis. It's not impossible, you know. About 400,000 people in the United States today have active TB, and they are of every age and station in life. If one of them is you, will you be cured?

When you go to the TB hospital someone, probably a nurse especially assigned to this duty, will teach you about the disease. Your doctor or a public health nurse may already have told you and your family a good deal about it. You will learn that treatment can almost certainly arrest the disease. After what may be months of bed rest, and possibly the use of drugs and surgery, the TB germs will become inactive. They will be walled off in some part of your lungs. Whether they will stay that way and not break out again, will depend largely on how you live after you leave the hospital.

That may seem like a big responsibility. You may fear that it means a future of living like a semi-invalid. But it doesn't. There is a whole team of people ready to help you get well and stay well. These include the hospital doctors and nurses, social workers, therapists, and vocational counselors both within and without the hospital. With their assistance you can look forward to the day when you will again live a useful, normal life.

They will help you over those first fears and anxieties about TB and the difficult adjustment to hospital life which may hamper your cure. They will help you get rid of any superstitions and misinformation about the disease. You will learn how to protect your health after you leave the hospital.

A social worker will talk to you when you enter the hospital and frequently afterwards. She will help you and your family with personal problems, emotional, social, or economic, which may arise. She may help your family get assistance from community agencies to see the family through the crisis and insure your return to a happy family unit.

There may be occupational therapists who, following medical prescription, will help you get through the long hospital days both pleasantly and profitably. Some patients may learn a hobby while some may complete their high school education. Others are helped to learn new skills and prepare for earning a living in ways which will not endanger their future health.

A vocational counselor may help you discover your aptitudes. You will be helped to plan for the future and to carry out your plans. In addition, there may be librarians, teachers, and recreation specialists on the rehabilitation team.

All of these people will be working with you to make sure that your tuberculosis will be arrested for good, in short, cured.

Florida Medicos Back Eisenhower

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 9 (AP)—The Florida Medical Committee for Better Government endorses Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate for president, and his running mate, Sen. Richard Nixon, for vice president.

The endorsement was made Sunday in a resolution adopted at the close of a two-day conference of Florida doctors in its membership.

Dr. Meredith Mallory, outgoing chairman, described the committee as non-partisan and independent of other professional organizations with the guiding principle "make voting a habit; make citizenship a must."

Dr. Louis H. Bauer, Hempstead, N. Y., president of the American Medical Association, told the committee Sunday "the most important crusade this or any other organization can make is a crusade for good citizenship."

He said the medical profession, having "won a breathing spell in the struggle to protect freedom of medicine," can turn to other problems, but must remain alert. "Socialization of medicine or of anything else cannot be tolerated."

500 Go on Strike

Buenos Aires, Sept. 9 (AP)—Five hundred high school students went on a six-hour protest strike yesterday because they have to take a new course on President Juan D. Peron's political system. The course is called "justicialism." The strike began at National College of Buenos Aires and soon spread to the nearby University of Buenos Aires.

Seven Person Killed

Mexico City, Sept. 9 (AP)—Seven persons were killed and 30 injured last night in the explosion of a store of fireworks gathered for Mexico's Independence Day celebration Sept. 10. The blast wrecked a small hotel, two stores and a billard parlor.

Rural Schools Need Help

New York (AP)—A teachers conference meeting at Columbia University has called upon state governments to adopt tax programs that will provide a sound and adequate education for country children as well as city children. The 35 educators included rural teachers, district superintendents, and representatives from teachers' colleges and state departments of education.

NEVER has an automobile received a finer tribute than that accorded the Nash Ambassador by MECHANIX ILLUSTRATED Magazine's Tom McCahill, outstanding car expert.

Tom McCahill tests all makes of cars. He puts them through back-breaking grinds. He writes of Nash:

"The finest shock-proof ride in the world today . . . best bump-leveler."
The secret of Nash riding comfort, lies in Airflyte Construction, Airflex Suspension, individual coil springs. A ride will convince you.

"Acre-per-dollar bargain of the year."
Here are the widest seats, front and rear, widest windshield, of any car.

"Among the best performing cars."
In the "Grand Prix d'Endurance" at Le Mans, France, the Nash Super Jetfire engine topped all American entries.

"In hill-climbing, second to none."
The Ambassador was the only overdrive-equipped car to take McCahill's "test-hill" in high.

"This year's line is by far the best Nash ever offered, and that's saying a lot."
Tom McCahill calls Farina, who styled the new Nash, the "Rembrandt of automobile design."

Stamler to Drive For Indictments in Bergen; Jubilant

Hackensack, N. J., Sept. 9 (AP)—Deputy Attorney General Nelson F. Stamler plans a new drive for indictments in Bergen county, now that gambler Frank Erickson has pleaded no defense to a charge of conspiracy to make book in New Jersey.

Erickson, onetime boss of a multi-million dollar New York bookmaking empire, threw himself on the mercy of the court yesterday and is scheduled to be sentenced next month.

Stamler, who headed a state probe of Bergen rackets, was jubilant over Erickson's plea, which he said was "the answer as to whether there was widespread gambling in the county and whether anything was done about stopping it during the four years it flourished."

"We are planning to move into Cliffside Park and Lodi again in a new drive for indictments," the racket buster said, adding, "certain county officials were responsible for the Erickson operation and they will be brought in."

Arraigned Last October

Erickson, who recently served 16 months of a two-year term in Rikers Island Penitentiary for operating the New York bookie setup, was arraigned here on the New Jersey charges last Oct. 26, the day of his release.

His plea yesterday puts the 55-year-old Erickson in line for a possible maximum sentence of one-to-three years in jail and/or a $1,000 fine. Sentencing date was set as Oct. 6 by Superior Court Judge J. Wallace Leyden.

Another no defense plea was entered by Erickson's co-defendant, Alexander Levy, 55, of the Bronx, N. Y., accused of being the gambler's number one aide in this state. Levy also comes up for sentencing Oct. 6. Judge Leyden continued both men in $10,000 bail each until that date.

Stamler had a subpoena served on Levy after his plea. Levy must appear before the county grand jury Sept. 18.

Erickson showed no outward sign of emotion as his attorneys entered the no defense plea for him, which eliminated the need for a trial, scheduled to start yesterday.

The indictment against Erickson charged him with basing his widespread bookmaking network in Cliffside Park between March 1, 1949, and April, 1950, and operating several telephone bookie spots in Lodi.

WCTU Meets With County President

Mrs. Lillie Shultis, president of the Ulster County WCTU, called county officers and county directors and local presidents to her home, 279 Washington avenue, Kingston, for an executive session of the county organization. All the local unions except Plattekill were represented. The county treasurer, Mrs. Emma Carpenter of Plattekill was absent. Her grandson, Ronald Carpenter, was being taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh.

Plans for the county convention were discussed. The Methodist Church of Port Ewen will receive that convention on October 3. Much attention was given to methods of expediting the process of electing officers at this convention. Many of the unions had made gains in membership, and that means that Ulster County gains the distinction of being hailed as one of the Fruitful Unions at the state convention in Corning October 9 to 13. Several at this executive will be delegates to the state convention, so a portion of the time was devoted to the study of routes of travel from Ulster county to Steuben county.

Health for All

TB—Arrested or Cured?

Let's suppose you have tuberculosis. It's not impossible, you know. About 400,000 people in the United States today have active TB, and they are of every age and station in life. If one of them is you, will you be cured?

When you go to the TB hospital someone, probably a nurse especially assigned to this duty, will teach you about the disease. Your doctor or a public health nurse may already have told you and your family a good deal about it. You will learn that treatment can almost certainly arrest the disease. After what may be months of bed rest, and possibly the use of drugs and surgery, the TB germs will become inactive. They will be walled off in some part of your lungs. Whether they will stay that way and not break out again, will depend largely on how you live after you leave the hospital.

That may seem like a big responsibility. You may fear that it means a future of living like a semi-invalid. But it doesn't. There is a whole team of people ready to help you get well and stay well. These include the hospital doctors and nurses, social workers, therapists, and vocational counselors both within and without the hospital. With their assistance you can look forward to the day when you will again live a useful, normal life.

They will help you over those first fears and anxieties about TB and the difficult adjustment to hospital life which may hamper your cure. They will help you get rid of any superstitions and misinformation about the disease. You will learn how to protect your health after you leave the hospital.

A social worker will talk to you when you enter the hospital and frequently afterwards. She will help you and your family with personal problems, emotional, social, or economic, which may arise. She may help your family get assistance from community agencies to see the family through the crisis and insure your return to a happy family unit.

There may be occupational therapists who, following medical prescription, will help you get through the long hospital days both pleasantly and profitably. Some patients may learn a hobby while some may complete their high school education. Others are helped to learn new skills and prepare for earning a living in ways which will not endanger their future health.

A vocational counselor may help you discover your aptitudes. You will be helped to plan for the future and to carry out your plans. In addition, there may be librarians, teachers, and recreation specialists on the rehabilitation team.

All of these people will be working with you to make sure that your tuberculosis will be arrested for good, in short, cured.

Florida Medicos Back Eisenhower

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 9 (AP)—The Florida Medical Committee for Better Government endorses Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate for president, and his running mate, Sen. Richard Nixon, for vice president.

The endorsement was made Sunday in a resolution adopted at the close of a two-day conference of Florida doctors in its membership.

Dr. Meredith Mallory, outgoing chairman, described the committee as non-partisan and independent of other professional organizations with the guiding principle "make voting a habit; make citizenship a must."

Dr. Louis H. Bauer, Hempstead, N. Y., president of the American Medical Association, told the committee Sunday "the most important crusade this or any other organization can make is a crusade for good citizenship."

He said the medical profession, having "won a breathing spell in the struggle to protect freedom of medicine," can turn to other problems, but must remain alert. "Socialization of medicine or of anything else cannot be tolerated."

500 Go on Strike

Buenos Aires, Sept. 9 (AP)—Five hundred high school students went on a six-hour protest strike yesterday because they have to take a new course on President Juan D. Peron's political system. The course is called "justicialism." The strike began at National College of Buenos Aires and soon spread to the nearby University of Buenos Aires.

Seven Person Killed

Mexico City, Sept. 9 (AP)—Seven persons were killed and 30 injured last night in the explosion of a store of fireworks gathered for Mexico's Independence Day celebration Sept. 10. The blast wrecked a small hotel, two stores and a billard parlor.

Rural Schools Need Help

New York (AP)—A teachers conference meeting at Columbia University has called upon state governments to adopt tax programs that will provide a sound and adequate education for country children as well as city children. The 35 educators included rural teachers, district superintendents, and representatives from teachers' colleges and state departments of education.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD S. THIBAUT, Jr.

Renowned Pianist Will Play Sunday

JACQUELINE MARCAULT

Woodstock, Sept. 9—Jacqueline Marcault, internationally known pianist, will make her only appearance of the season here Sunday at 4 p. m. in a recital at the Maverick Concert Hall in Woodstock.

The slender French pianist, who has concertized since the age of nine, has chosen for her program Sunday the Opus 53 sonata of Beethoven, Ravel's Sonatine, and the Busoni transcription of Bach's immortal Chaconne, originally for violin.

A pupil of Consolo and Cortot, Miss Marcault played as soloist with virtually all of the major European orchestras and had recitals in Rome, Milan, Geneva, Paris, Brussels, The Hague, London and many other cities.

Her career was interrupted by the war and with her mother and daughter she was interned in an Italian camp for five years, undergoing countless hardships and privations.

After the war, at the personal invitation of the eminent cellist Pablo Casals, she appeared with him in what he intended at the time to be his farewell concerts.

She came to the United States in 1948 and has been teaching at the Mannes School of Music in New York. She has given recitals in New York and other eastern cities, and will appear this winter in New York's Town Hall —here she was forced to cancel a recital last fall due to the recurrance of a hand injury sustained ina train accident in 1950.

Previous Woodstock recitals by Miss Marcault have been held at the Town Hall and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Striebel. In past seasons she has also done ensemble work at the Maverick hall.

Village Artists Vote Unanimously To Incorporate

Woodstock, Sept. 9—The final membership meeting of the season of the Woodstock Artists Association was held at the Gallery Monday night.

A resolution, proposed by Arnold Blanch, was unanimously passed that the Association become incorporated. Edward Millman, chairman, appointed the following committee of incorporators: Ralph Wickiser, Daniel Revzan, Reginald Wilson, Cecile Forman and Arthur Zaidenberg. At the same time plans for the incorporation of the welfare fund were announced, with the following committee: Arnold Blanch, William J. Eisner, Cecile Forman, Phoebe Towbin and Fletcher Martin.

It was also resolved that the benefit committee present a donation of $150 to the Woodstock recreation fund for the benefit of the children of this village.

Fletcher Martin, chairman of the festival committee, now the benefit committee, announced that a total of $1,500 had been raised at the recent benefit party, the amount to be divided equally between the welfare fund and the Woodstock Artists Association. Defining the function of the welfare fund, Blanch said it "exists for emergencies amongst artists, active members of the association, residing in the vicinity of Woodstock." Artists needing emergency assistance may submit applications to Fletcher Martin, Arnold Blanch or William Eisner. The amount is to be considered as a loan, which, if the artist is unable to repay, he is asked to reimburse by contributing some kind of work to the association.

The Woodstock Artists Association is also enrolled in the Blue Cross group plan. Any active married member may apply for welfare fund assistance in meeting payments.

Daniel Revzan, chairman of the exhibitions committee, has announced a tentative schedule of shows for the summer of 1953. The gallery will probably reopen June 13 with an open, no-jury show, to which pictures of a 30-inch limit may be submitted. The second show will be a group show, to be followed by a "presentation" show. As in previous presentation shows, the jury will attempt to choose work of artists which has not been extensively shown here. The fourth show will be a repeat of this summer's popular sculpture and drawing exhibition, followed by a recent work exhibition. The season will again conclude with a retrospective show.

Revzan stated that it was hoped that it would be possible to obtain another out-of-town jury for the 1953 season. Considerable discussion took place on juror methods of selecting pictures for exhibitions and a resolution was passed upon the recommendation of Fletcher Martin that "each jury will select their paintings and name their choices."

Upon the suggestion of Harvey Fite, vice-chairman, that possibilities be explored for modernizing the physical aspects of the gallery to provide more exhibition space, the following committee to study the matter was appointed by Millman: Ralph Wickiser, Fletcher Martin, Arnold Blanch, Harvey Fite and Daniel Revzan.

During the meeting Mordy Berkowitz offered the suggestion that painting classes be held at the Art Gallery for the winter months. The proposal was referred to the executive committee for study.

At the close of the meeting Millman thanked Ralph Wickiser, past chairman, as the "man responsible for the success of the Fourth Annual Art Conference" held at the Art Students League last month.

The executive board of the Artists Association for the coming year is as follows: Edward Millman, Harvey Fite, Daniel Revzan, Cecile Forman, Amy Gans Small, Reginald Wilson, Margaret Lowengrund, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, William Eisner, Sanford Goodman and Mrs. Philip FitzPatrick.

The second number was a group of three characteristic pieces for strings by William Kroll. Two of them, Little March and Cossack have been heard in Woodstock before. They are truly delightful, witty and upon several hearings still exuberant. The third, Mood, was as its title suggests, muted and haunting.

Sentences Given By Cashin to Eight Who Plead Guilty

Eight defendants under indictment by the grand jury, entered pleas of guilty in County Court Monday afternoon and were sentenced by County Judge John M. Cashin.

Four persons named by the Grand jury in indictments were arraigned and pleas of innocent were entered and their cases were continued with counsel, Frank Campochiaro, being granted 20 days to make further motions. Bail was continued. They were Marcia Strock, Francis P. Cary, Viva Fichtner and Karl Fichtner who are accused of violation of Section 185 of the Conservation Law on October 9, 1951. The charge involves "jacking deer."

Pleads He's Main Support

Ernest Faust, Ellenville, indicted for operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated, entered a plea of guilty to reckless driving after his counsel, John Bonomi, explained that Faust was the sole supporter of seven people and needed his car to get to work on the Grahamsville dam. If convicted of the original count his license would be taken away. Judge Cashin notified that pleading to the reckless driving charge might also result in suspension of his license. The plea was accepted and a 30-day suspended jail sentence was imposed and the defendant paid a $100 fine. Bail was exonerated.

William Moore, Ellenville, charged with grand larceny, second degree, for the alleged cashing of a check, entered a plea of guilty to violation of Section 482 of the Penal Law, a misdemeanor. He said he could not read or write but someone who cashed the check had signed it. He said he wanted the money to get whiskey. Moore said he could get a job. He was sentenced to 161 days in jail, the time he has served and he was told to keep out of trouble. He formerly lived in Monticello.

Warned on Drinking

Ross Crawford, who was charged with assaulting Officer Leonard Newkirk in New Paltz, entered a plea of guilty to assault, third degree, Frederick Stang appeared for Crawford and said Crawford has a job waiting for him. He has been in jail for 168 days. A sentence of a year in jail, was imposed and execution suspended and Crawford was placed on probation. One of the conditions of probation was that he abstains from drinking.

Otis Roy Wells, who stood charged with burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry under two indictments involving entrance to places in Woodstock and the town of Marbletown, entered pleas of guilty to unlawful entry in each case. Arthur A. Davis, Jr., appeared for defendant by assignment and Wells was given a year in jail in each case, sentences to run concurrently. The burglary indictments were dismissed.

Placed on Probation

John George Hasbrouck, Kingston, charged with violation of Section 2010, rape as a misdemeanor, entered a plea of guilty. Frederick Stang appeared for defendant. Taking the record of the girl involved into consideration, Judge Cashin imposed a sentence of a year in jail and suspended execution of sentence and placed defendant on probation. Bail was exonerated.

Willie Jones, entered a plea of guilty to petit larceny. He had been indicted for grand larceny, second degree. A. J. Cook, Jr., appeared for defendant. Jones said he had been in the car but had not taken any of the property, although he had shared a part of the proceeds later with the man who took the property. It is alleged lead was stolen from downtown. Jones was given 110 days in jail, the time he had served and was given credit for that time.

Nash Gets Two Years

Joseph Francis Nash, charged with impairing the morals of a minor, entered a plea of guilty to the indictment. Charles Saccoman appeared for Nash. A petition was then presented charging Nash with being a probation violator. On February 25, 1952, he entered a plea of guilty to the same offense and was placed on probation. He admitted he had violated probation and the year in jail imposed at that time was invoked and he was given a year for probation violation, the two sentences to run concurrently. He was given credit for the time already served in jail.

Ernest Osterhoudt, Kingston, charged with violation of Section 70, Sub. 5, of the Motor Vehicle and Traffic Law, entered a plea of guilty to the charge. He was warned that the Court must revoke his license to drive and his registration might also be revoked. Matthew Weishaupt appeared for Osterhoudt. A 90-day jail sentence was imposed and Osterhoudt was given credit for time already served.

Court recessed until 10 o'clock Tuesday. Jurors were also excused until that time.

Texas Democrats

inability to vote for Stevenson, agreed with the loyalists. He said he did not want to be accused of tampering with the ballot, and that his pledge before being seated at Chicago required him to do all in his power to get Stevenson's name on the ballot, in the Democratic column.

Shivers solved his own personal dilemma as the Democratic nominee for governor, by announcing he would scratch Stevenson, and that he also did not intend to vote for Eisenhower.

Many delegations to the convention, siding with Shivers, said they could solve it by doing what Democrats have done many times in the past: Vote for state Democratic candidates, then jump the party column and vote Republican for president.

This year, the Republicans, making an all-out bid for Democratic votes to carry Texas for Eisenhower, nominated Shivers and the full slate of already-nominated Democrats as their state office candidates.

They will go on the ballot, in the Republican column, unless they withdraw.

Enjoy Frankfurter Casserole

DELICIOUS BUDGET CUTTERS are frankfurters and beans in a casserole and franks on toasted buns, both with barbeque sauce.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Let's face it. Beef is high, so are other meats. So try frankfurters in fancy dress, thereby easing up on the budget while you please the family.

One-pound package contains eight to nine franks.

Frank Bean Casserole
(4 servings)

Four franks, 2 cups baked beans, 1 teaspoon molasses, ½ teaspoon horseradish, 2 teaspoons melted butter, or margarine.

Mix beans, molasses, and horseradish. Place in a greased casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Brush franks with melted butter or margarine. Place over the beans. Cover and continue baking about 10 minutes.

Or, bake franks atop canned baked beans to which onions, catsup, mustard or molasses have been added for extra flavor. Or combine franks in casserole with Spanish rice, cooked spaghetti or macaroni with sauce or with scalloped potatoes.

Frank-on-a-bun suggestion—Plan on one frank for a hearty luncheon or supper sandwich. Since quality franks are thoroughly cooked as purchased, the sandwich may be a cold one or the franks may be heated through, as you prefer.

Split a bun, toast it and spread it with butter or margarine and mustard. Cover with a frank slit in half and top with a slice of nippy cheese. Broil until the cheese is melted, brown and bubbly.

The Frank Quail is a variation of this combination. Simply slit the franks not quite through and insert a stick of cheese. Wrap spiral fashion with bacon and fasten with a toothpick. Bake or broil until the bacon is crisp and the cheese melted.

For an appetizer, cut franks in one-inch slices and spear with a toothpick for easy eating. Have a small bowl of barbecue sauce. Each person dips the franks in thin barbecue sauce and eats.

Thin Barbecue Sauce
(1 pint)

One-quarter pound butter or margarine, 1 cup vinegar, ¼ cup water, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ cup Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup tomato catsup, ¼ cup chili sauce, 1½ teaspoons lemon juice, 1 small clove, garlic tied in porous cloth bag, cayenne pepper (optional).

Mix all ingredients together and simmer 1 hour to blend. Remove garlic. Add cayenne pepper for a "hot" sauce. This sauce may be made and stored in the regrigerator and used cold with franks or hot with steaks, spareribs, short ribs, franks, hamburgers, liver, chicken.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, soft scrambled eggs on toasted muffins, coffee cake, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Whole pear and chopped peanut salad, lettuce, sour cream dressing, crusty bread, butter or margarine, custard with fruit sauce, tea, milk.

DINNER: Frank bean casserole, apple-cabbage slaw, buttered broccoli, rye bread, butter or margarine, prune pie with cream cheese topping, coffee, milk.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

Renowned Pianist Will Play Sunday

JACQUELINE MARCAULT

Woodstock, Sept. 9—Jacqueline Marcault, internationally known pianist, will make her only appearance of the season here Sunday at 4 p. m. in a recital at the Maverick Concert Hall in Woodstock.

The slender French pianist, who has concertized since the age of nine, has chosen for her program Sunday the Opus 53 sonata of Beethoven, Ravel's Sonatine, and the Busoni transcription of Bach's immortal Chaconne, originally for violin.

A pupil of Consolo and Cortot, Miss Marcault played as soloist with virtually all of the major European orchestras and had recitals in Rome, Milan, Geneva, Paris, Brussels, The Hague, London and many other cities.

Her career was interrupted by the war and with her mother and daughter she was interned in an Italian camp for five years, undergoing countless hardships and privations.

After the war, at the personal invitation of the eminent cellist Pablo Casals, she appeared with him in what he intended at the time to be his farewell concerts.

She came to the United States in 1948 and has been teaching at the Mannes School of Music in New York. She has given recitals in New York and other eastern cities, and will appear this winter in New York's Town Hall —here she was forced to cancel a recital last fall due to the recurrance of a hand injury sustained ina train accident in 1950.

Previous Woodstock recitals by Miss Marcault have been held at the Town Hall and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Striebel. In past seasons she has also done ensemble work at the Maverick hall.

Village Artists Vote Unanimously To Incorporate

Woodstock, Sept. 9—The final membership meeting of the season of the Woodstock Artists Association was held at the Gallery Monday night.

A resolution, proposed by Arnold Blanch, was unanimously passed that the Association become incorporated. Edward Millman, chairman, appointed the following committee of incorporators: Ralph Wickiser, Daniel Revzan, Reginald Wilson, Cecile Forman and Arthur Zaidenberg. At the same time plans for the incorporation of the welfare fund were announced, with the following committee: Arnold Blanch, William J. Eisner, Cecile Forman, Phoebe Towbin and Fletcher Martin.

It was also resolved that the benefit committee present a donation of $150 to the Woodstock recreation fund for the benefit of the children of this village.

Fletcher Martin, chairman of the festival committee, now the benefit committee, announced that a total of $1,500 had been raised at the recent benefit party, the amount to be divided equally between the welfare fund and the Woodstock Artists Association. Defining the function of the welfare fund, Blanch said it "exists for emergencies amongst artists, active members of the association, residing in the vicinity of Woodstock." Artists needing emergency assistance may submit applications to Fletcher Martin, Arnold Blanch or William Eisner. The amount is to be considered as a loan, which, if the artist is unable to repay, he is asked to reimburse by contributing some kind of work to the association.

The Woodstock Artists Association is also enrolled in the Blue Cross group plan. Any active married member may apply for welfare fund assistance in meeting payments.

Kuala Lumpur (AP) — Arabic schools in the northern Malay states are responsible for turning out Malaya's future Moslem religious leaders. Resembling the monasteries of England in the Middle Ages, the Arabic institutions are maintained by Malays out of a religious fund. Students pay no school fees. Students spend eight years in these institutions and go to Cairo or Mecca for higher religious studies.

Sentences Given By Cashin to Eight Who Plead Guilty

Eight defendants under indictment by the grand jury, entered pleas of guilty in County Court Monday afternoon and were sentenced by County Judge John M. Cashin.

Four persons named by the Grand jury in indictments were arraigned and pleas of innocent were entered and their cases were continued with counsel, Frank Campochiaro, being granted 20 days to make further motions. Bail was continued. They were Marcia Strock, Francis P. Cary, Viva Fichtner and Karl Fichtner who are accused of violation of Section 185 of the Conservation Law on October 9, 1951. The charge involves "jacking deer."

Pleads He's Main Support

Ernest Faust, Ellenville, indicted for operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated, entered a plea of guilty to reckless driving after his counsel, John Bonomi, explained that Faust was the sole supporter of seven people and needed his car to get to work on the Grahamsville dam. If convicted of the original count his license would be taken away. Judge Cashin notified that pleading to the reckless driving charge might also result in suspension of his license. The plea was accepted and a 30-day suspended jail sentence was imposed and the defendant paid a $100 fine. Bail was exonerated.

William Moore, Ellenville, charged with grand larceny, second degree, for the alleged cashing of a check, entered a plea of guilty to violation of Section 482 of the Penal Law, a misdemeanor. He said he could not read or write but someone who cashed the check had signed it. He said he wanted the money to get whiskey. Moore said he could get a job. He was sentenced to 161 days in jail, the time he has served and he was told to keep out of trouble. He formerly lived in Monticello.

Warned on Drinking

Ross Crawford, who was charged with assaulting Officer Leonard Newkirk in New Paltz, entered a plea of guilty to assault, third degree, Frederick Stang appeared for Crawford and said Crawford has a job waiting for him. He has been in jail for 168 days. A sentence of a year in jail, was imposed and execution suspended and Crawford was placed on probation. One of the conditions of probation was that he abstains from drinking.

Otis Roy Wells, who stood charged with burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry under two indictments involving entrance to places in Woodstock and the town of Marbletown, entered pleas of guilty to unlawful entry in each case. Arthur A. Davis, Jr., appeared for defendant by assignment and Wells was given a year in jail in each case, sentences to run concurrently. The burglary indictments were dismissed.

Placed on Probation

John George Hasbrouck, Kingston, charged with violation of Section 2010, rape as a misdemeanor, entered a plea of guilty. Frederick Stang appeared for defendant. Taking the record of the girl involved into consideration, Judge Cashin imposed a sentence of a year in jail and suspended execution of sentence and placed defendant on probation. Bail was exonerated.

Willie Jones, entered a plea of guilty to petit larceny. He had been indicted for grand larceny, second degree. A. J. Cook, Jr., appeared for defendant. Jones said he had been in the car but had not taken any of the property, although he had shared a part of the proceeds later with the man who took the property. It is alleged lead was stolen from downtown. Jones was given 110 days in jail, the time he had served and was given credit for that time.

Nash Gets Two Years

Joseph Francis Nash, charged with impairing the morals of a minor, entered a plea of guilty to the indictment. Charles Saccoman appeared for Nash. A petition was then presented charging Nash with being a probation violator. On February 25, 1952, he entered a plea of guilty to the same offense and was placed on probation. He admitted he had violated probation and the year in jail imposed at that time was invoked and he was given a year for probation violation, the two sentences to run concurrently. He was given credit for the time already served in jail.

Ernest Osterhoudt, Kingston, charged with violation of Section 70, Sub. 5, of the Motor Vehicle and Traffic Law, entered a plea of guilty to the charge. He was warned that the Court must revoke his license to drive and his registration might also be revoked. Matthew Weishaupt appeared for Osterhoudt. A 90-day jail sentence was imposed and Osterhoudt was given credit for time already served.

Court recessed until 10 o'clock Tuesday. Jurors were also excused until that time.

United Once Before

The Army and Navy once were under a single department, even before the Unification Act of 1947. The War Department, which included both Army and Navy, was set up in 1789. A separate Navy Department was created April 30, 1798.

Texas Democrats

inability to vote for Stevenson, agreed with the loyalists. He said he did not want to be accused of tampering with the ballot, and that his pledge before being seated at Chicago required him to do all in his power to get Stevenson's name on the ballot, in the Democratic column.

Shivers solved his own personal dilemma as the Democratic nominee for governor, by announcing he would scratch Stevenson, and that he also did not intend to vote for Eisenhower.

Many delegations to the convention, siding with Shivers, said they could solve it by doing what Democrats have done many times in the past: Vote for state Democratic candidates, then jump the party column and vote Republican for president.

This year, the Republicans, making an all-out bid for Democratic votes to carry Texas for Eisenhower, nominated Shivers and the full slate of already-nominated Democrats as their state office candidates.

They will go on the ballot, in the Republican column, unless they withdraw.

Enjoy Frankfurter Casserole

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Let's face it. Beef is high, so are other meats. So try frankfurters in fancy dress, thereby easing up on the budget while you please the family.

One-pound package contains eight to nine franks.

Frank Bean Casserole (4 servings)

Four franks, 2 cups baked beans, 1 teaspoon molasses, ½ teaspoon horseradish, 2 teaspoons melted butter, or margarine.

Mix beans, molasses, and horseradish. Place in a greased casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Brush franks with melted butter or margarine. Place over the beans. Cover and continue baking about 10 minutes.

Or, bake franks atop canned baked beans to which onions, catsup, mustard or molasses have been added for extra flavor. Or combine franks in casserole with Spanish rice, cooked spaghetti or macaroni with sauce or with scalloped potatoes.

Frank-on-a-bun suggestion—Plan on one frank for a hearty luncheon or supper sandwich. Since quality franks are thoroughly cooked as purchased, the sandwich may be a cold one or the franks may be heated through, as you prefer.

Split a bun, toast it and spread it with butter or margarine and mustard. Cover with a frank slit in half and top with a slice of nippy cheese. Broil until the cheese is melted, brown and bubbly.

The Frank Quail is a variation of this combination. Simply slit the franks not quite through and insert a stick of cheese. Wrap spiral fashion with bacon and fasten with a toothpick. Bake or broil until the bacon is crisp and the cheese melted.

For an appetizer, cut franks in one-inch slices and spear with a toothpick for easy eating. Have a small bowl of barbecue sauce. Each person dips the franks in thin barbecue sauce and eats.

Thin Barbecue Sauce (1 pint)

One-quarter pound butter or margarine, 1 cup vinegar, ¼ cup water, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ cup Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup tomato catsup, ¼ cup chili sauce, 1½ teaspoons lemon juice, 1 small clove, garlic tied in porous cloth bag, cayenne pepper, (optional).

Mix all ingredients together and simmer 1 hour to blend. Remove garlic. Add cayenne pepper for a "hot" sauce. This sauce may be made and stored in the regrigerator and used cold with franks or hot with steaks, spareribs, short ribs, franks, hamburgers, liver, chicken.

Desert Exhibit Planned

Jerusalem (AP) — On the site where two thousand years ago Roman soldiers of he Tenth Legion assembled to conquer Jerusalem, the Israel government is now preparing an international exhibition on "How to conquer the Desert." The hill to the west of the Israel administered section of the Holy City is already topped by what promises to become the biggest building in all Judea: the Zionist Convention and Exposition Hall with a tremendous stage and an adjacent open air amphitheatre. A number of foreign governments and some twenty international missions will present their exhibits when the show opens in spring next year—among them UN bodies such as the International Food and Agricultural Organization, the World Health Organization and UNESCO.

Train Resumes Run

Kuala Lumpur (AP)—The northbound mail train service between Singapore and Kuala Lumpur is being resumed after constant Communist guerilla attacks and derailments caused it to be suspended 20 months ago. At the peak of the attacks night trains were derailed or fired on several times a week. Freight trains continued to run at night after suspension of the passenger service. The resumption of the night mail service indicates an improvement in the situation in South Malaya, where security forces under High Commissioner, Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, have been achieving success against the Red insurgents recently.

Libya is the fourth independent African country. Egypt, Ethiopia and Liberia are the others free of ties to colonial empires.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Harry Rigby gave one of his interesting talks on the Hudson Valley at Haines Falls, where one of the audience, Cleveland A. Dunn of Twilight Park, gave him an interesting item on Wilbur. Mr. Rigby passed it along to me and now perhaps my readers can add something to it. Mr. Dunn writes in part: "My grandfather, Nathaniel Dunn, born in Maine in 1800, was a scientist, proficient in chemistry. He was however, somewhat of a dreamer. He conceived the idea of making a certain acid commercially from hemlock logs stacked in certain large stone vaults, and then setting fire to them. While they burned slowly, the acid would flow freely from the outlet. He enlisted the support of certain men of capital in New York, among whom was a Mr. Wilber."

Old timers know that hemlock bark was used for tanning leather and the trees were destroyed in the process. The bark also was a loss. The old time tanners ruined miles of forests around here that way. They would work in one section where there were hemlock trees, and when that part was used up they moved elsewhere. Mr. Dunn further writes: "These men of wealth studied the Hudson, to decide where to locate their project, and finally settled on Rondout Creek. They acquired a considerable amount of land, and proceeded to build the experimental burning vault. Theoretically, it worked, but the very small amount of acid produced convinced them that the project was not successful financially."

His story on Wilbur continues with: "Mr. Wilbur and his associates considered that their property could make a splendid site for an industrial community and decided to lay it out in streets. My grandfather was a talented engineer, and they put him in charge of the work. But the work had hardly been started when occurred the great panic of 1837. The New York capitalists were wiped out, and the development stopped. One of the evidences still remaining, is a street there bearing the name of Dunn street, named for my grandfather."

To my recollection, Wilbur was started by the D. & H. Canal business which was opened for commerce in October 1828. This acid making idea is new to me, but perhaps many such projects were started from the material and raw products at hand, hoping to commercialize it. He does not say what the acid was or what it was to be used for.

Reading about the auto accidents during the holiday weekends, I went back to the Labor Day weekend of 1941. One item reads: "Kingston's first peacetime Labor Day holiday since 1941, was observed quietly in the city, and was marked by the fact that there were no fatalities or auto accidents. Traffic, however, was up to pre-war levels, and thousands of cars passed through the city." Then the writer went back to 1921 when traffic was held up by the Skillypot for hours and hours. They used to line up for the two ferries as far as Abeel street. Sometimes the cars did not go over the ferry for four hours, and the occupants spent their time buying soft drinks and food in Rondout.

. . . BUT WHERE'S DADDY?—Navy Secretary Dan A. Kimball presents the Medal of Honor to Byron Eugene Poynter, 2, of Downey, Calif., whose father, Sgt. James I. Poynter, 33, died in combat in Korea. Sgt. Poynter charged three enemy machine gun nests, killing the crews of two, and putting the third out of action before falling under fire. His widow, Mrs. Kathern G. M. Poynter, holds Byron as the presentation is made.

DOLLARS OF FRIENDSHIP—Mrs. Portia Washington Pittman, only living daughter of the late Negro educator, Booker T. Washington, presents a collector's set of Carver-Washington commemorative half-dollars to Francis Cardinal Spellman, at headquarters of the Archdiocese of New York. By authorization of Congress, the coins are being sold at a premium by banks throughout the country to help finance the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial of Virginia. The Memorial has been instituted to aid underprivileged Negroes.

Bookkeeper Held In Swindle Case

Mineola, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—A second person was under arrest today in an alleged $480,000 swindle case in which a Long Island bank president has shot himself and a woman building firm head has been held.

District Attorney Frank A. Gulotta of Nassau county announced yesterday the arrest of James J. Golden, 37, of Flushing, Queens, a bookkeeper at Ideal Insulators, Inc., headed by Mrs. Lillian B. Robinson.

Gulotta charged Golden with issuing a forged instrument and said he knowingly carried phony loan applications from Mrs. Robinson to the Central National Bank of Mineola.

Mrs. Robinson, 47, was arrested Aug. 27 on a forgery charge and accused of swindling the bank through hundreds of falsified loan applications and certificates of home improvement jobs.

Two days later, Bank President William H. Abel, 45, shot and critically wounded himself. He had brought the complaint against Mrs. Robinson.

Gulotta said Golden told him orally yesterday that he first began carrying documents for Mrs. Robinson in the spring of 1951 and, by summer, had realized that they were forged.

The district attorney quoted the bookkeeper as saying he threatened to quit but stayed on the job when he received a $40 weekly raise to $125. Later Gulotta said, Golden borrowed $1,200 from Mrs. Robinson's company and was never asked to repay it.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Harry Rigby gave one of his interesting talks on the Hudson Valley at Haines Falls, where one of the audience, Cleveland A. Dunn of Twilight Park, gave him an interesting item on Wilbur. Mr. Rigby passed it along to me and now perhaps my readers can add something to it. Mr. Dunn writes in part: "My grandfather, Nathaniel Dunn, born in Maine in 1800, was a scientist, proficient in chemistry. He was however, somewhat of a dreamer. He conceived the idea of making a certain acid commercially from hemlock logs stacked in certain large stone vaults, and then setting fire to them. While they burned slowly, the acid would flow freely from the outlet. He enlisted the support of certain men of capital in New York, among whom was a Mr. Wilber."

Old timers know that hemlock bark was used for tanning leather and the trees were destroyed in the process. The bark also was a loss. The old time tanners ruined miles of forests around here that way. They would work in one section where there were hemlock trees, and when that part was used up they moved elsewhere. Mr. Dunn further writes: "These men of wealth studied the Hudson, to decide where to locate their project, and finally settled on Rondout Creek. They acquired a considerable amount of land, and proceeded to build the experimental burning vault. Theoretically, it worked, but the very small amount of acid produced convinced them that the project was not successful financially."

His story on Wilbur continues with: "Mr. Wilbur and his associates considered that their property could make a splendid site for an industrial community and decided to lay it out in streets. My grandfather was a talented engineer, and they put him in charge of the work. But the work had hardly been started when occurred the great panic of 1837. The New York capitalists were wiped out, and the development stopped. One of the evidences still remaining, is a street there bearing the name of Dunn street, named for my grandfather."

To my recollection, Wilbur was started by the D. & H. Canal business which was opened for commerce in October 1828. This acid making idea is new to me, but perhaps many such projects were started from the material and raw products at hand, hoping to commercialize it. He does not say what the acid was or what it was to be used for.

Reading about the auto accidents during the holiday weekends, I went back to the Labor Day weekend of 1941. One item reads: "Kingston's first peacetime Labor Day holiday since 1941, was observed quietly in the city, and was marked by the fact that there were no fatalities or auto accidents. Traffic, however, was up to pre-war levels, and thousands of cars passed through the city." Then the writer went back to 1921 when traffic was held up by the Skillypot for hours and hours. They used to line up for the two ferries as far as Abeel street. Sometimes the cars did not go over the ferry for four hours, and the occupants spent their time buying soft drinks and food in Rondout.

. . . BUT WHERE'S DADDY?—Navy Secretary Dan A. Kimball presents the Medal of Honor to Byron Eugene Poynter, 2, of Downey, Calif., whose father, Sgt. James I. Poynter, 33, died in combat in Korea. Sgt. Poynter charged three enemy machine gun nests, killing the crews of two, and putting the third out of action before falling under fire. His widow, Mrs. Kathern G. M. Poynter, holds Byron as the presentation is made.

Will Ask Death Sentence for Man In Girl's Stabbing

Carmel, Sept. 9 (AP)—About 150 people packed a county courtroom here today as testimony began in the murder-kidnaping trial of convict Donald Snyder, 26, whose prison escape led to the killing of a little girl.

Among the spectators were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Arnold, parents of nine-year-old Betty June, who was fatally stabbed in the stomach last June 11 as Snyder held her hostage.

After opening statements by the defense and prosecution, six witnesses testified during the morning session, most of them giving information of a technical nature.

Snyder escaped last June 10 from Greenhaven State Prison by slipping away from a road gang. With an intensive police hunt on, he showed up next afternoon at the Arnold home near Mahopac.

When Betty June alighted from a school bus, he seized her, and held her hostage in the Arnold garage, threatening to stab her with a carving knife if molested by police who were closing in.

The girl was killed as Alexander Williams, bus driver and part-time policeman, shot Synder three times.

Will Ask Death Sentence

The prosecutor told the jury he will ask a first-degree murder conviction, which carries a mandatory death sentence. The defense said it will show the slaying was not felonious assault.

Among early witnesses were two policemen, who took measurements at the death scene; Charles McNamara, Greenhaven State Prison clerk; George Beckett, county engineer who exhibited a map of the area, and two of the Arnolds' neighbors, Mrs. Florence Rice and Charles Payer.

Although the trial began a week ago, the jury of 12, plus two alternates, was completed only yesterday.

Putnam County Judge John P. Donohoe is presiding.

Snyder was serving time for car theft at the time of his escape, and soon would have been eligible for parole.

No Bond Granted

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—A 17-year-old candy worker was held today without bond for a hearing Sept. 15 on a homicide charge in the strangling of a Long Island expectant mother. The youth, Leonard Oliver Freeman, a Negro, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Corning F. McKennee in Queens Adolescent Court. He was nervous but silent. Freeman, who was called "Bat Man" by his neighbors because of his habit of wandering at night, admitted attacking more than 20 women in Brooklyn and Queens during the last month, authorities said.

Testimony Is Given

Hudson, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Columbia county's extraordinary grand jury heard six state troopers and a Republican committeeman today as it continued looking into possible links between the Hudson police department and prostitution here. The troopers all participated in a raid on disorderly houses in Columbia street in June, 1950. The other witness was Samuel Raco, member of the county Republican committee, who testified before the State Crime Commission last December that he had seen police officers in a disorderly house.

80 Routed by Fire

Personal Income Cut by Strike in Steel Industry

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP) — The Commerce Department said today the steel strike reduced personal income in July an estimated two and one-half billion dollars under the annual income rate for June.

But total personal income and farm income for the first seven months of this year were both running ahead of 1951 rates, the department said.

The July income decline "centered in wages and salaries and reflected payroll losses in steel-producing and fabricating industries," the report said. It added that other personal income showed little change in July.

This indicates the July fall was temporary. Other commerce department reports have said industry is recovering rapidly from the steel strike of June and July.

British Warship

British government was negotiating for transportation of the crew on a conducted tour of points of interest in the surrounding valley area, concluding with a visit to the Roosevelt estate at Hyde Park. Mayor Newkirk has prepared a mimeographed list of points of interest in Kingston and its environs, including a sketch map and has offered to supply guides, familiar with the lore of the countryside.

The Walter Reade theatres have invited the entire crew of the vessel to be their guests Thursday and Friday evenings and the Elks, Moose, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars are offering their facilities in a series of "open house" affairs during the four-day visit of the frigate.

Kiwanis, Rotary and the Lions Club, which have as one of their objectives the cultivation of friendship among the nations of the world, are underwriting a reception to be held at the Twaalfskill Club, the anniversary committee has announced.

To Restore Guidon

The visit of the British ship will mark one of the last events upon the agenda approved by the Tercentennial Committee last year. To come is the restoration of the historic guidon to Battery A, of the 156th Field Artillery Battalion, National Guard, stationed at the Manor avenue Armory. This unit, the oldest in continuous existence in the United States, lost the sentiment-laden guidon, when it sailed for France during World War 2. As a tercentennial project, a campaign was undertaken to restore it, which has been successful through the joint efforts of the anniversary committee and Lt. General Willis D. Crittenberger and Col. C. Pemberton Lenart, assistant to the adjutant general of New York. Ceremonies, now in the making, are scheduled for the last week in September, it was said.

The Kingston Tercentennial Committee, on August 7, 1951, made the initial contact with British Consul Wilfred L. Thomas in New York, soliciting the participation of the British government in the 300th anniversary celebration.

Consul Thomas immediately contacted Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and jointly they worked out plans for the Burghead Bay's visit and for the international broadcast at the beginning of the tercentennial year between Kingston-upon Thames, in the British Isles, and Kingston, New York. The latter phases of the planning have been accomplished by Henry A. Hobson, who replaced Thomas as consul, and F. G. Burrett, vice consul.

In addition to Captain Ievers, the Burghead Bay carries Lt. Commander D. D. O'Sullivan as her executive officer, Lt. Commander E. J. Cooper as navigating officer, Lt. Commander J. V. Haddock as supply officer, Surgeon-Lieutenant L. J. Cawley as medical officer, Sub-Lieutenant P. G. N. Cardno as T. A. S. officer, Cmd. Gunner T. F. Herbert as armament officer, Senr. Cmd. Engineer H. Harwood as engineer officer, and two midshipmen, Robinson and Quinn, as officers in training. British Admiral Killenkoltter, travelling independently, will meet the frigate at Kingston and will be aboard during her stay here.

After leaving Kingston Sunday, the Burghead Bay will proceed to Albany for several days' stay.

Anglo Delegation Says Charges on Liquor Unfounded

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—The British United Nations delegation describes as completely unfounded the charges by liquor dealers that some of its staff bootlegged tax-free liquor to outsiders.

The allegations were made yesterday at the National Retail Liquor Package Store Association convention.

A British delegation spokesman said in a statement last night that the charges are "without any evidence to support them (and) we cannot be expected to take them seriously."

Benjamin Josephs, president of the Dealers' Association, said underlings in the British and Soviet Russian delegations were the worst offenders. He also named the delegations from France, Brazil, the Netherlands, Nicaragua, Equador and Peru.

Only the British have issued a statement.

Denies Bootlegging

However, a UN spokesman denied any bootlegging by its personnel. And the United States delegation said it knew of no abuses of the tax-free liquor setup and that it had not heard any complaints.

Top UN officials and members of foreign delegations are permitted to ask for and receive specific allotments of tax-free liquor from warehouses. Requests are handled by the State Department.

Josephs said lesser personnel—not top diplomats—were buying more liquor than they could drink and re-selling it to American civilians outside the world organization. He asked a congressional probe.

The Dealers' Association also heard similar charges against American officers in service clubs.

Hero Joins Family, Heart Attack Fatal

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—He stepped off the plane at New York International Airport, his pulse quickened at the prospect of seeing his wife and boy. Capt. Martin Brent was happy, perhaps too happy.

It was the second time the 30-year-old air force officer had come home from war.

In World War 2, he had flown nearly 100 missions, been repeatedly decorated, shot down and badly wounded in one raid, rescued and hospitalized for nine months.

After that, he had begun studying to become an accountant, only to be called back to service last year. Now, after 27 missions in Korea, he was home again.

He had made it last Sunday, just barely in time to celebrate the seventh birthday of his son, Michael.

The captain's heart raced as the taxicab carried him across town to his Manhattan apartment. Everything, the old familiar sights, looked good—even the New York air smelled delicious.

They met him at the door, Shirley, his wife, hugging and kissing him, Michael jumping up and down, yelling for joy. The captain was in the clouds with happiness.

He had a surprise gift for the boy—the headphones he had worn during all his wartime flights. Michael danced with delight, tried the headphones on his own chubby little head.

As the captain watched, smiling, a stab of pain cut through his chest. Then again. His wife guided him to a bed, and called a doctor. When the doctor arrived, happy Capt. Brent was dead from a heart attack.

Laundry Proposals

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—One-week paid vacations were recommended today for some 46,000 New York state laundry workers—the first time such a suggestion has been embodied in a proposed New York state minimum wage order. A nine-member board which has been studying such an order for the laundry industry made its final report to Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi. The board recommended that present minimum rates be raised to 75 cents an hour, that workers be guaranteed a minimum weekly wage of $28 for more than 30 hours a week work, and that the state no longer be divided into zones with different minimum rates.

Three Are Arrested

Three persons arrested on traffic charges by State Police Corporal Ray Dunn of Phoenicia paid fines totaling $45 when they were arraigned before Justice of the Peace George Braendly of the Town of Woodstock, Gerald Schorsch of Kew Gardens, accused of speeding at 75 miles per hour, was fined $25, and Marie Sherman and Margaret Beck of Woodstock were fined $10 each on charges that they passed a stopped school bus, Justice Braendly said.

Woman Fine $10

Mary Mason, 26, of New York city, who was arrested in Woodstock on Sunday, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving without a license and was fined $10 by Justice of the Peace George Braendly on Monday. Mrs. Mason was listed by state police as the driver of an automobile which struck a pole in Woodstock early Sunday morning.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP) — The position of the treasury Sept. 5: Net budget receipts, $144,326,708.94. Budget expenditures, $201,555,543.69. Cash balance, $5,861,443,741.31. Customs receipts for month, $9,522,822.68. Budget receipts fiscal year, July 1, $7,804,485,075.40. Budget expenditures fiscal year, $12,643,517,330.40. Budget deficit, $4,839,032,255.00. Total debt, $262,833,320,559.44. Decrease under previous day, $31,468,087.07. Gold assets, $23,344,432,573.14.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—The stock market was shaken by a fast and brief selling flurry today but bounced back in a recovery movement that pulled the list up from the lows.

Losses ran from fractions to around 2 points while gains were almost entirely fractional.

The volume of business was fairly brisk at a rate that approximated yesterday's 1,170,000 shares.

Railroads, steels, motors, and chemicals were among the most active major sections on the downside. On the rebound there was outstanding resistance shown in these sections to the fall, and some small plus signs appeared.

During the morning the Association of American Railroads reported major carriers across the nation had an estimated net income in July of 36 million as against 18 million a year ago.

Copper mining shares were higher almost from the start and were fairly active. They were under severe pressure yesterday. Some sources ascribed the weakness to fear of nationalization threats bandied about in the Chilean presidential election campaign.

Lower stocks included Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, American Telephone, Standard Oil (N.J.), Woolworth, Dow Chemical, Philip Morris, and U. S. Gypsum.

Higher were Caterpillar Tractor, Anaconda Copper, Kennecott Copper, American Smelting, American Cyanamid, and International Paper.

Wisconsin Decides

the nation and I hope that every voter in Wisconsin will go to the polls Tuesday to express himself on this vital question."

Battles Fairchild

On the Democratic side, Henry Reuss of Milwaukee was battling Thomas Fairchild of Verona, former attorney general, for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Reuss had the endorsement of the state CIO. But State CIO President Herman Steffes urged members of his union voting in the GOP primary to support Schmitt against McCarthy.

The four long-shot candidates in the McCarthy-Schmitt contest are Edward Finan of Bristol, Edmund Kerwer of Lake Geneva, Edward Jacobson of Kenosha, and Perry Stearns of Milwaukee.

Three GOP incumbents are fighting to retain their seats in Congress. They are: Rep. Glen. R. Davis (second district); Rep. Gardner Withrow (third); and Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski (ninth). Three candidates are in the race for the seat left vacant by the late Rep. Reed Murray (seventh).

Seven Other Primaries

There are seven other state primaries today—in Arizona, Colorado, New Hampshire, Minnesota, Utah, Vermont and Washington.

Their highlights:

NEW HAMPSHIRE — Governor's election in spotlight, with close races in both GOP and Democratic sides expected to bring near-record vote. Also to be elected: Two U. S. representatives, with GOP incumbents favored, and many local officials.

VERMONT — Nominates GOP candidates for governor, U. S. senator, and U. S. representatives who, if tradition is followed, will be elected in November.

UTAH—Marriner S. Eccles, former Federal Reserve Board chairman, clashes with incumbent Sen. Arthur V. Watkins for the GOP senatorial nomination.

WASHINGTON—Sen. Harry P. Cain favored to win GOP renomination; U. S. Rep. Henry Jackson unopposed for Democratic senatorial spot. Major interest in five-way battle for Democratic nomination for governor.

ARIZONA — Unusually mild campaign, light vote expected. Several incumbents unopposed.

MINNESOTA—Republican Sen. Edward J. Thye and Gov. C. Elmer Anderson each faced five opponents in GOP primaries. Democratic-Farmer-Laborites (DFL) also has a host of candidates to choose from as both parties picked their men for U. S. senator, governor, other state offices. Three of nine House members had opposition: Republican Joseph P. O'Hara and DFL Fred Marshall and Row W. Wier.

Maine Returns Show GOP Wins

Portland, Me., Sept. 9 (AP) — Politicians today avidly pored over figures from the Maine election—a ninth successive sweep for the Republicans—in search of a straw in the presidential winds.

Yesterday's first state election of '52 produced for the GOP a senator-elect — Gov. Frederick G. Payne—Governor-elect Burton M. Cross and three Congressmen with new terms.

But Payne had to be content with 59 per cent of the vote, compared to Sen. Margaret Chase Smith's record 71.4 per cent in 1948—the last presidential year.

Congressman Robert Hale, Charles Nelson and Clifford G. McIntire bettered the percentages in the congressional races of both 1950 and 1948.

'Latent Landslide'

Arthur E. Summerfield, the Republican National Committee Chairman, made a note of that in a Washington statement calling the election results an indication of "a latent landslide sentiment in the United States for a complete change in Washington."

Roger P. Dube, the young Democrat who lost to Payne, claimbed gains for his party, however, and said they presage "a strong Democrat victory throughout the nation in November."

Dube got 35 per cent of the vote—as against 28.6 for the Democratic Senate candidate in 1948. The remaining six went to Earl S. Grant, Democrat-Independent.

Yesterday's biggest vote — almost 247,500—came in a four-way race for governor.

All But 2 Counties

Except for Democratic Androscoggin, Payne and Cross carried all of Maine's 16 counties. In 1948, Mrs. Smith took each of the 16 and Payne, then running for his first term as governor, won all but Androscoggin and York. In 1950 all 16 were in his column.

In the senate voting, the Democrats made a net gain in the cities, capturing Saco along with Lewiston, Biddeford and Old Town, which went Democratic in 1948.

Dude was ahead by 120 votes in Saco—1,896 to Payne's 1,766 with Grant getting 224.

This year's total vote approximated that of 1950, when Payne won his second term with 145,823 votes to 94,304 for Grant, who then was the regular Democratic nominee.

In 1948 Mrs. Smith polled 159,182 to 64,074 for Dr. Adrian H. Scolten, Democrat. Payne had 145,956 to 76,544 for Democrat Louis B. Kausier.

Maine's record vote in a state election came in 1936 when Senator Wallace H. White, Republican, defeated former Democratic Gov. Louis J. Brann 158,068 to 153,420. The total was 311,488.

Will Ask Death Sentence for Man In Girl's Stabbing

Carmel, Sept. 9 (AP)—About 150 people packed a county courtroom here today as testimony began in the murder-kidnaping trial of convict Donald Snyder, 26, whose prison escape led to the killing of a little girl.

Among the spectators were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Arnold, parents of nine-year-old Betty June, who was fatally stabbed in the stomach last June 11 as Snyder held her hostage.

After opening statements by the defense and prosecution, six witnesses testified during the morning session, most of them giving information of a technical nature.

Snyder escaped last June 10 from Greenhaven State Prison by slipping away from a road gang. With an intensive police hunt on, he showed up next afternoon at the Arnold home near Mahopac.

When Betty June alighted from a school bus, he seized her, and held her hostage in the Arnold garage, threatening to stab her with a carving knife if molested by police who were closing in.

The girl was killed as Alexander Williams, bus driver and part-time policeman, shot Synder three times.

Will Ask Death Sentence

The prosecutor told the jury he will ask a first-degree murder conviction, which carries a mandatory death sentence. The defense said it will show the slaying was not felonious assault.

Among early witnesses were two policemen, who took measurements at the death scene; Charles McNamara, Greenhaven State Prison clerk; George Beckett, county engineer who exhibited a map of the area, and two of the Arnolds' neighbors, Mrs. Florence Rice and Charles Payer.

Although the trial began a week ago, the jury of 12, plus two alternates, was completed only yesterday.

Putnam County Judge John P. Donohoe is presiding.

Snyder was serving time for car theft at the time of his escape, and soon would have been eligible for parole.

Personal Income Cut by Strike in Steel Industry

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP) — The Commerce Department said today the steel strike reduced personal income in July an estimated two and one-half billion dollars under the annual income rate for June.

But total personal income and farm income for the first seven months of this year were both running ahead of 1951 rates, the department said.

The July income decline "centered in wages and salaries and reflected payroll losses in steel-producing and fabricating industries," the report said. It added that other personal income showed little change in July.

This indicates the July fall was temporary. Other commerce department reports have said industry is recovering rapidly from the steel strike of June and July.

British Warship

British government was negotiating for transportation of the crew on a conducted tour of points of interest in the surrounding valley area, concluding with a visit to the Roosevelt estate at Hyde Park. Mayor Newkirk has prepared a mimeographed list of points of interest in Kingston and its environs, including a sketch map and has offered to supply guides, familiar with the lore of the countryside.

The Walter Reade theatres have invited the entire crew of the vessel to be their guests Thursday and Friday evenings and the Elks, Moose, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars are offering their facilities in a series of "open house" affairs during the four-day visit of the frigate.

Kiwanis, Rotary and the Lions Club, which have as one of their objectives the cultivation of friendship among the nations of the world, are underwriting a reception to be held at the Twaalfskill Club, the anniversary committee has announced.

To Restore Guidon

The visit of the British ship will mark one of the last events upon the agenda approved by the Tercentennial Committee last year. To come is the restoration of the historic guidon to Battery A, of the 156th Field Artillery Battalion, National Guard, stationed at the Manor avenue Armory. This unit, the oldest in continuous existence in the United States, lost the sentiment-laden guidon, when it sailed for France during World War 2. As a tercentennial project, a campaign was undertaken to restore it, which has been successful through the joint efforts of the anniversary committee and Lt. General Willis D. Crittenberger and Col. C. Pemberton Lenart, assistant to the adjutant general of New York. Ceremonies, now in the making, are scheduled for the last week in September, it was said.

The Kingston Tercentennial Committee, on August 7, 1951, made the initial contact with British Consul Wilfred L. Thomas in New York, soliciting the participation of the British government in the 300th anniversary celebration.

Consul Thomas immediately contacted Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and jointly they worked out plans for the Burghead Bay's visit and for the international broadcast at the beginning of the tercentennial year between Kingston-upon Thames, in the British Isles, and Kingston, New York. The latter phases of the planning have been accomplished by Henry A. Hobson, who replaced Thomas as consul, and F. G. Burrett, vice consul.

In addition to Captain Ievers, the Burghead Bay carries Lt. Commander D. D. O'Sullivan as her executive officer, Lt. Commander E. J. Cooper as navigating officer, Lt. Commander J. V. Haddock as supply officer, Surgeon-Lieutenant L. J. Cawley as medical officer, Sub-Lieutenant P. G. N. Cardno as T. A. S. officer, Cmd. Gunner T. F. Herbert as armament officer, Senr. Cmd. Engineer H. Harwood as engineer officer, and two midshipmen, Robinson and Quinn, as officers in training. British Admiral Killenkoltter, travelling independently, will meet the frigate at Kingston and will be aboard during her stay here.

After leaving Kingston Sunday, the Burghead Bay will proceed to Albany for several days' stay.

Myers, Kingston; William MacReady, Woodstock; Bev Anderson, Kingston; Miss Everice Parsons, Kingston, and Mrs. Edwin Shumate, Lomontville.

No Bond Granted

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—A 17-year-old candy worker was held today without bond for a hearing Sept. 15 on a homicide charge in the strangling of a Long Island expectant mother. The youth, Leonard Oliver Freeman, a Negro, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Corning F. McKennee in Queens Adolescent Court. He was nervous but silent. Freeman, who was called "Bat Man" by his neighbors because of his habit of wandering at night, admitted attacking more than 20 women in Brooklyn and Queens during the last month, authorities said.

Testimony Is Given

Hudson, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Columbia county's extraordinary grand jury heard six state troopers and a Republican committeeman today as it continued looking into possible links between the Hudson police department and prostitution here. The troopers all participated in a raid on disorderly houses in Columbia street in June, 1950. The other witness was Samuel Raco, member of the county Republican committee, who testified before the State Crime Commission last December that he had seen police officers in a disorderly house.

Bound for Coast

Anglo Delegation Says Charges on Liquor Unfounded

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—The British United Nations delegation describes as completely unfounded the charges by liquor dealers that some of its staff bootlegged tax-free liquor to outsiders.

The allegations were made yesterday at the National Retail Liquor Package Store Association convention.

A British delegation spokesman said in a statement last night that the charges are "without any evidence to support them (and) we cannot be expected to take them seriously."

Benjamin Josephs, president of the Dealers' Association, said underlings in the British and Soviet Russian delegations were the worst offenders. He also named the delegations from France, Brazil, the Netherlands, Nicaragua, Equador and Peru.

Only the British have issued a statement.

Denies Bootlegging

However, a UN spokesman denied any bootlegging by its personnel. And the United States delegation said it knew of no abuses of the tax-free liquor setup and that it had not heard any complaints.

Top UN officials and members of foreign delegations are permitted to ask for and receive specific allotments of tax-free liquor from warehouses. Requests are handled by the State Department.

Josephs said lesser personnel—not top diplomats—were buying more liquor than they could drink and re-selling it to American civilians outside the world organization. He asked a congressional probe.

The Dealers' Association also heard similar charges against American officers in service clubs.

Hero Joins Family, Heart Attack Fatal

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—He stepped off the plane at New York International Airport, his pulse quickened at the prospect of seeing his wife and boy. Capt. Martin Brent was happy, perhaps too happy.

It was the second time the 30-year-old air force officer had come home from war.

In World War 2, he had flown nearly 100 missions, been repeatedly decorated, shot down and badly wounded in one raid, rescued and hospitalized for nine months.

After that, he had begun studying to become an accountant, only to be called back to service last year. Now, after 27 missions in Korea, he was home again.

He had made it last Sunday, just barely in time to celebrate the seventh birthday of his son, Michael.

The captain's heart raced as the taxicab carried him across town to his Manhattan apartment. Everything, the old familiar sights, looked good—even the New York air smelled delicious.

They met him at the door, Shirley, his wife, hugging and kissing him, Michael jumping up and down, yelling for joy. The captain was in the clouds with happiness.

He had a surprise gift for the boy—the headphones he had worn during all his wartime flights. Michael danced with delight, tried the headphones on his own chubby little head.

As the captain watched, smiling, a stab of pain cut through his chest. Then again. His wife guided him to a bed, and called a doctor. When the doctor arrived, happy Capt. Brent was dead from a heart attack.

Laundry Proposals

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—One-week paid vacations were recommended today for some 46,000 New York state laundry workers—the first time such a suggestion has been embodied in a proposed New York state minimum wage order. A nine-member board which has been studying such an order for the laundry industry made its final report to Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi. The board recommended that present minimum rates be raised to 75 cents an hour, that workers be guaranteed a minimum weekly wage of $28 for more than 30 hours a week work, and that the state no longer be divided into zones with different minimum rates.

Three Are Arrested

Three persons arrested on traffic charges by State Police Corporal Ray Dunn of Phoenicia paid fines totaling $45 when they were arraigned before Justice of the Peace George Braendly of the Town of Woodstock. Gerald Schorsch of Kew Gardens, accused of speeding at 75 miles per hour, was fined $25, and Marie Sherman and Margaret Beck of Woodstock were fined $10 each on charges that they passed a stopped school bus, Justice Braendly said.

Woman Fine $10

Mary Mason, 26, of New York city, who was arrested in Woodstock on Sunday, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving without a license and was fined $10 by Justice of the Peace George Braendly on Monday. Mrs. Mason was listed by state police as the driver of an automobile which struck a pole in Woodstock early Sunday morning.

Churchills Take Trip

London, Sept. 9 (AP) — Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill left by plane today for a two-week holiday in Nice, France. Churchill, a leisure-time painter, carried a large easel with him.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—The stock market was shaken by a fast and brief selling flurry today but bounced back in a recovery movement that pulled the list up from the lows.

Losses ran from fractions to around 2 points while gains were almost entirely fractional.

The volume of business was fairly brisk at a rate that approximated yesterday's 1,170,000 shares.

Railroads, steels, motors, and chemicals were among the most active major sections on the downside. On the rebound there was outstanding resistance shown in these sections to the fall, and some small plus signs appeared.

During the morning the Association of American Railroads reported major carriers across the nation had an estimated net income in July of 36 million as against 18 million a year ago.

Copper mining shares were higher almost from the start and were fairly active. They were under severe pressure yesterday. Some sources ascribed the weakness to fear of nationalization threats bandied about in the Chilean presidential election campaign.

Lower stocks included Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, American Telephone, Standard Oil (N.J.), Woolworth, Dow Chemical, Philip Morris, and U. S. Gypsum.

Higher were Caterpillar Tractor, Anaconda Copper, Kennecott Copper, American Smelting, American Cyanamid, and International Paper.

Wisconsin Decides

the nation and I hope that every voter in Wisconsin will go to the polls Tuesday to express himself on this vital question."

Battles Fairchild

On the Democratic side, Henry Reuss of Milwaukee was battling Thomas Fairchild of Verona, former attorney general, for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Reuss had the endorsement of the state CIO. But State CIO President Herman Steffes urged members of his union voting in the GOP primary to support Schmitt against McCarthy.

The four long-shot candidates in the McCarthy-Schmitt contest are Edward Finan of Bristol, Edmund Kerwer of Lake Geneva, Edward Jacobson of Kenosha, and Perry Stearns of Milwaukee.

Three GOP incumbents are fighting to retain their seats in Congress. They are: Rep. Glen. R. Davis (second district); Rep. Gardner Withrow (third); and Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski (ninth). Three candidates are in the race for the seat left vacant by the late Rep. Reed Murray (seventh).

Seven Other Primaries

There are seven other state primaries today—in Arizona, Colorado, New Hampshire, Minnesota, Utah, Vermont and Washington.

Their highlights:

NEW HAMPSHIRE — Governor's election in spotlight, with close races in both GOP and Democratic sides expected to bring near-record vote. Also to be elected: Two U. S. representatives, with GOP incumbents favored, and many local officials.

VERMONT — Nominates GOP candidates for governor, U. S. senator, and U. S. representatives who, if tradition is followed, will be elected in November.

UTAH—Marriner S. Eccles, former Federal Reserve Board chairman, clashes with incumbent Sen. Arthur V. Watkins for the GOP senatorial nomination.

WASHINGTON—Sen. Harry P. Cain favored to win GOP renomination; U. S. Rep. Henry Jackson unopposed for Democratic senatorial spot. Major interest in five-way battle for Democratic nomination for governor.

COLORADO—Only congressional interest pits youthful Richard Paynter against Rep. William S. Hill, seeking GOP renomination. Governor's race in spotlight.

ARIZONA — Unusually mild campaign, light vote expected. Several incumbents unopposed.

MINNESOTA—Republican Sen. Edward J. Thye and Gov. C. Elmer Anderson each faced five opponents in GOP primaries. Democratic-Farmer-Laborites (DFL) also has a host of candidates to choose from as both parties picked their men for U. S. senator, governor, other state offices. Three of nine House members had opposition: Republican Joseph P. O'Hara and DFL Fred Marshall and Row W. Wier.

Maine Returns Show GOP Wins

Portland, Me., Sept. 9 (AP) — Politicians today avidly pored over figures from the Maine election—a ninth successive sweep for the Republicans—in search of a straw in the presidential winds.

Yesterday's first state election of '52 produced for the GOP a senator-elect — Gov. Frederick G. Payne—Governor-elect Burton M. Cross and three Congressmen with new terms.

But Payne had to be content with 59 per cent of the vote, compared to Sen. Margaret Chase Smith's record 71.4 per cent in 1948—the last presidential year.

Congressman Robert Hale, Charles Nelson and Clifford G. McIntire bettered the percentages in the congressional races of both 1950 and 1948.

'Latent Landslide'

Arthur E. Summerfield, the Republican National Committee Chairman, made a note of that in a Washington statement calling the election results an indication of "a latent landslide sentiment in the United States for a complete change in Washington."

Roger P. Dube, the young Democrat who lost to Payne, claimbed gains for his party, however, and said they presage "a strong Democrat victory throughout the nation in November."

Dube got 35 per cent of the vote—as against 28.6 for the Democratic Senate candidate in 1948. The remaining six went to Earl S. Grant, Democrat-Independent.

Yesterday's biggest vote — almost 247,500—came in a four-way race for governor.

All But 2 Counties

Except for Democratic Androscoggin, Payne and Cross carried all of Maine's 16 counties. In 1948, Mrs. Smith took each of the 16 and Payne, then running for his first term as governor, won all but Androscoggin and York. In 1950 all 16 were in his column.

In the senate voting, the Democrats made a net gain in the cities, capturing Saco along with Lewiston, Biddeford and Old Town, which went Democratic in 1948.

Dude was ahead by 120 votes in Saco—1,896 to Payne's 1,766 with Grant getting 224.

This year's total vote approximated that of 1950, when Payne won his second term with 145,823 votes to 94,304 for Grant, who then was the regular Democratic nominee.

In 1948 Mrs. Smith polled 159,182 to 64,074 for Dr. Adrian H. Scolten, Democrat. Payne had 145,956 to 76,544 for Democrat Louis B. Kausier.

Maine's record vote in a state election came in 1936 when Senator Wallace H. White, Republican, defeated former Democratic Gov. Louis J. Brann 158,068 to 153,420. The total was 311,488.

Ives Sees Need For Industry Bond

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Sen. Irving M. Ives said today that social advances should be worked out by labor and management "by common agreement—and not under the whip of any man, even if he be the President of the United States."

In a speech prepared for the annual convention of the AFL International Chemical Workers Union, Ives declared:

"In brief, it is the province of the government, as I see it, to encourage labor and management voluntarily to reach common-sense decisions; to offer an impartial recourse to mediation when it is needed.

"But it is not the province of government constantly to force its own decisions down the throat of either management or labor—and that is a tendency which has been becoming alarmingly evident with those now at the head of our government. • • •

"Where the Taft-Hartley Act falls short of these goals, it must be altered. Some of the things Taft-Hartley added to the National Labor Relations Act ought to be scrapped; others should be retained."

No instances of government coercion were cited in Ives' text.

Ives, who is running for reelection Nov. 4, continued:

"The future cannot be shaped in the United States Congress alone. It will require new and far broader vision in the White House. And its roots, its beginnings, all lie in meetings like this one. • • •

"If we are to have fair and responsible and free collective bargaining—helped but not dictated by government—the vigor of America's trade unions must be maintained."

The 450 delegates at the five-day convention, which opened yesterday, represent 150,000 chemical workers.

To Bury Actress in Dress From Show, King and I

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Actress Gertrude Lawrence will be buried tomorrow in a dress she wore in "The King and I," the final triumph of an international career cut short by cancer.

In the gown in which she danced a polka, Miss Lawrence will be interred at Upton, Mass., in a plot that has belonged for two centuries to the family of her husband, Producer Richard Aldrich.

Funeral services will be held today in New York city at Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church (2 p. m. EST).

Miss Lawrence's attorney, Fanny Holtzman, disclosed yesterday that cancer caused the actress' death. The attorney, who also was a close friend of Miss Lawrence, said Aldrich had requested an autopsy.

Ives Sees Need For Industry Bond

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Sen. Irving M. Ives said today that social advances should be worked out by labor and management "by common agreement—and not under the whip of any man, even if he be the President of the United States."

In a speech prepared for the annual convention of the AFL International Chemical Workers Union, Ives declared:

"In brief, it is the province of the government, as I see it, to encourage labor and management voluntarily to reach commonsense decisions; to offer an impartial recourse to mediation when it is needed.

"But it is not the province of government constantly to force its own decisions down the throat of either management or labor—and that is a tendency which has been becoming alarmingly evident with those now at the head of our government. • • •

"Where the Taft-Hartley Act falls short of these goals, it must be altered. Some of the things Taft-Hartley added to the National Labor Relations Act ought to be scrapped; others should be retained."

No instances of government coercion were cited in Ives' text.

Ives, who is running for reelection Nov. 4, continued:

"The future cannot be shaped in the United States Congress alone. It will require new and far broader vision in the White House. And its roots, its beginnings, all lie in meetings like this one. • • •

"If we are to have fair and responsible and free collective bargaining—helped but not dictated by government—the vigor of America's trade unions must be maintained."

The 450 delegates at the five-day convention, which opened yesterday, represent 150,000 chemical workers.

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Actress Gertrude Lawrence will be buried tomorrow in a dress she wore in "The King and I," the final triumph of an international career cut short by cancer.

Funeral services will be held today in New York city at Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church (2 p. m. EST).

Miss Lawrence's attorney, Fanny Holtzman, disclosed yesterday that cancer caused the actress' death. The attorney, who also was a close friend of Miss Lawrence, said Aldrich had requested an autopsy.

West Park Flower Show Will Feature Unusual Horticulture Exhibits, September 13 and 14

It was announced today by Mrs. William H. van Benschoten, general chairman of the 23rd annual West Park Flower Show, that this year's event is expected to feature an even greater number of unusual horticulture exhibits than in previous years. The show will be open from 3 to 8 p. m. Saturday and from 1 to 6 p. m. Sunday. It is sponsored by the Ascension Church and will be held in the parish hall at West Park.

Mrs. van Benschoten's prediction, which also included the arrangement and other classes, is based upon "the tremendous interest being shown by gardeners throughout Ulster as well as other counties, and by the large number of entry forms already returned."

Among those entered are Mrs. Myrtle Brown, Hurley; Harry Briggs, Poughkeepsie, Miss Helena Olds, New Paltz; Mrs. Wilfred Adams, Beacon; Samuel Tinney, Port Ewen; John Bell and Mrs. J. Milo Hepworth of Milton; and Mrs. William J. Anderson, Port Ewen.

Three-Year Trophy

The three-year silver bowl trophy awarded for the first time last year to the exhibitor having the highest number of points in the show, was won by Mrs. William J. Anderson. The trophy must be won in three shows to keep it permanently.

Exhibits will be received at the parish house from 7 to 9 p. m. Friday and from 9 a. m. to 12 noon Saturday. All flowers in the cultural classes must be grown by the exhibitors. Flowers and other materials used in artistic arrangements need not be grown by the exhibitors.

Exhibits Judged

Cultural exhibits will be judged according to cultural perfection, size according to species or variety, form, color and substance, foliage and stem condition.

Artistic arrangements will be judged according to color combination, relation to container, proportion and balance, distinction and originality, suitability of combination of materials, and condition.

There are 101 classes in all, and schedules outlining the individual classes are available and may be obtained from Mrs. van Benschoten in West Park; the Ascension Church rectory, or any member of the committee.

Popular Class Repeated

The visitor's choice of an arrangement has been so popular since it was first introduced, three years ago, it will again be included in this year's show. The winner is selected by popular vote. The class is known as "crystal gazing" and comprises an arrangement of flowers in a glass container.

Tea will be served Saturday and Sunday from 4 to 5 p. m. A cafeteria dinner will be served Saturday beginning at 5:30 p. m.

Added Committees

West Park Flower Show Will Feature Unusual Horticulture Exhibits, September 13 and 14

It was announced today by Mrs. William H. van Benschoten, general chairman of the 23rd annual West Park Flower Show, that this year's event is expected to feature an even greater number of unusual horticulture exhibits than in previous years. The show will be open from 3 to 8 p. m. Saturday and from 1 to 6 p. m. Sunday. It is sponsored by the Ascension Church and will be held in the parish hall at West Park.

Mrs. van Benschoten's prediction, which also included the arrangement and other classes, is based upon "the tremendous interest being shown by gardeners throughout Ulster as well as other counties, and by the large number of entry forms already returned."

Three-Year Trophy

The three-year silver bowl trophy awarded for the first time last year to the exhibitor having the highest number of points in the show, was won by Mrs. William J. Anderson. The trophy must be won in three shows to keep it permanently.

Exhibits will be received at the parish house from 7 to 9 p. m. Friday and from 9 a. m. to 12 noon Saturday. All flowers in the cultural classes must be grown by the exhibitors. Flowers and other materials used in artistic arrangements need not be grown by the exhibitors.

Exhibits Judged

Cultural exhibits will be judged according to cultural perfection, size according to species or variety, form, color and substance, foliage and stem condition.

Artistic arrangements will be judged according to color combination, relation to container, proportion and balance, distinction and originality, suitability of combination of materials, and condition.

There are 101 classes in all, and schedules outlining the individual classes are available and may be obtained from Mrs. van Benschoten in West Park; the Ascension Church rectory, or any member of the committee.

Popular Class Repeated

The visitor's choice of an arrangement has been so popular since it was first introduced, three years ago, it will again be included in this year's show. The winner is selected by popular vote. The class is known as "crystal gazing" and comprises an arrangement of flowers in a glass container.

Tea will be served Saturday and Sunday from 4 to 5 p. m. A cafeteria dinner will be served Saturday beginning at 5:30 p. m.

Added Committees

Souvenir program committee—Mrs. Theodor Oxholm, chairman; Miss Grace Freer, Mrs. Loren LeFevre, Elmer Chamberlin, Reupen Gullian, Richard van Benschoten, and George Hard.

In the event of rain, the tea and dinner will be served in the parish house, instead of on the spacious lawns surrounding the church and hall. The Rev. Herald C. Swezy is pastor of the Ascension Church.

MANUAL DEXTERITY NOT 'SISSY'

A letter today explains: "I have a young brother whose table manners are abominable. He chews with his mouth wide open, holds his fork in shovel fashion and uses his finger as a pusher. I have tried to correct him but he tells me that I am trying to make a "sissy" of him. It's gotten so I hate to have any of my friends come to dinner because he embarrasses me. Do you have a solution for this problem?"

You might explain to him that there is nothing sissy in manual dexterity which is definitely a requirement of perfect table manners. And until he learns to eat properly he cannot possibly come to the table with grown people because they would object to eating with him.

Double Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: At a double wedding, how is the giving away of the brides managed? Does the father take one daughter up the aisle first and then return for the other, or does a close friend or relative substitute for the father and take the other daughter up the aisle?

Answer: Usually, her next nearest relative or, having none, her father's best friend takes the second daughter up the aisle. Having said, "I do" in regard to the older daughter, her marriage is halted and ceremony repeated for the younger daughter who then takes her bridegroom's arm and waits for sister's ceremony to end; at which point the second ceremony follows:

He Holds Umbrella

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary that a gentleman hold an umbrella over a lady when they are walking in the rain? Isn't it perfectly proper that he let her hold it herself when the umbrella is just big enough for her?

Answer: If it is an umbrella of normal size he should hold it (at the same time asking her to take his arm.)

Who to Tip

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband owns a restaurant and very often I go there for meals. I would like to know if I am supposed to tip the waiter who serves me.

The Communists say that 3 million of China's 450 million population are out of work. The figure may be higher. The Reds say that unemployment is a heritage of the Chinese Nationalist regime or is caused by Communist production efficiency, the liberation of millions of housewives from their kitchens and the lack of arable land. Know Finesses to Win Bridge Games

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Some finesses are a snare and a delusion. By this I mean that if you take the finesse and win, you get only an even break; while if you lose, you lose plenty. The average player usually takes this type of finesse and thinks he is unlucky if it fails. Certainly that was true of the South player when today's hand was actually played.

West opened the king of diamonds and South won with the ace. Declarer drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the ace of spades "for safety," and finessed the jack of spades.

East won with the queen of spades and returned a spade, thus passing the buck back to declarer.

Having already lost one trick, South had to develop the clubs by himself and lose only two tricks in the process. Much to his disgust, he found this was an impossible task.

No matter how he tackled the clubs, second hand would play low and fourth hand would capture an honor. A club return would then give the other defender two more tricks in the suit.

There was no safe way of taking the spade finesse. After winning the ace of diamonds and drawing two rounds of trumps, South should ruff his remaining diamond in the dummy to strip out the suit. He should then cash both top spades and let the opponents win their spade trick.

South does not care which defender wins the trick. That defender must begin the clubs since any other return allows dummy to ruff while South discards a losing club. With a defender beginning the clubs, South is sure to hold the loss in that suit to two tricks.

ceptance. The members, realizing that the rank and file can expect no help from the international, kept up active and continuous opposition to Pearce until we could by legitimate and regular election replace him. I was elected business agent by unanimous vote, Pearce failing to get even a single seconding vote, after having been a delegate for 20 years when his own son-in-law nominated him for re-election.

"I worked for the local for a year after which the men gave me leave of absence for duration on my entrance into the service. During my term I learned more about the crookedness and rottenness in the international and the insidious combination of politicians, courts of justice, labor racketeers and employers. There are politicians who are also employers and when the rank and file appeals to the courts, it has no chance at all.

"Thousands of good labor men know that you have done a world of good for organized labor by instigating the investigation of the racketeering unioneers. Now we would like very much to see you take on the corrupt officials and judges who have helped maintain these gangsters in office to exploit the workers and stuff their own pockets. We do go to the courts, but we have received the most heart-sickening reverses.

"Don't you agree that there is a stench about such situations that should be corrected by strong means? Is it too far fetched for workers on the Delaware Aqueduct to wonder whether there was collusion between the union racketeers, politicians and employers to prevent a pay rise for the men during the construction period? Most of the men knew money had changed hands between Fay, Parkinson and the employers.

"Why was the investigation held off until this year? If I could be of assistance to you at any time, I would consider it a privilege to respond to your call."

Acropolis then went to the U. S. Naval Training Station at Norfolk and disappeared into the war. I never heard from him again.

Four of the worst crooks in Westchester union rackets finally did go to prison. Thanks to the spirit of courage and rebellion that Acropolis had aroused in the men, these crooks were not allowed to draw their big salaries during their absence.

As to Johnny's later career I have not kept informed. Teamsters' locals perpetrated atrocities in Mount Vernon and New Canaan, Conn., but I believe Johnny was away at the time. I never did hear that he went in for rackets himself although the mob action of his goons at his funeral was disquieting.

Come On In and Order One . . . Today!

There are many people in this community who want a Cadillac ever so badly—and who are almost persuaded to order one—

—but who, for one reason or another, are just holding back and waiting.

To all these people we say: "Come on in and order your Cadillac today!"

Every day you wait is simply postponing, still further, the wonderful time when you can have and enjoy the many delightful things a Cadillac will bring you.

There is, for instance, the deep feeling of pride which comes from owning a car which is universally acknowledged to be the Standard of the World . . .

. . . the great satisfaction that comes from driving a car so quiet you can "whisper and be heard"; so easy to handle that driving is no conscious effort at all; so comfortable and restful that a day at its wheel is the essence of relaxation . . .

. . . the comforting confidence that comes from the knowledge that your car is so soundly-engineered and so beautifully-built that you can keep it and enjoy it over almost any period of years you may care to designate . . .

. . . and, finally, the happy knowledge that you probably paid less for your Cadillac than hundreds of thousands of people who are driving other makes of cars—for there are numerous models produced by other manufacturers which actually cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac!

Isn't all this too much to miss for even one needless day?

Owners of Cadillacs will tell you it is—out of their own experience. Time and again, people who have just moved up to Cadillac have said to us—"Why did I wait so long to enjoy all this?"

That's why we urge you to come in today and start down the happy road to Cadillac ownership. You have already missed too much—too long!

MANUAL DEXTERITY NOT 'SISSY'

A letter today explains: "I have a young brother whose table manners are abominable. He chews with his mouth wide open, holds his fork in shovel fashion and uses his finger as a pusher. I have tried to correct him but he tells me that I am trying to make a "sissy" of him. It's gotten so I hate to have any of my friends come to dinner because he embarrasses me. Do you have a solution for this problem?"

You might explain to him that there is nothing sissy in manual dexterity which is definitely a requirement of perfect table manners. And until he learns to eat properly he cannot possibly come to the table with grown people because they would object to eating with him.

Double Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: At a double wedding, how is the giving away of the brides managed? Does the father take one daughter up the aisle first and then return for the other, or does a close friend or relative substitute for the father and take the other daughter up the aisle?

Having said; "I do" in regard to the older daughter, her marriage is halted and ceremony repeated for the younger daughter who then takes her bridegroom's arm and waits for sister's ceremony to end; at which point the second ceremony follows:

Come On In and Order One . . . Today!

There are many people in this community who want a Cadillac ever so badly—and who are almost persuaded to order one—

—but who, for one reason or another, are just holding back and waiting.

To all these people we say: "Come on in and order your Cadillac today!"

Every day you wait is simply postponing, still further, the wonderful time when you can have and enjoy the many delightful things a Cadillac will bring you.

There is, for instance, the deep feeling of pride which comes from owning a car which is universally acknowledged to be the Standard of the World . . .

. . . the great satisfaction that comes from driving a car so quiet you can "whisper and be heard"; so easy to handle that driving is no conscious effort at all; so comfortable and restful that a day at its wheel is the essence of relaxation . . .

. . . the comforting confidence that comes from the knowledge that your car is so soundly-engineered and so beautifully-built that you can keep it and enjoy it over almost any period of years you may care to designate . . .

. . . and, finally, the happy knowledge that you probably paid less for your Cadillac than hundreds of thousands of people who are driving other makes of cars—for there are numerous models produced by other manufacturers which actually cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac!

Isn't all this too much to miss for even one needless day?

Owners of Cadillacs will tell you it is—out of their own experience. Time and again, people who have just moved up to Cadillac have said to us—"Why did I wait so long to enjoy all this?"

That's why we urge you to come in today and start down the happy road to Cadillac ownership. You have already missed too much—too long!

Pressure on Dodgers and Yanks In Race to World Series Date

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The New York Giants still believe in miracles and the Cleveland Indians refuse to vanish from the race.

Thus the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees must extend themselves to the limit during the final three weeks of the campaign if they are to meet in the October World Series.

The Yankees own a two-game lead in the American League race but must play all but three of their final 16 games away from home. The Indians have the same number of games to play. But 14 of them are in Cleveland. The Yankees and Indians meet only once more this season, but that game, too, will be played in Cleveland.

Neither the Dodgers nor the Giants has a schedule advantage, as each club has 16 to play at home and three on the road. But the Giants are comforted by the fact that they are better off this season than they were a year ago today.

Last year at this time, the Giants trailed the Dodgers by 6½ games. Today, following yesterday's split of their day-night doubleheader, New York was only five lengths in back of Brooklyn.

Bounce Back to Win

The Giants' desperate bid to overtake the Dodgers appeared to have been stopped when the Dodgers crushed them, 10-2, in the afternoon clash. But Leo Durocher's gallant crew bounced back to win the night portion of the twin bill, 3-2.

A two-run, sixth-inning homer by Captain Alvin Dark and a ninth-inning, two-out double by Don Mueller won for the Giants after Joe Black's brilliant relief hurling and Duke Snider's power-hitting had given the Dodgers an easy first-game triumph.

It was Mueller's double in the last half of the ninth that scored Hank Thompson from second with the run that gave the Giants a split. But the outfielder had to share the starring role with Sal Maglie, the Giant pitching ace.

Maglie Stars in Relief

Maglie, returning to the mound after being knocked out the day before, hurled three masterful shutout innings in relief and stopped cold a Brooklyn threat in the seventh, retiring three Dodgers with the score tied, a potential run on third base and nobody out.

A single by Gil Hodges and a triple by Andy Pafko had just tied the score at 2-2 and sent starter Al Corwin to the showers. Maglie took over. He stranded the runner at third as he retired pitcher Billy Loes on a grounder, fanned Billy Cox and got Jackie Robinson to hit into a force play after walking Peewee Reese.

Thompson Opens Rally

Thompson opened the winning rally with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice and scored when Mueller laced a two-out double down the left field line.

Black, Brooklyn's ace reliever, yielded six hits in 7 2/3 scoreless innings, to receive credit for the opener. It was his 13th success against three defeats.

The first game, which lasted three hours and 12 minutes, was highlighted by a first-class rhubarb, constant bickering on the part of both clubs, and three hit batsmen.

The rhubarb erupted with two out in the Dodgers' half of the ninth. Larry Jansen, who had come to the mound to start the eighth for the Giants, became irked when the batter, Cox, returned to the dugout. Cox apparently wanted to give Black a little more rest before returning to the mound. The Brooklyn pitcher had just been retired on a close play at first.

Jansen Ejected

Jansen, seeing Cox go back to the Brooklyn dugout, decided to walk over to the Giant dugout. He was intercepted, however, by plate umpire Lee Ballanfant, who ordered him back to the mound. Jansen obeyed, but hit Cox in the small of the back with his first pitch. Ballanfant quickly ejected Jansen from the game.

Durocher came storming out of the dugout, ordered his infielders off the diamond and took up the argument with the umpires. Order was finally restored and Dave Koslo took the mound for the Giants.

Penn's Switch to T Formation Has a Lot to Do With Ivy Title

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Ivy League, which spawned this entire football business, is the only conference which went whole-hog on the Committee of College Presidents' recommendation to do away with bowl games and spring practice.

Thus, program vendors at the games this fall have a chance for as much business on the bench as among spectators. It is a fact that when Jordan Olivar arrived at Yale several days before the opening of practice he studied photographs—not game movies—of his players. Of course, he had been named head coach only a few days before when Herman Hickman quit but he had been listed as an assistant since early in the year.

Just how well Pennsylvania makes the switch from its venerable singie wing to the T, without benefit of spring practice, will determine the ultimate winner of the Ivy title, which Princeton has monopolized the past two years.

Have Talent Galore

The Penns have talent glaore and Paul Bixler quit as head coach at Colgate to help George Munger install the new attack. Some of the experienced hands back are Ed Bell, the letter-perfect end; Capt. Bill Evans at tackle and a horde of backs that include Bill Deuber, Glenn Adams, Chester Cornog, Gerry Robinson and Joe Varaitis.

But the Quakers must assimilate the new system in a hurry. They open the season on Sept 27 against Notre Dame and then follow with three conference foes, meeting Princeton on Oct. 11.

That game may be the decisive one as far as the loop title is concerned. Pinceton, winner of 22 in a row, has enough remnants left of its 1950-51 Kazmaier machine to share early season runner up honors with Cornell.

It is unlikely that Princton has another Dick Kazmaier, the all-everything back of 1951, but Coach Charlie Caldwell does have enough returnees to finish high and Lefty James has enough members of his defensive platoon back to indicate the big red isn't going to fade away.

Can Finish in Any Order

Behind the top three the remaining five members of the circuit can finish in about any order without a surprise. Brown originally was ticketed for fourth place but loss of 16 players by faculty degree weakened the Bruins. Others in the circuit are Columbia, Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth.

Dick Frye, a tlented sophomore, is expected to take over Kazmaier's spot, perhaps not at the start of the campaign but certainly by season's end. Capt. Frank McPhee has the ability to become one of Princeton's greatest ends.

It is a rebuilding year at Cornell and the biggest job may be to find a replacement for the graduated Jack Dorrance, ace line backer. Rocco Calvo, experienced quarterback with a year of eligibility remaining, was graduated this summer and now is in the army.

Columbia's entire attack is wrapped up in quarterback Mitch Price. Dartmouth has an extreme shortage of experienced guards. Harvard and Yale need every break possible to reach a 50-50 record and Brown lacks reserves.

Hialeah race track in Florida opens Friday, Jan. 16, with the $15,000 Inaugural Handicap, a six-furlong sprint for 3-year-olds and up.

King Ranch's Dispose threw a shoe on the clubhouse turn at Hialeah during the 1941 Flamingo yet went on to win the race.

World Series Set to Open October First If Pennant Races Close on Schedule

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—If the National and American League pennant races end on schedule Sept. 28 with no ties, the 1952 World Series will open in the home park of the National loop champions Wednesday, Oct. 1.

That much was decided yesterday at a meeting of club owners with Ford C. Frick, baseball commissioner.

In event of a tie in the National League necessitating a play-off, the first game of the Series would not be played until Oct. 2. A tie in the American League would not affect the start of the Series Oct. 1. American League rules call for a one-game play-off, but the National League has a best-of-three rule.

Game Arrangement

The first two games will be played in the National League Park, the next three in the home park of the American League champions, and the sixth and seventh, if necessary, back in the National grounds.

All games will start at 1 p. m., local time, and if darkness intervenes, lights will be turned on.

Frick was to confer in Washington today with Office of Price Stabilization officials about prices of Series tickets, with a possibility they might come higher.

In recent years they have been $8 for box seats, $6 for reserved, $3 for bleachers, and $4 for standing room.

Figures released today by Fred Corcoran, LPGA tournament director, showed Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., in second place with $12,215. Louise Suggs of Carrollton ranked third with $9,239.

Johnson said sponsors for the two teams are available.

Interested bowlers, 170-averages or under, are requested to contact either President Johnson, Emile Jordan or Elting "Pop" Auchmoody for further details.

Fain's Chances Better For '52 Batting Crown

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Ferris Fain's chances for repeating as the American League batting champion appear much brighter today than a week ago.

Last week Fain, after leading for most of the season, found himself confronted with Dale Mitchell of the Cleveland Indians, who had forged into a tie with the Philadelphia first baseman for hitting. Laurels at .332 each.

Today Fain still is hitting .332, but the Cleveland outfielder has slipped into third place with .324, one point behind the Yankees' Gene Woodling in second at .325. Figures include Monday's game.

Musial Holds Advantage

In the National League, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals seems a virtual certainty to annex his third straight batting title. The St. Louis outfielder-first baseman, owning a .335 mark, holds a comfortable 15-point advantage over runnerup Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati with .320.

Fain took over sole possession of the American League's top slot by going eight-for-24 over the past week, while Mitchell lost eight points with only four hits in 23 at bats. Woodling, in advancing one notch, went nine-for-27 to gain a point.

A pair of former batting titleholders, Billy Goodman and George Kell, now both of Boston, share fourth place with .311. Goodman collected 14 safeties in 35 trips to lift his average seven points and jump from seventh place. Kell, who is out for the season with a broken finger, suffered a four-point decline.

Baumholtz Slides to .312

Frankie Baumholtz of the Cubs slumped two points to .312, but still remains in third place, four points in front of Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson at .308. Al (Red) Schoendienst of the Cards is fifth with .307.

Clevand's Larry Doby, who tops the American League in home runs with 30, is tied with Gus Zernial of the Athletics for the runs batted in lead with 95 each. Hank Sauer of the Cubs continues to pace the National League in home runs with 35 and in runs batted in with 116.

Pressure on Dodgers and Yanks In Race to World Series Date

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The New York Giants still believe in miracles and the Cleveland Indians refuse to vanish from the race.

Thus the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees must extend themselves to the limit during the final three weeks of the campaign if they are to meet in the October World Series.

The Yankees own a two-game lead in the American League race but must play all but three of their final 16 games away from home. The Indians have the same number of games to play. But 14 of them are in Cleveland. The Yankees and Indians meet only once more this season, but that game, too, will be played in Cleveland.

Neither the Dodgers nor the Giants has a schedule advantage, as each club has 16 to play at home and three on the road. But the Giants are comforted by the fact that they are better off this season than they were a year ago today.

Last year at this time, the Giants trailed the Dodgers by 6½ games. Today, following yesterday's split of their day-night doubleheader, New York was only five lengths in back of Brooklyn.

Bounce Back to Win

The Giants' desperate bid to overtake the Dodgers appeared to have been stopped when the Dodgers crushed them, 10-2, in the afternoon clash. But Leo Durocher's gallant crew bounced back to win the night portion of the twin bill, 3-2.

A two-run, sixth-inning homer by Captain Alvin Dark and a ninth-inning, two-out double by Don Mueller won for the Giants after Joe Black's brilliant relief hurling and Duke Snider's power-hitting had given the Dodgers an easy first-game triumph.

It was Mueller's double in the last half of the ninth that scored Hank Thompson from second with the run that gave the Giants a split. But the outfielder had to share the starring role with Sal Maglie, the Giant pitching ace.

Maglie Stars in Relief

Maglie, returning to the mound after being knocked out the day before, hurled three masterful shutout innings in relief and stopped cold a Brooklyn threat in the seventh, retiring three Dodgers with the score tied, a potential run on third base and nobody out.

A single by Gil Hodges and a triple by Andy Pafko had just tied the score at 2-2 and sent starter Al Corwin to the showers. Maglie took over. He stranded the runner at third as he retired pitcher Billy Loes on a grounder, fanned Billy Cox and got Jackie Robinson to hit into a force play after walking Peewee Reese.

Thompson Opens Rally

Thompson opened the winning rally with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice and scored when Mueller laced a two-out double down the left field line.

Black, Brooklyn's ace reliever, yielded six hits in 7 2/3 scoreless innings, to receive credit for the opener. It was his 13th success against three defeats.

The first game, which lasted three hours and 12 minutes, was highlighted by a first-class rhubarb, constant bickering on the part of both clubs, and three hit batsmen.

The rhubarb erupted with two out in the Dodgers' half of the ninth. Larry Jansen, who had come to the mound to start the eighth for the Giants, became irked when the batter, Cox, returned to the dugout. Cox apparently wanted to give Black a little more rest before returning to the mound. The Brooklyn pitcher had just been retired on a close play at first.

Jansen Ejected

Jansen, seeing Cox go back to the Brooklyn dugout, decided to walk over to the Giant dugout. He was intercepted, however, by plate umpire Lee Ballanfant, who ordered him back to the mound. Jansen obeyed, but hit Cox in the small of the back with his first pitch. Ballanfant quickly ejected Jansen from the game.

Durocher came storming out of the dugout, ordered his infielders off the diamond and took up the argument with the umpires. Order was finally restored and Dave Koslo took the mound for the Giants.

Penn's Switch to T Formation Has a Lot to Do With Ivy Title

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Ivy League, which spawned this entire football business, is the only conference which went whole-hog on the Committee of College Presidents' recommendation to do away with bowl games and spring practice.

Thus, program vendors at the games this fall have a chance for as much business on the bench as among spectators. It is a fact that when Jordan Olivar arrived at Yale several days before the opening of practice he studied photographs—not game movies—of his players. Of course, he had been named head coach only a few days before when Herman Hickman quit but he had been listed as an assistant since early in the year.

Just how well Pennsylvania makes the switch from its venerable single wing to the T, without benefit of spring practice, will determine the ultimate winner of the Ivy title, which Princeton has monopolized the past two years.

Have Talent Galore

The Penns have talent glaore and Paul Bixler quit as head coach at Colgate to help George Munger install the new attack. Some of the experienced hands back are Ed Bell, the letter-perfect end; Capt. Bill Evans at tackle and a horde of backs that include Bill Deuber, Glenn Adams, Chester Cornog, Gerry Robinson and Joe Varaitis.

But the Quakers must assimilate the new system in a hurry. They open the season on Sept 27 against Notre Dame and then follow with three conference foes, meeting Princeton on Oct. 11.

That game may be the decisive one as far as the loop title is concerned. Pinceton, winner of 22 in a row, has enough remnants left of its 1950-51 Kazmaier machine to share early season runner up honors with Cornell.

It is unlikely that Princton has another Dick Kazmaier, the all-everything back of 1951, but Coach Charlie Caldwell does have enough returnees to finish high and Lefty James has enough members of his defensive platoon back to indicate the big red isn't going to fade away.

Can Finish in Any Order

Behind the top three the remaining five members of the circuit can finish in about any order without a surprise. Brown originally was ticketed for fourth place but loss of 16 players by faculty degree weakened the Bruins. Others in the circuit are Columbia, Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth.

Dick Frye, a tlented sophomore, is expected to take over Kazmaier's spot, perhaps not at the start of the campaign but certainly by season's end. Capt. Frank McPhee has the ability to become one of Princeton's greatest ends.

It is a rebuilding year at Cornell and the biggest job may be to find a replacement for the graduated Jack Dorrance, ace line backer. Rocco Calvo, experienced quarterback with a year of eligibility remaining, was graduated this summer and now is in the army.

Columbia's entire attack is wrapped up in quarterback Mitch Price. Dartmouth has an extreme shortage of experienced guards. Harvard and Yale need every break possible to reach a 50-50 record and Brown lacks reserves.

Hialeah race track in Florida opens Friday, Jan. 16, with the $15,000 Inaugural Handicap, a six-furlong sprint for 3-year-olds and up.

King Ranch's Dispose threw a shoe on the clubhouse turn at Hialeah during the 1941 Flamingo yet went on to win the race.

World Series Set to Open October First If Pennant Races Close on Schedule

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—If the National and American League pennant races end on schedule Sept. 28 with no ties, the 1952 World Series will open in the home park of the National loop champions Wednesday, Oct. 1.

That much was decided yesterday at a meeting of club owners with Ford C. Frick, baseball commissioner.

In event of a tie in the National League necessitating a play-off, the first game of the Series would not be played until Oct. 2. A tie in the American League would not affect the start of the Series Oct. 1. American League rules call for a one-game play-off, but the National League has a best-of-three rule.

Game Arrangement

The first two games will be played in the National League Park, the next three in the home park of the American League champions, and the sixth and seventh, if necessary, back in the National grounds.

All games will start at 1 p. m., local time, and if darkness intervenes, lights will be turned on.

Frick was to confer in Washington today with Office of Price Stabilization officials about prices of Series tickets, with a possibility they might come higher.

In recent years they have been $8 for box seats, $6 for reserved, $3 for bleachers, and $4 for standing room.

Fain's Chances Better For '52 Batting Crown

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Ferris Fain's chances for repeating as the American League batting champion appear much brighter today than a week ago.

Last week Fain, after leading for most of the season, found himself confronted with Dale Mitchell of the Cleveland Indians, who had forged into a tie with the Philadelphia first baseman for hitting. Laurels at .332 each.

Today Fain still is hitting .332, but the Cleveland outfielder has slipped into third place with .324, one point behind the Yankees' Gene Woodling in second at .325. Figures include Monday's game.

Musial Holds Advantage

In the National League, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals seems a virtual certainty to annex his third straight batting title. The St. Louis outfielder-first baseman, owning a .335 mark, holds a comfortable 15-point advantage over runnerup Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati with .320.

Fain took over sole possession of the American League's top slot by going eight-for-24 over the past week, while Mitchell lost eight points with only four hits in 23 at bats. Woodling, in advancing one notch, went nine-for-27 to gain a point.

A pair of former batting titleholders, Billy Goodman and George Kell, now both of Boston, share fourth place with .311. Goodman collected 14 safeties in 35 trips to lift his average seven points and jump from seventh place. Kell, who is out for the season with a broken finger, suffered a four-point decline.

Musial, with five-for-18, saw two points sliced from his average, while Klusewski was picking up four points in the National League hitting parade.

Baumholtz Slides to .312

Frankie Baumholtz of the Cubs slumped two points to .312, but still remains in third place, four points in front of Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson at .308. Al (Red) Schoendienst of the Cards is fifth with .307.

Clevand's Larry Doby, who tops the American League in home runs with 30, is tied with Gus Zernial of the Athletics for the runs batted in lead with 95 each. Hank Sauer of the Cubs continues to pace the National League in home runs with 35 and in runs batted in with 116.

Hounds Need Training

Newark, N. J. (AP) — While bloodhounds have natural tracking ability, it takes a couple of years of patient training before a bloodhound learns the fine points. So says Patrolman Bill Taylor who makes a hobby of training the dogs. His prize pupil is a 100-pound pure-bred American Red who has proved his "nose" on several occasions. The dog's most spectacular feat was tracking a boy vandal two miles over mountains right to his front door. Taylor says he first taught the dog to distinguish between scents of persons. Next Taylor had the dog follow an open trail of 100 feet, gradually lengthening it to more than two miles.

Off for Giants Game

New Paltz, Sept. 9—Ralph Clearwater, coach, and Little League players Walter Dyer and Eddie Morris board one of the three buses which took 83 players, managers and coaches to the Polo Grounds in New York last week to see the Giants whip the Phillies by 5 to 4. Also making the trip was Bill Lohrman, LL commissioner. Lohrman is a former Giants pitcher.

Little Leaguers See Giants Win At Polo Grounds

New Paltz, Sept. 9—Three bus loads of New Paltz Little Leaguers traveled to the Polo Grounds Sept. 5 to see the Giants and the Phillies play. Bill Lohrman, former Giant player, now New Paltz business man, was instrumental in securing the invitation for the New Paltz Little Leaguers. Eighty-three of the 96 young players went on the trip to New York. They were accompanied by 23 coaches, managers, and scorekeepers who have worked with them this summer in the first New Paltz Little League season. The season will end Sept. 21 wtih an All-Star game at the Campus School.

Lohrman visited the Giants dugout during warm-up time to see some of his former teammates. He entered major league baseball in 1937 and pitched for Cincinnati and the Dodgers at various seasons but was with the Giants when he retired in 1943. The game was enjoyed from good seats behind the Giant dugout. The Giants won by 5 to 4 with a late rally. Two homers one by Bobby Thomson and the other by Clint Hartung, climaxed the rally. Local people reported seeing the Little Leaguers on television.

New Paltz boys were able to enjoy league baseball this summer because Lohrman and Lee Keator, co-owners of the Main Street Market, initiated the idea and received the support of the New Paltz Athletic Club and individuals willing to give their time and efforts to work with the boys. Funds came from individuals, New Paltz Recreation Committee, bowling leagues and interested organizations.

Ninety-six boys signed up for six teams. The Giants came out on top in the series. Aided by a few other stars they will take on the stars of the other five teams.

The line-up for the All-Stars is: M. Sullivan, 2b; C. Moehrke, 1b; A. Mead, 3b; J. Morgan, ss; R. Mackey, c; W. Dyer, cf; W. Ackert, rf; J. Roberts, lf; G. Upright, p; M. Caram, p; D. Mackey, p. The Giants lineup is: B. Freer, 3b; R. Moore, cf; D. McDowell, ss; R. Seitz, 1b; E. Morris, lf; B. Marks, rf; G. Decker, c; R. Wright, 2b; K. Freer, p; P. Decker, p; P. Phillips, p, and R. Rohe, p.

The six teams forming the league this season are Cards, Dodgers, Giants, Indians, Red Sox and Yankees. The Giants, first place team, were managed by Warren McDowell, Coaches Gordon Smith and James Scott. Yankees, second place, were managed by Gregory Rheude. Coaches were Jack Samter and Joseph Beggs. The Red Sox came in third and were managed by George Ackert, Coaches Bill Kelly and Bill Rhinehart. The Cards and Dodgers tied for fourth place. Manager for the Cards is William Weston. Coaches are Russ Davis and Frank Nadal. William Yeaple managed the Dodgers, Coaches, Ralph Clearwater and Lemuel Atkins. The Indians, not far behind the Cards and the Dodgers, had Lee Keator as manager and Roy Upright and John Taylor for coaches.

Public Hearing Held On Parking Meters

New Paltz, Sept. 9—A public hearing was held Monday in the trustees room at the municipal building on the subject of parking meters for the business district of New Paltz. A trial period of nine months is desired by Mayor Robert Reid and the village board. "The traffic problem is bad," said the mayor, "and it won't get any better." "Parking also is a problem." The board wants to test the meters for a while to see if they will help these problems and also, eventually, be a source of revenue. The period will cover winter, spring and summer and ought to provide a representative test of all seasonal weather.

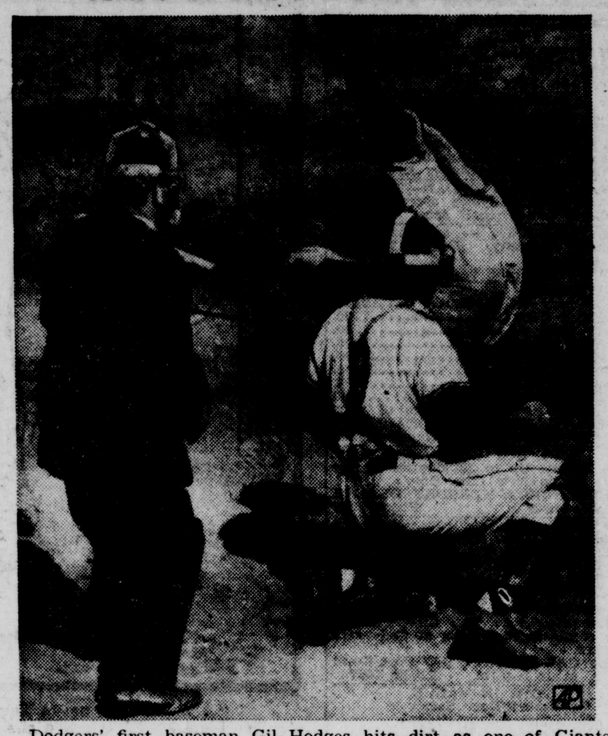
New Paltzers traveling the high seas recently include some sailing and some landing. Mrs. Jerome Hurd attended the Quaker Conference in London. The Keith Smileys, Jr., flew to the London Conference in August and visited Switzerland, France and other countries. Miss Ilene Compton has returned from her year of exchange teaching in England and is ready to teach again in the Campus School.

They are en route to India to join Dr. Haggerty who is on an educational commission as chief educational adviser to India under the U. S. Technical Cooperation Administration. Dr. Haggerty flew to New Delhi earlier in the summer.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Pyle, Robert Jr., and Jonathan were weekend visitors to Reading, Mass. On Saturday, Mrs. Pyle's niece, Miss Barbara Robinson, was married to Benjamin Lawrence Conron in the Episcopal Church.

Jay Zimmerman, Jr. has enrolled for his freshman year at the University of North Carolina. Postmaster Zimmerman will drive Jay Jr. to Chapel Hill this week.

TEMPO OF THE GAME INCREASES



Dodgers' first baseman Gil Hodges hits dirt as one of Giants' hurler Montia Kennedy's pitches comes close in 7th frame of afternoon game at Polo Grounds, New York City. Giants' catcher is Wes Westrum and umpire is Lee Ballanfant. Hodges had been hit by Hoyt Wilhelm during previous turn at bat in 5th inning. Later the umpires thumbed Giants' Larry Jansen out of game on close pitch to Billy Cox. Brooklyn won, 10-2, to increase their league lead over second-place Giants to six games.

Ancient Dragon Found

Herculaneum (AP) — An ancient five-headed dragon made of bronze has been uncovered in this dead city of antiquity near Naples. The statue, found in the basin of what once was a large pool built in the form of a cross, is part of an elaborate fountain almost seven feet high. The fountain is shaped like a tree-trunk. The dragon, with its serpentine tail, embraces the base of the fountain. The important discovery was covered with mud and ashes, it may have been buried there since 79 AD, when the town was annihilated by Vesuvius when it also snuffed out Pompei.

Embarrasses Medics

Allentown, Pa. (AP) — The Lehigh County Medical Society, after 100 years of operation, has finally gotten around to "making it legal" by applying for a charter under the non-profit corporation law. The embarrassing lack of a charter was revealed when it was decided to make a minor amendment in the society's by-laws. The first legal step was the dissolution of an old 1910 organization known as the Allentown Academy of Medicine.

About Jellyfish — And Wildfish

By AL McCLANE
(Fishing Editor)

You've probably heard about people who managed to tame a wild fish through continuous feeding. Usually, such a fish frequents a boat dock where anglers empty old bait cans and lunch boxes. With this regular supply of food on tap, the fish loses much of his caution, and will eventually take food from human hands.

Well, a Mr. W. Ker of Queen Charlotte Sound in Australia is a man of exceptional patience. He has tamed a school of nearly 100 fish during the past four years. Each evening he goes down to a shallow bay near his home on the sound and feeds a shoal of blue cod and snapper—the majority of which eat out of his hand, and many of them will allow Ker to lift them out of the water.

His charges vary in size from a six-pound snapper named "Little Bella" to a 24-pound snapper called "Hector." The snappers have distinguishing marks. Little Bella, for instance, has blue spots, while Hector has a white spot over his left eye. His friend "Lummy" has a pug nose and scars on his face.

Ker started by throwing bits of shellfish in the water back in 1948. So far none of the local Waltonians have interfered; in fact, nearby butcher shops are supplying meat scraps to supplement whatever food Ker gathers for his pets.

Jellyfish time is here again, and with an onshore breeze you'll probably find them drifting up in local beaches. A good many folks get all mixed up about these creatures.

The common jellyfish—the one that's an opaque white—that threw mama into a tizzy is harmless. The two stinging jellyfishes are the "moon jelly" and the Portuguese man-of-war. They are much larger and easy to identify. The moon jellyfish is vari-colored and about the size of a saucer.

The man-of-war is from saucer size up to the dimensions of a small wash tub.

At certain times of the year these two are quite abundant along southern beaches, but they never reach the vast numbers of common jellyfish that litter eastern shores.

The sting of the man-of-war usually leaves a fiery red welt, and I can tell you from personal experience that it really hurts. People react differently, but in some cases the victim will be temporarily paralyzed. A hot bath or an alkaline compress will relieve minor symptoms; otherwise see a doctor. This stinging organ is normally used to capture small fish, and it may trail out for fifty feet behind the "float" forming a sea anchor which keeps the man-of-war from drifting too rapidly in the wind.

Hounds Need Training

Newark, N. J. (AP) — While bloodhounds have natural tracking ability, it takes a couple of years of patient training before a bloodhound learns the fine points. So says Patrolman Bill Taylor who makes a hobby of training the dogs. His prize pupil is a 100-pound pure-bred American Red who has proved his "nose" on several occasions. The dog's most spectacular feat was tracking a boy vandal two miles over mountains right to his front door. Taylor says he first taught the dog to distinguish between scents of persons. Next Taylor had the dog follow an open trail of 100 feet, gradually lengthening it to more than two miles.

Off for Giants Game

New Paltz, Sept. 9—Ralph Clearwater, coach, and Little League players Walter Dyer and Eddie Morris board one of the three buses which took 83 players, managers and coaches to the Polo Grounds in New York last week to see the Giants whip the Phillies by 5 to 4. Also making the trip was Bill Lohrman, Lit. commissioner. Lohrman is a former Giants pitcher.

Little Leaguers See Giants Win At Polo Grounds

New Paltz, Sept. 9—Three bus loads of New Paltz Little Leaguers traveled to the Polo Grounds Sept. 5 to see the Giants and the Phillies play. Bill Lohrman, former Giant player, now New Paltz business man, was instrumental in securing the invitation for the New Paltz Little Leaguers. Eighty-three of the 96 young players went on the trip to New York. They were accompanied by 23 coaches, managers, and scorekeepers who have worked with them this summer in the first New Paltz Little League season. The season will end Sept. 21 wtih an All-Star game at the Campus School.

Lohrman visited the Giants dugout during warm-up time to see some of his former teammates. He entered major league baseball in 1937 and pitched for Cincinnati and the Dodgers at various seasons but was with the Giants when he retired in 1943. The game was enjoyed from good seats behind the Giant dugout. The Giants won by 5 to 4 with a late rally. Two homers one by Bobby Thomson and the other by Clint Hartung, climaxed the rally. Local people reported seeing the Little Leaguers on television.

New Paltz boys were able to enjoy league baseball this summer because Lohrman and Lee Keator, co-owners of the Main Street Market, initiated the idea and received the support of the New Paltz Athletic Club and individuals willing to give their time and efforts to work with the boys. Funds came from individuals, New Paltz Recreation Committee, bowling leagues and interested organizations.

Ninety-six boys signed up for six teams. The Giants came out on top in the series. Aided by a few other stars they will take on the stars of the other five teams.

The line-up for the All-Stars is: M. Sullivan, 2b; C. Moehrke, 1b; A. Mead, 3b; J. Morgan, ss; R. Mackey, c; W. Dyer, cf; W. Ackert, rf; J. Roberts, lf; G. Upright, p; M. Caram, p; D. Mackey, p. The Giants lineup is: B. Freer, 3b; R. Moore, cf; D. McDowell, ss; R. Seitz, 1b; E. Morris, lf; B. Marks, rf; G. Decker, c; R. Wright, 2b; K. Freer, p; P. Decker, p; P. Phillips, p, and R. Rohe, p.

The six teams forming the league this season are Cards, Dodgers, Giants, Indians, Red Sox and Yankees. The Giants, first place team, were managed by Warren McDowell, Coaches Gordon Smith and James Scott. Yankees, second place, were managed by Gregory Rheude. Coaches were Jack Samter and Joseph Beggs. The Red Sox came in third and were managed by George Ackert, Coaches Bill Kelly and Bill Rhinehart. The Cards and Dodgers tied for fourth place. Manager for the Cards is William Weston. Coaches are Russ Davis and Frank Nadal. William Yeaple managed the Dodgers, Coaches, Ralph Clearwater and Lemuel Atkins. The Indians, not far behind the Cards and the Dodgers, had Lee Keator as manager and Roy Upright and John Taylor for coaches.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Sept. 9—Officers of Olive American Legion Post Auxiliary for the ensuing year as installed at last week's meeting by Mrs. George VonderOsten are as follows: President, Mrs. William Frankle; vice president, Mrs. William Stevens; second vice president, Mrs. Simeon Trowbridge; secretary, Mrs. Douglas Trowbridge; treasurer, Mrs. H. Edgar Timmerman; chaplain, Mrs. Milton Ryan; sergeant at arms, Mrs. Robert Shultis. Mrs. Donald Bishop, retiring president of the auxiliary, was presented with a past president's pin in recognition and appreciation of her successful work in the office. The Legion blood bank, a community service which has benefited many persons in the Town of Olive, will again be open for donors on Thursday evening, Sept. 11, at the post headquarters in the Ashokan school building.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Ennist of Kingston were recent callers in the village center and at the home of the H. Edgar Timmermans on the west side of the reservoir. Spencer's father, Frank Ennist, was a son of John and Rebecca (Jones) Ennist whose large farm lay along the Buckaboam Brook in old West Shokan. Mrs. Ennist, descendant of early Shandaken settlers, is the daughter of John Winne who inaugurated the first bus line between Kingston and the upper mountain villages.

The new bungalow of Ebba Andre of North Front street, Kingston, is practically completed and ready for occupancy. The attractive residence adjoins the home of Miss Andre's relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Thord Fredenholm, on the west.

Mrs. John Arnold, the former Margaret Elmendorf of Shokan, has returned to her home at Guilderland following a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Davis, Olive Bridge couple who lived at Ashokan in late waterworks days, plan to spend the winter at the Tillson residence of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wingfield. Mrs. Davis has secured a position as cook at New Paltz State College.

Wednesday, Sept. 10 marks another birthday for Dora Cohen, well known Ashokan businesswoman for many years. Mrs. Cohen has three children: Mrs. Joseph (Rose) Elefant, Ashokan; and Frank and William Cohen of Kingston.

1,500 Communists Taught In Schools, Woman Says

When you look at the price of a man's suit, you wonder why they still put pockets in the pants.

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—1,500 Communist party members once taught in the nation's schools while Red cells were located on many leading college campuses, a U. S. Senate subcommittee has been told.

This picture, says Dr. Bella V. Dodd, represents the situation before 1949 when she was expelled from the party. She had served as a member of its national executive committee.

Dr. Dodd, a former Hunter College instructor here and now an attorney, testified yesterday before the U. S. Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

Sen. Homer Ferguson (R.-Mich.), who presided, said the hearings are part of an inquiry to determine "whether or not organized subversion is undermining our educational system."

The hearings continue today.

In her testimony yesterday, Dr. Dodd said the Communists teachers wielded influence beyond their numbers by striving for posts as instructors of student teachers. She said a single Red might influence 300 future teachers during one term.

Around New York

Dr. Dodd said about 700, possibly 1,000, of the Communist teachers and professors were in the east, particularly in and around New York city.

The number of the nation's educators is estimated at a million.

While the average party cell in a college or university had only three members, Dr. Dodd said, several campus groups were composed of as many as 25.

Name Institutions

She named the following colleges and universities as among those having had Communist cells:

Long Island, New York, Columbia, Northwestern, Harvard, Howard, Michigan, Chicago, California, and Minnesota Universities; Vassar, Smith, and Wellesley Colleges; Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the four New York city municipal colleges—Hunter, City, Brooklyn and Queens.

Asked about her own role as Hunter College physical science instructor, Dr. Dodd replied:

"God help me for what I did. There is no doubt in my mind I did a lot of harm. I was a faculty adviser and was very popular, and I have no doubt I convinced many of the Communist doctrines."

Dr. Dood recently announced that she had returned last April to the Roman Catholic Church in which she was born.

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—1,500 Communist party members once taught in the nation's schools while Red cells were located on many leading college campuses, a U. S. Senate subcommittee has been told.

This picture, says Dr. Bella V. Dodd, represents the situation before 1949 when she was expelled from the party. She had served as a member of its national executive committee.

The hearings continue today.

Dr. Dodd said about 700, possibly 1,000, of the Communist teachers and professors were in the east, particularly in and around New York city.

The number of the nation's educators is estimated at a million.

Taft Backers . . .

Democratic administration as a "damnable octopus" and hit at "left-wingish, pinkish" influences. But he drew his greatest applause when he said Taft's friends, in supporting him, were by no means abandoning their loyalty to the Senator.

Eisenhower said:

"There are among you people who very rightfully have given their personal loyalty in the political world to another person. To the Senator, for example, you have given a loyalty—Sen. Taft—which places him in your estimation at the top of the whole political heap, and I advise you that's exactly where you ought to keep him . . . .

"I merely want to observe that because your own particular leader that you have chosen for yourself to express you in the highest places, has not been given a particular assignment, is no reason for any diminutation in that loyalty. You stick right with it. That is exactly what you should do, in my book."

Asks Jenner Support

Eisenhower made it plain before heading into Indiana that he would ask voters to "support the Republican team," including Sen. William Jenner, who has called Gen. George C. Marshall a "front man for traitors." Jenner is seeking reelection.

Eisenhower has termed Marshall "a perfect example of patriotism," but indicated he would back Jenner as a matter of Republican Party solidarity.

In response to a press conference question as to whether he regarded Jenner as "in the same category" as Sen. Joseph McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican also seeking reelection, Eisenhower replied sharply:

"I am not categorizing anybody. I am simply stating what I think about certain practices and ideas and I am saying what I think about party responsibility."

Eisenhower, in addressing the three-state meeting declared in his opening remarks, and in answer to questions from the floor:

Will Work With Congress

The "greatest failure" presently in American government was "the complete loss of cooperation between the executive and legislative departments." He pledged to take Congress into his "intimate confidence" during the next four years if elected President.

He wasn't familiar with all the details of the McCarran-Walter immigration act but "if God-fearing, loyal, dedicated Americans can't work out a proper immigration bill for this country, then I don't think we are worthy of our own past, because our own past is one of immigration."

It is "high-time," with regard to military expenditures, that American citizens learned that "this military business is their business. They have been ducking the responsibility too long under the excuse that this is a thing for the experts.'"

Hits At Segregation

He believes "we should eliminate every vestige of segregation in the District of Columbia."

Government Civil Service employes "need have no fear whatsoever" that they will be fired under a Republican administration.

"What we are talking about," he said, "is firing their political bosses who make them hang their heads in shame about some of the things that are happening."

Eisenhower made a reference to his Democratic campaign rival, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, in response to whether he intended to attack "the Democratic candidate for his reliance upon left wing advisors. . . ."

"As far as I am concerned," replied Eisenhower, "I am never going to accept what I call the left-wingish, pinkish influence in our life, whether it is influencing that man or any other men in this world.

"I am going to try to make them see, either through argument or fight or persuasion that they have got to get away from that kind of thing and get to Americanism."

railway whistle-stop trip, travelling down the San Joaquin valley, an important agricultural area of California. In 1948, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP candidate, ran a strong race all through the valley.

Stevenson will make six stops in a 15-hour day on the road. In Los Angeles, on Thursday, he plans to visit his birthplace. The schedule calls for a departure the next day for Phoenix, Ariz.

In Portland and Seattle yesterday, Stevenson covered questions of development of America's natural resources, the role of the federal government in building up the Pacific northwest, and subtopics of major concern to the whole area.

the help was available and that the bridge would be maintained in good condition to prevent its deterioration.

Inspection Reported

A communication was received from the State Department of Social Welfare stating that an inspection of the County Home at New Paltz had been made recently and the property was found in good condition and the regulations of the department were being followed. It was suggested that a double swing window in the infirmary leading to a fire escape be replaced by a door of full length.

Long Lane road in the town of Shawangunk was added to the county road system on motion of Supervisor McHugh. This is a short road 1¼ miles in length near the airport.

Werbalowsky Elected

The resignation of Herbert E. Thomas as a member of the board of elections was received and accepted and Seymour Werbalowsky of 109 Hone street was recommended by A. H. Wicks, county chairman, and elected to fill out the term which expires on December 31, 1952.

A resolution transferring funds from one account to another in the County Clerk's fund and also the County Highway Department was approved. The county clerk asked for transfer of funds to provide additional help in the Motor Vehicle Bureau office due to increased work since the state truck weighing law has become effective. No additional money is being appropriated.

Drury Resigns Post

The resignation of Msgr. Martin F. Drury as a member of the board of health was received and accepted with regret. He stated he was compelled to resign due to ill health.

The snow removal contract entered into between the county and the State Department of Public Works in 1946 was extended another year. Under this contract the county removes snow and ice from state highways and is reimbursed by the state.

A resolution was adopted on the resignation of William W. Taylor, former deputy county clerk of the board of supervisors who retired on August 1. A copy will be forwarded to Mr. Taylor.

Sympathy Extended

A letter acknowledging the extension of sympathy at the time of the death of her husband, Edward Young of Marlborough, was received from Mrs. Young. Filed.

Supervisor Herbert George of Denning offered a resolution asking that a committee of three be appointed from the board to consult with the County Superintendent of Highways for the purpose of facilitating the completion of the Sundown bridge, known as County Bridge No. 48, which was authorized in 1947.

On May 19, 1947 Supervisor Waizman offered a resolution authorizing expenditure of not to exceed $20,000 for construction of this bridge to replace a condemned structure. The abutments and easterly approach to the bridge were completed in 1947 but in lieu of proceeding with the construction of the bridge a "Bailey Bridge" was erected within the confines of the surface of the old structure to strengthen it, thus reducing the width of the old bridge to 9 feet. Again in 1948, Supervisor Dean offered a resolution which was adopted, authorizing construction of the Sundown bridge over the Rondout. No work has been done on the bridge.

In his resolution Supervisor George stated that the bridge was built about 50 years ago for horse and ox drawn vehicles and the construction of the "Bailey Bridge" has narrowed the passageway to the extent a dangerous condition now exists. It is impossible to get the town snow removal equipment past the bridge unless an 18 mile detour through Wawarsing and Neversink is made on the other side of the creek. The route is also used by school children and the school bus cannot pass over the bridge enroute to the Grahamsville school. Pupils must walk over the bridge from "feeder buses" to take the school bus. He asked that work on the bridge be continued, since the present "Bailey Bridge" an army type of strengthening structure, is insufficient to carry traffic.

Chairman Denniston announced the committee of three requested, would be appointed.

The board then adjourned.

A Justice Department spokesman would not say if Costello would be deported if the department successfully stripped him of his citizenship. The Kefauver Committee urged this step last year, describing the 62-year-old racket czar as a long-time gambler, bootlegger and slot machine operator.

Warden G. L. Humphrey of the Lewisburg (Pa.) federal penitentiary where Costello is serving his sentence refused to permit newsmen to question him for comment.

The federal grand jury, in its indictments against Adonis and Accardo, lodged eight counts against Accardo, who is regarded as the successor to Al (Scarface) Capone in Chicago's underworld, and 10 counts against Adonis, reputed boss of gambling and vice on the east coast.

Conviction on each count carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Adonis, indicted under his real name of Joseph Doto, is now serving a two to three year term in New Jersey State Prison on gambling charges.

Taft Backers . . .

Democratic administration as a "damnable octopus" and hit at "left-wingish, pinkish" influences. But he drew his greatest applause when he said Taft's friends, in supporting him, were by no means abandoning their loyalty to the Senator.

Eisenhower said:

"There are among you people who very rightfully have given their personal loyalty in the political world to another person. To the Senator, for example, you have given a loyalty—Sen. Taft—which places him in your estimation at the top of the whole political heap, and I advise you that's exactly where you ought to keep him . . . .

"I merely want to observe that because your own particular leader that you have chosen for yourself to express you in the highest places, has not been given a particular assignment, is no reason for any diminutation in that loyalty. You stick right with it. That is exactly what you should do, in my book."

Asks Jenner Support

Eisenhower made it plain before heading into Indiana that he would ask voters to "support the Republican team," including Sen. William Jenner, who has called Gen. George C. Marshall a "front man for traitors." Jenner is seeking reelection.

Eisenhower has termed Marshall "a perfect example of patriotism," but indicated he would back Jenner as a matter of Republican Party solidarity.

In response to a press conference question as to whether he regarded Jenner as "in the same category" as Sen. Joseph McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican also seeking reelection, Eisenhower replied sharply:

"I am not categorizing anybody. I am simply stating what I think about certain practices and ideas and I am saying what I think about party responsibility."

Eisenhower, in addressing the three-state meeting declared in his opening remarks, and in answer to questions from the floor:

Will Work With Congress

The "greatest failure" presently in American government was "the complete loss of cooperation between the executive and legislative departments." He pledged to take Congress into his "intimate confidence" during the next four years if elected President.

He wasn't familiar with all the details of the McCarran-Walter immigration act but "if God-fearing, loyal, dedicated Americans can't work out a proper immigration bill for this country, then I don't think we are worthy of our own past, because our own past is one of immigration."

It is "high-time," with regard to military expenditures, that American citizens learned that "this military business is their business. They have been ducking the responsibility too long under the excuse that this is a thing for the experts."

Hits At Segregation

He believes "we should eliminate every vestige of segregation in the District of Columbia."

Government Civil Service employes "need have no fear whatsoever" that they will be fired under a Republican administration.

"What we are talking about," he said, "is firing their political bosses who make them hang their heads in shame about some of the things that are happening."

Eisenhower made a reference to his Democratic campaign rival, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, in response to whether he intended to attack "the Democratic candidate for his reliance upon left wing advisors. . . ."

"As far as I am concerned," replied Eisenhower, "I am never going to accept what I call the left-wingish, pinkish influence in our life, whether it is influencing that man or any other men in this world.

"I am going to try to make them see, either through argument or fight or persuasion that they have got to get away from that kind of thing and get to Americanism."

Birthday for Taft

railway whistle-stop trip, travelling down the San Joaquin valley, an important agricultural area of California. In 1948, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP candidate, ran a strong race all through the valley.

Stevenson will make six stops in a 15-hour day on the road. In Los Angeles, on Thursday, he plans to visit his birthplace. The schedule calls for a departure the next day for Phoenix, Ariz.

In Portland and Seattle yesterday, Stevenson covered questions of development of America's natural resources, the role of the federal government in building up the Pacific northwest, and subtopics of major concern to the whole area.

the help was available and that the bridge would be maintained in good condition to prevent its deterioration.

Inspection Reported

A communication was received from the State Department of Social Welfare stating that an inspection of the County Home at New Paltz had been made recently and the property was found in good condition and the regulations of the department were being followed. It was suggested that a double swing window in the infirmary leading to a fire escape be replaced by a door of full length.

Long Lane road in the town of Shawangunk was added to the county road system on motion of Supervisor McHugh. This is a short road 1¼ miles in length near the airport.

Werbalowsky Elected

The resignation of Herbert E. Thomas as a member of the board of elections was received and accepted and Seymour Werbalowsky of 109 Hone street was recommended by A. H. Wicks, county chairman, and elected to fill out the term which expires on December 31, 1952.

A resolution transferring funds from one account to another in the County Clerk's fund and also the County Highway Department was approved. The county clerk asked for transfer of funds to provide additional help in the Motor Vehicle Bureau office due to increased work since the state truck weighing law has become effective. No additional money is being appropriated.

Drury Resigns Post

The resignation of Msgr. Martin F. Drury as a member of the board of health was received and accepted with regret. He stated he was compelled to resign due to ill health.

The snow removal contract entered into between the county and the State Department of Public Works in 1946 was extended another year. Under this contract the county removes snow and ice from state highways and is reimbursed by the state.

A resolution was adopted on the resignation of William W. Taylor, former deputy county clerk of the board of supervisors who retired on August 1. A copy will be forwarded to Mr. Taylor.

Sympathy Extended

A letter acknowledging the extension of sympathy at the time of the death of her husband, Edward Young of Marlborough, was received from Mrs. Young. Filed.

Supervisor Herbert George of Denning offered a resolution asking that a committee of three be appointed from the board to consult with the County Superintendent of Highways for the purpose of facilitating the completion of the Sundown bridge, known as County Bridge No. 48, which was authorized in 1947.

On May 19, 1947 Supervisor Waizman offered a resolution authorizing expenditure of not to exceed $20,000 for construction of this bridge to replace a condemned structure. The abutments and easterly approach to the bridge were completed in 1947 but in lieu of proceeding with the construction of the bridge a "Bailey Bridge" was erected within the confines of the surface of the old structure to strengthen it, thus reducing the width of the old bridge to 9 feet. Again in 1948, Supervisor Dean offered a resolution which was adopted, authorizing construction of the Sundown bridge over the Rondout. No work has been done on the bridge.

In his resolution Supervisor George stated that the bridge was built about 50 years ago for horse and ox drawn vehicles and the construction of the "Bailey Bridge" has narrowed the passageway to the extent a dangerous condition now exists. It is impossible to get the town snow removal equipment past the bridge unless an 18 mile detour through Wawarsing and Neversink is made on the other side of the creek. The route is also used by school children and the school bus cannot pass over the bridge enroute to the Grahamsville school. Pupils must walk over the bridge from "feeder buses" to take the school bus. He asked that work on the bridge be continued, since the present "Bailey Bridge" an army type of strengthening structure, is insufficient to carry traffic.

Chairman Denniston announced the committee of three requested, would be appointed.

The board then adjourned.

former mayor of New York and now U. S. ambassador to Mexico.

A Justice Department spokesman would not say if Costello would be deported if the department successfully stripped him of his citizenship. The Kefauver Committee urged this step last year, describing the 62-year-old racket czar as a long-time gambler, bootlegger and slot machine operator.

Warden G. L. Humphrey of the Lewisburg (Pa.) federal penitentiary where Costello is serving his sentence refused to permit newsmen to question him for comment.

The federal grand jury, in its indictments against Adonis and Accardo, lodged eight counts against Accardo, who is regarded as the successor to Al (Scarface) Capone in Chicago's underworld, and 10 counts against Adonis, reputed boss of gambling and vice on the east coast.

Conviction on each count carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Adonis, indicted under his real name of Joseph Doto, is now serving a two to three year term in New Jersey State Prison on gambling charges.
